How to use them: Frame the answer through Union control over State legislation; define Article 304, connect Article 200 with Article 201 to explain the mechanism, and use Union for the decisive comparison or qualification.

Union control over State legislation denotes the constitutional rules and institutional links organised around Prior presidential sanction. Union control over State legislation operates through Articles 200 and 201, connected with Current Governor-assent control. The decisive contrast is between Prior presidential sanction and Prior presidential sanction. The exam-safe limitation is that prior presidential sanction.

Union control over State legislation

Union control can arise before introduction, through reservation, or through presidential consideration.

Prior presidential sanction

- [FACT] Some State Bills require previous presidential sanction, including a Bill imposing a reasonable restriction under Article 304(b).
- [FACT] A State Bill affecting High Court powers so as to endanger its constitutional position must be reserved under the proviso to Article 200.
- [ANALYSIS] Prior sanction and reservation are distinct: one is permission before legislative introduction or consideration; the other sends a passed Bill for presidential decision.

Articles 200 and 201

- [FACT] A Governor presented with a State Bill acts through the constitutional options of assent, withholding, return of a non-Money Bill, or reservation for the President as applicable.
- [FACT] Under Article 201 the President may assent or withhold assent; for a non-Money Bill the President may direct return through the Governor for reconsideration.
- [FACT] If the State legislature passes the returned Bill again, Article 201 does not impose the Article 200-style obligation that assent must follow.

Current Governor-assent control

- [CURRENT] The 20 November 2025 advisory opinion rejects judicially fixed timelines and deemed assent.
- [CURRENT] Prolonged, unexplained and indefinite inaction remains open to limited review; a court may require action without choosing the constitutional option.

SESSION 5 - FEDERAL SUPREMACY AND HARMONIOUS CONSTRUCTION

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Federal supremacy and harmonious construction operates through Pith and substance What is the law's true nature and dominant character?

Technical definition: Federal supremacy and harmonious construction denotes the constitutional rules and institutional links organised around Doctrine Test Consequence.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Federal supremacy is constitutionally authorised but should be used only after competence and reconciliation analysis, not as a presumption that every Union law displaces State law.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Federal supremacy
- harmonious construction
- Territorial nexus
- pith and substance
- Colourable legislation
- 2019 PYQ thesis

How to use them: Frame the answer through Federal supremacy; define harmonious construction, connect Territorial nexus with pith and substance to explain the mechanism, and use Colourable legislation for the decisive comparison or qualification.

Federal supremacy and harmonious construction denotes the constitutional rules and institutional links organised around Doctrine Test Consequence. Federal supremacy and harmonious construction operates through Pith and substance What is the law's true nature and dominant character? Incidental encroachment does not invalidate competence, connected with Harmonious construction Can both entries/laws receive meaningful operation?

Reconciliation is preferred. The operative mechanism matters because federal supremacy Does an irreconcilable constitutional priority remain? Union predominance operates as tie-breaker. Its principal consequence is that repugnancy Are Union and State laws on a Concurrent matter directly inconsistent? Article 254 ordinarily gives Union law priority. The decisive contrast is between Colourable legislation Is competence being evaded by form? Indirect transgression is invalid and Territorial nexus Is there a real connection to the State? Supports extra-territorial effect of State law. The exam-safe limitation is that [FACT] A State law repugnant to parliamentary law on a Concurrent subject is void to the extent of repugnancy.

Doctrines that manage legislative overlap

Overlap doctrines protect both jurisdictions before Union predominance resolves an irreconcilable conflict.

