STAGE 00 — THE CENTRAL QUESTION: WHAT AN IDEOLOGY CLAIMS AND HOW DOMINATION IS DIAGNOSED

ANARCHISM, MARXISM AND SOCIALISM · WHAT CHIEFLY PRODUCES DOMINATION · AUTHORITY, MODE OF PRODUCTION, PROPERTY · ANALYTICAL AGAINST CRITICAL IDEOLOGY · DIAGNOSIS GENERATES PRESCRIPTION · IDEOLOGY IS NOT A TERM OF ABUSE

ONE DISCRIMINATING QUESTION

- Is domination produced chiefly by coercive authority, by the capitalist mode of production, or by socially uncontrolled productive property?
- Anarchism answers authority, Marxism answers class relations generated by the mode of production, socialism answers uncontrolled property and production.
- Every later disagreement about the state, revolution and freedom is derived from the answer given here.

TWO SENSES OF IDEOLOGY

- The analytical sense is an organised outlook combining descriptive claims, evaluative commitments and practical prescriptions.
- The critical Marxist sense names a defect: historically specific class relations made to appear natural, universal and inevitable.
- Declaring the sense in the opening lines disarms the self-refutation objection before it can be raised.

SHARED AXES FOR EVERY COMPARISON

- Authority, property, class, revolution, state and freedom are the recurrent axes of this clause.
- Running rival doctrines down the same axes converts a pair of summaries into an adjudicated comparison.
- The diagnosis generates the prescription, so an answer that lists prescriptions without diagnoses has already lost the structure.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Each ideology first locates the source of unfreedom, and its whole institutional programme — abolish the state, transform the mode of production, or socialise productive property — is derived from that single location rather than added to it.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Anarchism, Marxism and socialism are separated by one discriminating question — is domination produced chiefly by coercive authority, by the capitalist mode of production, or by socially uncontrolled productive property? — and every later disagreement about the state, revolution and freedom follows from the answer given.

STAGE 01 — ANARCHISM I: THE BURDEN-OF-JUSTIFICATION ARGUMENT AGAINST THE STATE

THE STATE MUST JUSTIFY ITS TITLE · TERRITORIAL MONOPOLY OF COERCION · MORAL AUTONOMY AND EQUALITY · CONTENT-INDEPENDENT OBLIGATION · BURDEN NOT DISCHARGED · ANARCHISM IS NOT ANARCHY

Legitimate authority must respect autonomy and equality → The state claims a territorial monopoly of coercion → Obedience is demanded independently of content → One person's judgment is subordinated to institutional will → The burden of justification is therefore not discharged

THE STANDARD IMPOSED ON AUTHORITY

- Legitimate authority must be compatible with the moral autonomy and equality of persons.
- The state claims a territorial monopoly of law-making, coercion and punishment over everyone within its borders.
- Obedience is demanded because a command is legally authoritative, not because its content is independently right.

WHY THE BURDEN IS NOT DISCHARGED

- A standing right of that kind subordinates one person's practical judgment to another's institutional will.
- Bakunin adds a corruption thesis: concentrated power deforms both the ruler and the ruled.
- Proudhon attacks property where it functions as an institutional power of appropriation and dependence, and Kropotkin argues that mutual aid is a genuine source of order.

BOUNDARIES AND THE SECURITY OBJECTION

- Anarchy names the collapse of rule, anarchism a normative critique of domination, and civil disobedience a breach of particular laws only.
- Even the libertarian minimal state is rejected, because the objection is to the monopoly and not to its size.
- The security objection is answered by comparing rival distributions of coercive power, and the residual is the persistent organised aggressor.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Because the state claims a right to be obeyed that is independent of the content of what it commands, its justification cannot be completed by pointing at good laws; every function it monopolises must be shown to require a sovereign centre and not merely to be performed by one.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: The anarchist thesis is not that order is unnecessary but that order must not be identified with sovereign command: the state is asked to justify a content-independent right to be obeyed, and anarchism holds that no available justification discharges that burden.

STAGE 02 — ANARCHISM II: STRANDS OF THE FAMILY, VOLUNTARY ORDER AND GANDHI'S QUALIFIED PLACE

ONE FAMILY, FIVE STRANDS · PROPERTY IS THE AXIS OF DIVISION · PROUDHON, BAKUNIN, KROPOTKIN · MUTUAL AID AND FEDERATION · ANARCHIST IN IDEAL, REFORMER IN METHOD · HIDDEN AUTHORITY RETURNS

Sort the family by the property axis

Mutualism, collectivist anarchism, anarcho-communism → Individualist and philosophical anarchism → Voluntary order is institutional, not optimistic

FIVE STRANDS ON THE PROPERTY AXIS

- Mutualism defends possession and exchange without exploitative property relations, through contracts and workers' associations.
- Collectivist anarchism places productive resources under collective control in federated producer communities, and anarcho-communism adds distribution according to need.
- Individualist anarchism defends strong personal sovereignty, while philosophical anarchism denies an automatic duty to obey without demanding insurrection.

WHY VOLUNTARY ORDER IS AN INSTITUTIONAL CLAIM

- Anarchism does not infer that every person is always benevolent; the claim is that order can arise from reciprocity, custom, association and horizontal coordination.
- Village assemblies, worker cooperatives, mutual-aid networks and decentralised federations illustrate limited capacities for non-sovereign coordination.
- They do not by themselves establish that a complex society can eliminate all public authority, and the honest answer says so.

GANDHI'S QUALIFIED PLACE

- Self-rule, decentralised village republics and a state reduced to a minimum create a genuine anarchist affinity.
- Non-violence, trusteeship, religious ethics and the constructive programme replace class war and anti-theism.
- The safest formulation grades the label: an anarchist in ideal and a pragmatic reformer in political method.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Once the property axis is made explicit, the strands stop looking like temperaments and become determinate positions on who may control productive resources and on how coordination is to be organised without a sovereign centre.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Anarchism does not infer that every person is always benevolent; its claim is institutional — that reciprocity, custom, association and horizontal coordination can generate order without a final coercive superior — and Gandhi enters this family as an anarchist in ideal but a reformer in political method.

STAGE 03 — MARXISM I: THE MATERIALIST METHOD AND THE ELEMENTS OF HISTORICAL MATERIALISM

HOW A SOCIETY PRODUCES ITS LIFE · FORCES OUTGROW RELATIONS, WHICH FETTER · FORCES, RELATIONS, MODE OF PRODUCTION · BASE AND SUPERSTRUCTURE AS A RELATION · CLASS STRUGGLE IS THE MOTOR · NOT A MECHANICAL ONE-WAY CAUSE

ELEMENT	WHAT IT NAMES	EXAM USE	TRAP TO AVOID
PRODUCTIVE FORCES	labour-power, knowledge, tools and technology	the capacity to produce	treating technology alone as the whole of the forces
RELATIONS OF PRODUCTION	ownership, control and class relations	who commands and who appropriates	confusing them with mere income distribution
MODE OF PRODUCTION	the unity of forces and relations	naming feudalism or capitalism precisely	using it loosely for any economic system
BASE AND SUPERSTRUCTURE	economic structure related to law, politics and ideology	explaining institutions through social labour and power	writing it as a mechanical one-way cause
CLASS STRUGGLE	conflict rooted in opposed structural interests	the motor of historical transformation	reducing it to personal antagonism between employers and workers

THE SIX-STEP MATERIALIST ARGUMENT

- Human beings must produce the means of life, and production occurs through definite social relations.
- Productive forces develop within those relations until the relations obstruct further development and become fetters.
- The conflict becomes social and political struggle, from which a new mode of production can emerge.

THE FOUR STRUCTURAL TERMS

- Productive forces name labour-power, knowledge, tools and technology; relations of production name ownership, control and class relations.
- The mode of production is the unity of forces and relations, such as feudalism or capitalism.
- Base and superstructure name a relation between the economic structure and law, politics and ideology, not a mechanical one-way switch.

USING THE DIALECTIC WITH CARE

- Contradiction drives development, but the primacy of a self-developing Idea is rejected and contradictions are embedded in material life.
- The formula thesis, antithesis and synthesis is later textbook shorthand and is not Marx's own fixed three-step law.
- The defensible charge is a tendency toward economic reductionism, so conceding it early removes the examiner's readiest objection.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Human beings must produce the means of life through definite social relations; productive forces develop within those relations, the relations eventually obstruct further development, and that obstruction becomes social and political struggle.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Marx takes from Hegel that contradiction drives development while rejecting the primacy of a self-developing Idea: the contradiction that moves history is between developing productive forces and the relations of production that come to fetter them, so the economic base conditions the superstructure without mechanically causing every idea within it.