Doctrine	Test	Consequence
Pith and substance	What is the law's true nature and dominant character?	Incidental encroachment does not invalidate competence
Harmonious construction	Can both entries/laws receive meaningful operation?	Reconciliation is preferred
Federal supremacy	Does an irreconcilable constitutional priority remain?	Union predominance operates as tie-breaker
Repugnancy	Are Union and State laws on a Concurrent matter directly inconsistent?	Article 254 ordinarily gives Union law priority
Colourable legislation	Is competence being evaded by form?	Indirect transgression is invalid
Territorial nexus	Is there a real connection to the State?	Supports extra-territorial effect of State law

Article 254

- [FACT] A State law repugnant to parliamentary law on a Concurrent subject is void to the extent of repugnancy.
- [FACT] A reserved State law receiving Presidential assent may prevail in that State.
- [FACT] Parliament may later add to, amend, vary or repeal that State law.
- [LIMIT] Article 254 is not the first step in every List dispute. First identify competence and attempt harmonious construction.

2019 PYQ thesis: Harmonious construction is the ordinary preservation rule; federal supremacy is the exceptional last-resort rule. Sarkaria called supremacy a technique to avoid absurdity and resolve conflict.

Eighth-edition doctrine sequence: do not start with repugnancy

1. Identify the law's true nature (pith and substance)
2. Locate the competent legislative entry
3. Test whether any overlap is merely incidental/ancillary
4. Reconcile entries and provisions through harmonious construction
5. If two laws occupy a Concurrent field, test Article 254 repugnancy
6. Apply constitutional Union priority only to the irreconcilable residue

[FACT] Territorial nexus addresses the reach of a State law under Article 245, while pith and substance addresses its subject classification. Colourable legislation tests disguised lack of competence, not political motive.

[ANALYSIS] This sequence protects both levels of government before invoking Union predominance. It turns federal supremacy from a slogan into a constitutionally bounded conflict rule.

[LIMIT] Presidential assent under Article 254(2) cannot cure a State law enacted outside State competence, and Parliament may later override an assented State law.

Answer-writing evidence chain

- Claim: Indian legislative federalism prefers reconciliation before supremacy.
- Named evidence: Articles 245-246 allocate reach and fields; Article 254 resolves Concurrent repugnancy; M. Karunanidhi supplies the conflict inquiry.
- Analysis: Pith and substance and harmonious construction preserve workable regulatory overlap, while Article 254 prevents contradictory commands in the Concurrent field.
- Qualification: Federal supremacy is constitutionally authorised but should be used only after competence and reconciliation analysis, not as a presumption that every Union law displaces State law.

Freedom of trade, commerce and intercourse denotes the constitutional rules and institutional links organised around 301 Trade, commerce and intercourse throughout India shall be free. Freedom of trade, commerce and intercourse operates through 302 Parliament may impose public-interest restrictions, connected with 303(1) Parliament and States generally cannot prefer one State over another. The operative mechanism matters because 303(2) Parliament may depart to address scarcity of goods. Its principal consequence is that 304(a) State tax on imported goods must not discriminate against them vis-a-vis similar local goods. The decisive contrast is between 304(b) State may impose reasonable public-interest restrictions with previous presidential sanction and 307 Parliament may appoint an implementing authority. The exam-safe limitation is that judicial evolution.

Part XIII common-market design

Article 301 Freedom of trade, commerce and intercourse	Article 302 Parliament may restrict in public interest	Article 303 No preference; scarcity exception for Parliament
Article 304(a) State tax must avoid hostile discrimination	Article 304(b) Reasonable restriction with previous presidential sanction	Jindal Stainless No compensatory-tax doctrine; discrimination is central

Part XIII creates a common market while allowing public-interest and non-discriminatory regulation.

Article	Rule
301	Trade, commerce and intercourse throughout India shall be free
302	Parliament may impose public-interest restrictions
303(1)	Parliament and States generally cannot prefer one State over another
303(2)	Parliament may depart to address scarcity of goods
304(a)	State tax on imported goods must not discriminate against them vis-a-vis similar local goods
304(b)	State may impose reasonable public-interest restrictions with previous presidential sanction
307	Parliament may appoint an implementing authority

Judicial evolution

- Atiabari Tea (1961) focused on direct and immediate restrictions.
- Automobile Transport (1962) developed a regulatory/compensatory approach.
- [FACT] Jindal Stainless (2016, nine judges) rejected the compensatory-tax doctrine as lacking textual foundation.
- [FACT] Article 301 does not create a tax-free market; the central tax question is hostile or protectionist discrimination under Article 304(a).
- [FACT] Article 304(a) and 304(b) operate distinctly; public-interest restriction cannot cure a discriminatory tax.
- [ANALYSIS] GST supplied fiscal integration that Part XIII litigation alone could not administratively achieve.

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Commissions on Centre-State relations denotes the constitutional rules and institutional links organised around Body Orientation High-yield recommendations.

Technical definition: Technically, Commissions on Centre-State relations is analysed by relating Core verdict to Rajamannar Committee (1969), then testing the relationship through Strong State autonomy and Curtail Union power, strengthen ISC, review Articles 356-357.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Centre-State relations have shifted from plan-era bargaining to a mixed Finance Commission-GST-NITI architecture, while administrative and legislative disputes have intensified.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Commissions on Centre-State relations
- Core verdict
- Rajamannar Committee (1969)
- Strong State autonomy
- Curtail Union power, strengthen ISC, review Articles 356-357
- Sarkaria Commission (1983-88)

How to use them: Frame the answer through Commissions on Centre-State relations; define Core verdict, connect Rajamannar Committee (1969) with Strong State autonomy to explain the mechanism, and use Curtail Union power, strengthen ISC, review Articles 356-357 for the decisive comparison or qualification.

Commissions on Centre-State relations denotes the constitutional rules and institutional links organised around Body Orientation High-yield recommendations. Commissions on Centre-State relations operates through Rajamannar Committee (1969) Strong State autonomy Curtail Union power, strengthen ISC, review Articles 356-357, connected with Trust-building reform stack. The operative mechanism matters because convene the Inter-State Council regularly with published follow-up. Its principal consequence is that consult States before major Concurrent-field legislation. The decisive contrast is between Use Governors as neutral constitutional heads, with reasoned and prompt decisions and Protect predictable tax devolution and improve transparency of cesses/surcharges. The exam-safe limitation is that make centrally sponsored schemes flexible and jointly designed.

Body	Orientation	High-yield recommendations
Rajamannar Committee (1969)	Strong State autonomy	Curtail Union power, strengthen ISC, review Articles 356-357
Sarkaria Commission (1983-88)	Cooperative federalism within a strong Union	Article 356 last resort; neutral Governors; consult States on Concurrent laws; permanent ISC
Punchhi Commission (2007-10)	Modernise intergovernmental machinery	Governor norms, stronger ISC, localised emergency concept, clearer consultation

Trust-building answer spine

Trust is an institutional product of diagnosis, constitutional anchoring, evidence, commission guidance and a balanced reform.

1. Convene the Inter-State Council regularly with published follow-up.
2. Consult States before major Concurrent-field legislation.
3. Use Governors as neutral constitutional heads, with reasoned and prompt decisions.
4. Protect predictable tax devolution and improve transparency of cesses/surcharges.
5. Make centrally sponsored schemes flexible and jointly designed.
6. Strengthen GST dispute resolution and preserve consensus practice.
7. Create shared river-basin data and enforceable implementation institutions.
8. Clarify CBI accountability and consent protocols by statute.

Core verdict: Trust is not goodwill. It is the repeated institutional experience that consultation occurs before compulsion, reasons accompany discretion, and agreed fiscal rules are honoured.

Do not turn a Bill into current law.

PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE

Routed PYQs with model solutions

PYQ 1 - UPSC GS-II 2019, Q4 - direct

Question: From the resolution of contentious issues regarding distribution of legislative powers by the courts, "Principle of Federal Supremacy" and "Harmonious Construction" have emerged. Explain. 10 marks | 150 words

Model solution

The Seventh Schedule distributes legislative fields, but modern laws overlap. Courts therefore reconcile entries before invalidating legislation.

Harmonious construction gives broad meaning to each entry while preserving meaningful operation of both Union and State fields. Pith and substance supports this approach: if a law's dominant character lies within competence, incidental encroachment survives.