STAGE 04 — MARXISM II: THE FOUR DIMENSIONS OF ALIENATION AND THE EXTRACTION OF SURPLUS VALUE

ESTRANGEMENT AND SURPLUS VALUE · FORMALLY FREE CONTRACT, REAL COMPULSION · PRODUCT, ACT, SPECIES-BEING, OTHERS · EXPLOITATION IS NOT INEQUALITY · STRUCTURAL, NOT A CRUEL EMPLOYER · ALIENATION IS NOT LOW WAGES

Estrangement under private property and division of labour → Product, act of labour, species-being, other persons → Labour-power sold under a formally free contract → Value created exceeds the value wages represent → Surplus value is appropriated as a structural relation

FOUR DIMENSIONS OF ALIENATED LABOUR

- From the product, which confronts the producer as another person's property, and from the activity of labour, which is externally compelled rather than self-realising.
- From species-being, in that conscious creative activity is reduced to a means of survival.
- From other persons, as workers compete and social relations assume commodity form.

WHY EXPLOITATION IS STRUCTURAL

- Workers lack independent access to the means of production and must therefore sell labour-power to live under a formally free contract.
- The capitalist controls the labour process and the product while competition compels accumulation and extraction.
- Value created in the working day exceeds the value represented by wages, and the remainder is appropriated as surplus value.

TWO DISTINCTIONS THAT CARRY THE MARX

- Alienation is broader than low wages: a well-paid worker remains alienated where labour, product and purpose are controlled by another.
- Exploitation concerns the relation of production while inequality concerns the distribution of holdings, so redistribution may leave exploitative control intact.
- Species-being can be reconstructed minimally as meaningful agency, social recognition and control over central activities.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Workers lack independent access to the means of production and must therefore sell labour-power to live, the capitalist controls the labour process and the product, and competition compels accumulation and the extraction of surplus.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Alienation is not low pay and exploitation is not theft: a well-paid worker remains alienated wherever labour, product and purpose are controlled by another, and exploitation arises through a formally free contract because the value labour creates exceeds the value its wage represents.

STAGE 05 — MARXISM III: IDEOLOGY, THE STATE, REVOLUTION AND THE TWO PHASES OF COMMUNISM

IDEOLOGY, STATE, REVOLUTION, EQUALITY · SOCIALISED PRODUCTION, PRIVATE APPROPRIATION · LOWER PHASE AND HIGHER PHASE · FORMAL AGAINST SUBSTANTIVE EQUALITY · TRANSITIONAL SUPREMACY, NOT PARTY RULE · NO INTERNAL SAFEGUARD AGAINST ENTRENCHMENT

Ideology is a socially rooted framework, not a lie → The state secures the general conditions of the class order → Socialised production meets private appropriation → Transitional supremacy, not permanent party rule → Contribution in the lower phase, need in the higher

IDEOLOGY AND THE STATE

- Ideology is not merely a lie but a socially rooted framework in which historically specific relations appear natural and inevitable.
- The modern state secures the general conditions of the capitalist order while presenting itself as the representative of a universal interest.
- Relative autonomy from any particular capitalist is compatible with a structural class function.

REVOLUTION AND THE TWO PHASES

- Capitalism socialises production while retaining private appropriation, and organised class struggle makes transformation possible.
- The dictatorship of the proletariat denotes a transitional political supremacy of the working class, not permanent one-party rule.
- The lower phase distributes by contribution and retains a bourgeois measure; the higher phase aspires to distribution according to need.

EQUALITY, FREEDOM AND THE RESIDUAL

- Formal equality asks whether the same rule applies; substantive equality asks whether persons can actually develop and participate.
- Marxian socialism is consistent with individual freedom only where collective ownership enlarges real self-development and democratic control.
- The strongest historical objection is that transitional states entrench rather than wither, and the theory supplies no internal safeguard against it.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Capitalism socialises production while retaining private appropriation, and that contradiction, together with organised class struggle, is what makes revolutionary transformation possible rather than merely desirable.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: The dictatorship of the proletariat denotes a transitional political supremacy of the working class and not a textual licence for permanent one-party dictatorship, and Marxian socialism is consistent with individual freedom only where collective ownership genuinely enlarges self-development and democratic control.