Federal supremacy operates when reconciliation fails. Article 246 gives Union List predominance through its notwithstanding clause. On a Concurrent subject, Article 254 ordinarily makes parliamentary law prevail over repugnant State law. A State law reserved for and receiving Presidential assent may operate within that State, but Parliament can subsequently override it.

The doctrines are therefore sequential, not contradictory. Harmonious construction protects federal autonomy; supremacy prevents legal paralysis. Sarkaria described federal supremacy as a technique to avoid absurdity and resolve conflict.

Thus, Indian legislative federalism is accommodative in interpretation but Union-weighted at the point of irreconcilable conflict.

PYQ 2 - UPSC GS-II 2020, Q11 - direct

Question: The Indian Constitution exhibits centralising tendencies to maintain unity and integrity of the nation. Elucidate in the perspective of the Epidemic Diseases Act, 1897, the Disaster Management Act, 2005 and the recently passed Farm Acts. 15 marks | 250 words

Model solution

India's holding-together federation gives the Union exceptional capacity to coordinate national crises and markets. Recent legislation showed both the necessity and federal cost of that design.

During COVID-19, the Union used the Disaster Management Act, 2005 for nationwide directions, while the Epidemic Diseases Act, 1897 operated through State measures. Uniform restrictions, procurement and movement rules supplied scale but also compressed State policy space in public health, a State subject.

The 2020 Farm Acts relied substantially on Concurrent List Entry 33 concerning trade in foodstuffs, yet affected agriculture and markets associated with State List Entries 14 and 28. States argued that legal competence was being used without adequate federal consultation. The Acts were repealed in 2021, demonstrating political federalism and mobilisation.

Other centralising tools include residuary power, Articles 249, 250, 253 and 356, All-India Services, conditional schemes and fiscal dependence. However, centralisation is not unlimited: S.R. Bommai makes federalism Basic Structure; courts apply pith and substance; GST requires shared institutions; States retain electoral and implementation power.

Therefore, national coordination may justify central legislation, but legitimacy requires necessity, clear List competence, consultation and proportionality. Unity is strengthened when Union capacity works through cooperative institutions rather than treating States as implementing agencies.

PYQ 3 - UPSC GS-II 2021, Q11 - supporting

Question: The jurisdiction of the Central Bureau of Investigation regarding lodging an FIR and conducting a probe within a particular State is being questioned by various States. However, the power of States to withhold consent to the CBI is not absolute. Explain with special reference to the federal character of India. 15 marks | 250 words

Model solution

Police is a State subject, while the CBI exercises investigative powers through the Delhi Special Police Establishment Act, 1946. Section 6 therefore requires State consent for DSPE jurisdiction within a State.

General consent permits routine registration; withdrawal ordinarily requires case-specific consent for fresh cases. This is a real federal safeguard against an unrestricted parallel central police force.

The safeguard is not absolute. The Supreme Court under Article 32 and High Courts under Article 226 may order a CBI probe without State consent to secure fair investigation and fundamental rights. Withdrawal also does not automatically nullify every validly commenced case, and territorial or accused-specific questions can affect jurisdiction.

In State of West Bengal v. Union of India (2024), the Supreme Court rejected the Union's preliminary objection and allowed the State's Article 131 suit to proceed; it did not finally decide all substantive claims.

The federal balance requires State police autonomy, national coordination for cross-border corruption and judicial power where local investigation is compromised. A dedicated CBI statute, transparent consent protocols and independent appointment/accountability mechanisms would reduce political confrontation.

Thus, consent is constitutionally significant statutory federalism, but it cannot override constitutional-court power.

PYQ 4 - UPSC GS-II 2024, Q13 - direct

Question: What changes has the Union Government recently introduced in the domain of Centre-State relations? Suggest measures to be adopted to build the trust between the Centre and the States and for strengthening federalism. 15 marks | 250 words

Model solution

Centre-State relations have shifted from plan-era bargaining to a mixed Finance Commission-GST-NITI architecture, while administrative and legislative disputes have intensified.

Changes: The Planning Commission was replaced by NITI Aayog; the 14th Finance Commission increased untied devolution, followed by 41% under later Commissions. GST pooled indirect-tax autonomy through a constitutional Council. Centrally sponsored schemes, cesses and surcharges, borrowing conditions and central agencies continue to shape State choices. Governor assent, CBI consent and Concurrent-field legislation have become recurrent flashpoints.

Trust measures:

1. Convene the Inter-State Council regularly and publish implementation reports.
2. Consult States before major Concurrent List laws.
3. Follow Sarkaria/Punchhi norms for politically neutral Governors and reasoned action.
4. Reduce reliance on cesses outside the divisible pool and ensure predictable transfers.
5. Design schemes jointly with flexible State components.
6. Use consensus and a credible dispute process in the GST Council.
7. Clarify CBI powers and consent through comprehensive legislation.
8. Build shared river-basin data and compliance institutions.

S.R. Bommai makes federalism Basic Structure, but judicial protection alone cannot create cooperation.

Trust is an institutional output: States must repeatedly experience consultation before compulsion, fiscal predictability and neutral use of constitutional offices.

PYQ 5 - UPSC Prelims 2024, Q75 - official key

Question: Which one of the following statements is correct as per the Constitution of India?

A. Inter-State trade and commerce is a State subject under the State List. B. Inter-State migration is a State subject under the State List. C. Inter-State quarantine is a Union subject under the Union List. D. Corporation tax is a State subject under the State List.

Answer: C. OFFICIAL UPSC SET-A KEY.

Union List Entry 81 covers inter-State migration and inter-State quarantine; Entry 42 covers inter-State trade and commerce; corporation tax is also a Union subject.

PYQ 6 - UPSC GS-II 2025, Q14 - direct

Question: Examine the evolving pattern of Centre-State financial relations in the context of planned development in India. How far have the recent reforms impacted the fiscal federalism in India? 15 marks | 250 words

Model solution

Centre-State finance has evolved from discretionary plan bargaining toward a more rules-based but still Union-dependent architecture.

During planned development, the Planning Commission and National Development Council shaped plan assistance, while Article 282 grants allowed broad executive discretion. The Finance Commission handled constitutional tax devolution and grants, producing parallel transfer channels.

Post-2015 reforms changed this pattern. NITI Aayog replaced the Planning Commission without assuming devolution powers. The 14th Finance Commission raised the States' tax share to 42%; later Commissions use 41%. GST pooled Union and State indirect taxes through Articles 246A, 269A and 279A, creating a common market and shared decision forum. The 16th Finance Commission retains 41% for 2026-31 and balances income distance with population, demographic, ecological and GDP-contribution criteria.

Reforms improved transparency, untied resources and institutional bargaining. Mohit Minerals preserves legislative autonomy by treating GST Council recommendations as non-binding.

However, vertical imbalance persists. Cesses and surcharges remain outside the divisible pool; centrally sponsored schemes impose conditions; GST narrowed independent rate space; Article 293 borrowing consent creates leverage.

Thus, fiscal federalism is more rules-based but not fiscally equal. Protecting the divisible pool, predictable schemes, robust GST dispute resolution and stronger State revenue capacity are necessary for meaningful autonomy.

Question: Consider the following statements:

Statement I: In India, State Governments have no power for making rules for grant of concessions in respect of extraction of minor minerals even though such minerals are located in their territories. Statement II: In India, the Central Government has the power to notify minor minerals under the relevant law.

Which one of the following is correct?

A. Both statements are correct and Statement II explains Statement I B. Both statements are correct but Statement II does not explain Statement I C. Statement I is correct but Statement II is not correct D. Statement I is not correct but Statement II is correct

Answer: D. OFFICIAL UPSC SET-A KEY.

M1. 10 marks | 150 words

Question: Explain the constitutional relationship between Articles 256, 257, 365 and 356. Why is non-compliance with Union directions not equivalent to automatic President's Rule?