STAGE 06 — MARX AFTER MARX: WHICH CLASSICAL CLAIM EACH SUCCESSOR REVISES

WHICH CLASSICAL CLAIM IS REVISED · CAUSAL WEIGHT MOVES TO THE SUPERSTRUCTURE · WEAKEST LINK, HEGEMONY, ISAs · INSTRUMENTALISM AGAINST RELATIVE AUTONOMY · REFINED RATHER THAN REFUTED · AUTONOMY MUST REMAIN RELATIVE

CLASSICAL CLAIM	WHO REVISES IT	WHAT REPLACES IT	GROUND OF THE REVISION
revolution matures where capitalism is most advanced	Lenin	the weakest link in the imperialist chain plus a vanguard party under democratic centralism	revolution did not occur first in the most industrialised economies
ruling ideas are a reflex of the economic base	Gramsci	hegemony as an achievement won and lost in civil society	capitalism survived defeat and crisis in Western Europe through consent
the state is an instrument of the ruling class	Miliband, then Poulantzas	instrumental capture answered by relative autonomy and the condensation of class forces	the state acts against particular capitalists in the general interest of capital
consciousness is determined by social being	Althusser	subjects produced by ideological apparatuses through interpellation	relations of production must be reproduced daily and voluntarily

FOUR CLASSICAL CLAIMS AND THEIR REVISERS

- Lenin replaces the expectation that revolution matures in the most advanced economy with imperialism, the weakest link and a vanguard party under democratic centralism.
- Gramsci replaces ideology as a reflex of the base with hegemony contested in civil society through organic intellectuals and a war of position.
- Althusser replaces the humanist categories with Repressive and Ideological State Apparatuses and the interpellation of individuals as subjects.

THE STATE DEBATE IN THREE MOVES

- Miliband's instrumentalism in The State in Capitalist Society (1969) turns on social composition, structural leverage and positional interest.
- Poulantzas replies in Political Power and Social Classes (1973) that the state is a condensation of class forces with relative autonomy, functional for capital in general.
- Run it as claim, objection and internal limit: autonomy must remain relative or the analysis becomes pluralism under another name.

RESIDUALS THAT MUST BE CONCEDED

- Substitutionism is unanswered: nothing in the Leninist model reliably subordinates the party to the class it represents.
- Gramsci supplies no independent test separating hegemony from ordinary reasoned agreement.
- Althusser explains stability far better than change and leaves a thin account of agency, which is why he must not be merged with Gramsci.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Each revision is prompted by a determinate explanatory failure — revolution did not occur where it was expected, capitalism survived crisis in the West, the state acted against particular capitalists, and consent was renewed daily rather than imposed — so the trajectory is driven by evidence rather than by fashion.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Neo-Marxism does not abandon the materialist mechanism but relocates causal weight into party, culture, state form and subject-formation, so an answer that names which classical claim each successor revises, and on what ground, controls the entire trajectory instead of reporting positions.

STAGE 07 — SOCIALISM: THE FAMILY, ITS VARIETIES AND THE SOCIALISM-COMMUNISM BOUNDARY

SOCIALISM IS A FAMILY, NOT A DOCTRINE · SOCIAL OWNERSHIP PLUS DEMOCRATIC CONTROL · UTOPIAN, FABIAN, GUILD, MARKET, GANDHIAN · SOCIALISM, COMMUNISM, SOCIAL DEMOCRACY · TRUSTEESHIP, BREAD LABOUR, VILLAGE SELF-RULE · NATIONALISATION IS NOT SOCIALISATION

AXIS	SOCIALISM (FAMILY)	COMMUNISM (HIGHER PHASE)	SOCIAL DEMOCRACY
PROPERTY	social control in varied forms	common control with classes abolished	private property retained but regulated
STATE	may remain democratic and active	the political state is expected to lose its class function	a welfare-regulatory state
DISTRIBUTION	contribution, need or mixed principles	according to need in the higher phase	tax-transfer plus public services
METHOD	revolutionary or gradual	reached through a transition	constitutional reform

THE CORE SOCIALIST ARGUMENT

- Productive capacities are socially inherited and cooperatively exercised rather than individually created.
- Private control of indispensable productive assets gives some persons power over the work and life chances of others.
- Market outcomes do not automatically track need, desert or equal freedom, so ownership must answer to social purposes and democratic justification.

SIX VARIETIES ON METHOD AND OWNERSHIP

- Utopian socialism works through exemplary communities and moral reform; Marxian socialism through class struggle and revolutionary transition.
- Fabian and democratic socialism proceed by gradual parliamentary reform; guild socialism through occupational self-government; market socialism through markets inside social ownership.
- Gandhian socialism works through non-violence, trusteeship, bread labour, decentralised production, village self-rule and the welfare of all.