Model solution

Articles 256 and 257 coordinate executive power in a federation with shared implementation.

Article 256 requires States to ensure compliance with parliamentary and applicable laws and permits Union directions for that purpose. Article 257 requires State executive power not to impede Union executive power and permits specified directions concerning national/military communications and railway protection.

Article 365 provides that failure to comply with Union directions may permit the President to hold that State government cannot be carried on according to the Constitution. It therefore supplies a relevant constitutional inference.

However, it does not automatically impose President's Rule. Article 356 still requires a presidential satisfaction based on relevant material, parliamentary approval and compliance with temporal limits. S.R. Bommai makes the proclamation judicially reviewable and ordinarily protects floor determination of political majority.

Thus, Articles 256-257 enable coordination, Article 365 marks serious non-compliance, and Article 356 supplies the exceptional remedy. Treating the sequence as automatic would convert federal directions into unrestricted Union control.

M2. 10 marks | 150 words

Question: Distinguish the Inter-State Council, Zonal Councils, North Eastern Council and NITI Aayog by source, composition logic and function.

Model solution

These bodies all facilitate coordination but have different legal foundations.

The Inter-State Council is contemplated by Article 263 and was established by presidential order in 1990. Chaired by the Prime Minister, it advises on disputes and common policy; its recommendations are not binding.

The five Zonal Councils are statutory bodies under the States Reorganisation Act, 1956. Chaired by the Union Home Minister, they address regional administrative and inter-State issues.

The North Eastern Council is a separate statutory institution under the NEC Act, 1971; it is not a sixth Zonal Council.

NITI Aayog was created by executive resolution in 2015. It is a policy and development forum, not a constitutional or statutory body and not a substitute for the Finance Commission.

Thus, "intergovernmental body" does not establish legal status. Article, statute and executive resolution must be separately identified.

Question: Examine whether All-India Services strengthen administrative unity at an excessive cost to State autonomy.

Model solution

Article 312 permits common services for Union and States after a Rajya Sabha national-interest resolution. IAS, IPS and Indian Forest Service embody India's integrated administrative federalism.

Benefits: Common recruitment and training establish professional standards, enable movement of experience across States and Union, and provide continuity during crises. Officers serving State cadres possess local administrative knowledge while connecting implementation to national law and programmes. Ambedkar's "strategic posts" rationale remains relevant for a diverse federation.

Autonomy costs: Cadre allocation, deputation, disciplinary control and central empanelment can create divided accountability. States may perceive officer shortages or recall/deputation disputes as Union pressure. Uniform career incentives can also weaken responsiveness to local political priorities.

The design is not inherently anti-federal because officers work under State governments in State posts and new services require Rajya Sabha approval. The problem arises when shared control becomes unilateral command.

Reform should use transparent deputation rules, meaningful State consultation, predictable cadre strength, protection against partisan transfer, and joint performance frameworks. Specialised State services should be strengthened rather than displaced.

Thus, All-India Services are a federal bridge, not merely a centralising instrument. Their legitimacy depends on genuinely shared personnel governance.

Question: Cesses, surcharges and centrally sponsored schemes can re-centralise fiscal federalism even when tax devolution remains high. Analyse.

Model solution

The Finance Commission may recommend a substantial State share, but effective fiscal autonomy depends on the base being shared and the conditions attached to other transfers.

Article 270 distributes the divisible pool, while Article 271 permits Union-purpose surcharges whose proceeds are not shareable. Cesses are similarly commonly kept outside the divisible pool. Growth in these instruments can reduce the proportion of gross Union tax revenue subject to the stated devolution percentage.

Centrally sponsored schemes support national priorities and equal citizenship, but detailed guidelines, matching contributions and fragmented funding may constrain State budgeting. States carry major responsibilities in health, agriculture, police and local services, so conditional transfers can convert them into implementation agencies.