THE BOUNDARY THAT EXAMINERS TEST

- Socialism as a family means social control in varied forms; communism in the Marxian higher phase means common control with classes abolished.
- Social democracy retains private property under regulation, financing welfare through tax-transfer and public services.
- Nationalisation alone is not socialisation, because socialising power means control by society and not merely by officials.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Economic power is political in effect, so a doctrine that leaves indispensable productive assets under private control leaves the power over others' work and life chances untouched however generous its transfers may be.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Socialism is a family and Marxism is one member of it: a socialist may choose revolution or parliament, planning or regulated markets, state ownership or cooperatives, so the mark-bearing move is to define the sense in use before any comparison with communism is attempted.

STAGE 08 — INTER-SCHOOL DEBATES: ANARCHISM, MARXISM, DEMOCRATIC SOCIALISM, GANDHI AND ROY

RIVAL ROUTES TO ONE DESTINATION · ABOLISH OR FIRST CAPTURE THE STATE · BAKUNIN, MARX, GANDHI, M. N. ROY · REFORM AGAINST REVOLUTION · MEANS PREFIGURE ENDS · NEVER TWO SEQUENTIAL SUMMARIES

ANARCHISM AGAINST MARXISM

- Anarchism locates primary domination in authority and hierarchy; Marxism locates it in the class relation rooted in production.
- Anarchism would abolish the state without transitional sovereignty; Marxism uses transitional political power before the state loses its function.
- Bakunin fears a new state elite; Marxists fear that premature abolition leaves entrenched capitalist power intact.

REFORM, REVOLUTION AND THE INDIAN BRIDGE

- Democratic socialists hold that suffrage, unions, constitutional rights and public institutions can progressively socialise economic power.
- Marxism doubts that a state embedded in capitalist property can be peacefully converted into an impartial instrument.
- M. N. Roy's radical humanism keeps the critique of exploitation while rejecting economic determinism and party absolutism.

MARX AND GANDHI ON MEANS AND ENDS

- The root problem is class exploitation for Marx and greed, violence and modern industrial civilisation for Gandhi.
- The method is class struggle and revolution against truth-force, trusteeship and constructive work; the scale is socialised large-scale against decentralised need-oriented production.
- The decisive axis is that for Gandhi the means prefigure the ends, so a violent centralising path cannot produce a non-violent decentralised order.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — Each school locates domination differently, so each assigns the state a different role in the transition, and the disagreement about organisation and violence follows from that assignment rather than from temperament.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Bakunin predicts that a revolutionary state will generate a new ruling stratum while Marxists reply that organised class power is needed to defeat entrenched property and coercion, and the honest presentation reports this exchange as genuinely unresolved rather than settling it by assertion.

STAGE 09 — ANSWER SPINE: CRITICISMS, REPLIES, RESIDUAL PROBLEMS AND THE GRADED VERDICT

OBJECTION, REPLY, RESIDUAL, VERDICT · THE THIRD MOVE CARRIES THE MARKS · SIX STANDING CRITICISMS · DIAGNOSIS SEPARATED FROM REMEDY · GRADED VERDICT NAMES ITS AXIS · A STATE'S RECORD REFUTES NO THEORY

State the objection in its strongest form → Give the reply the doctrine actually possesses → Name the residual problem that survives → Run the pre-submission trap check → Close with a graded verdict that names its axis

THE LEDGER OF SIX CRITICISMS

- Stateless order is unworkable, history is reduced to economics, and revolution produces dictatorship.
- Social ownership destroys liberty, equality suppresses difference, and all three doctrines are utopian.
- Each criticism is paired with the strongest reply the doctrine actually possesses and with the residual problem that survives it.

THE PRE-SUBMISSION TRAP CHECK

- Anarchism is not chaos, anarchists do not reject all organisation, and not all anarchists are collectivists.
- Marxism is not equality of income, base and superstructure is not a mechanical one-way cause, and the three-step formula is not Marx's own.
- Socialism is not state ownership and not a synonym for communism, and no statute, scheme or cooperative proves a doctrine true.

GRADED VERDICTS AND THE ANSWER SPINE

- Separate what an analysis still explains from what it failed to predict and from what its institutional record forecloses.
- Bring the internal rival before the external one, run one fully worked objection, reply and residual, and close with a conditional verdict.
- The closing sentence must name the axis on which the judgment turns, since a verdict without a stated criterion is an assertion.

MECHANISM / VERDICT — A reply that removes an objection entirely produces an unqualified verdict, which is exactly what a critical directive does not reward; naming what the reply leaves standing is what converts exposition into evaluation.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: A critical-examination stem is scored on the third move rather than the second: state the objection in its strongest form, give the best reply the doctrine actually possesses, and then name the residual problem that survives the reply and grades the final verdict.