Counterarguments matter. Cesses can finance identifiable national externalities; schemes can reduce interstate inequality; and the 16th Finance Commission retains 41% rules-based vertical devolution. State capacity and accountability also justify performance conditions.

The corrective is not abolition but transparency and consent: sunset clauses and reporting for cesses, a protected divisible-pool base, fewer and more flexible schemes, predictable Union shares, outcome-based rather than input-heavy conditions, and regular ISC/GST consultation.

Thus, formal devolution and practical autonomy can diverge. Fiscal federalism must be evaluated through total transfer design, not the headline percentage alone.

Question: Critically evaluate the constitutional and institutional framework for inter-State river-water disputes in India.

Model solution

River basins ignore political boundaries, making water disputes a test of federal adjudication, scientific capacity and political compliance.

Article 262 authorises Parliament to provide adjudication and exclude court jurisdiction. The Inter-State River Water Disputes Act, 1956 creates dispute-specific tribunals, while the River Boards Act, 1956 envisages cooperative basin management.

Strengths: Tribunals provide specialised fact-finding; awards are final and binding under statute; jurisdiction exclusion can prevent parallel litigation; Union facilitation offers a national forum.

Weaknesses: Delays occur in negotiation, tribunal creation, evidence and decision. States dispute flow data, project effects and distress-year sharing. Publication and implementation may generate new litigation. Ad-hoc tribunals lose institutional memory, and climate change makes historical averages less reliable.

The 2019 Amendment Bill proposed a dispute-resolution committee and permanent tribunal with benches, but it passed only Lok Sabha and is not current law as of 24 August 2026.

Reform requires a permanent professional secretariat even if benches remain dispute-specific, independent basin data, time-bound stages, ecological-flow and climate scenarios, transparent distress-sharing formulas, compliance monitoring and stronger river-basin organisations. Courts should retain narrow constitutional review while respecting Article 262's jurisdiction design.

Thus, adjudication is necessary but insufficient. Durable settlement requires continuous cooperative basin governance before and after an award.

Question: The constitutional freedom of trade under Part XIII is a federal common-market guarantee, not a promise of tax-free commerce. Discuss with case law.

Model solution

Articles 301-307 seek an integrated economic union while preserving regulatory and fiscal space.

Article 301 declares trade, commerce and intercourse throughout India free. Article 302 permits Parliament to impose public-interest restrictions. Article 303 generally bars preference or discrimination between States, with a parliamentary scarcity exception. States may levy non-discriminatory taxes under Article 304(a) and impose reasonable public-interest restrictions under Article 304(b) with previous presidential sanction.

Early cases complicated the framework. Atiabari Tea focused on measures directly and immediately restricting trade. Automobile Transport developed a compensatory-tax doctrine, allowing levies linked to trading facilities.

In Jindal Stainless (2016), a nine-judge bench rejected compensatory tax as lacking constitutional text. Article 301 does not create freedom from taxation. The central question for a State tax is hostile or protectionist discrimination under Article 304(a). Clauses (a) and (b) are distinct; a discriminatory tax cannot be saved merely as a reasonable restriction.

GST later supplied a constitutional fiscal mechanism for a common market through Articles 246A, 269A and 279A, though State participation and Council bargaining remain federal features.

Therefore, Part XIII balances integration with autonomy. It prohibits economic protectionism, not every tax or regulation. The modern test is non-discrimination, constitutional competence and procedural compliance.

Question: "The principal weakness of Centre-State relations is institutional under-use rather than constitutional scarcity." Evaluate and suggest reforms.

Model solution

The Constitution supplies extensive mechanisms: divided legislative fields, Rajya Sabha safeguards, Inter-State Council, Finance Commission, GST Council, Article 131 adjudication, water tribunals, mutual delegation and commission-developed conventions. Yet conflict persists because these mechanisms are irregularly or asymmetrically used.

The full Inter-State Council meets infrequently, while major Concurrent legislation may proceed without structured State consultation. Governor assent and government-formation disputes turn convention into litigation. Cesses and scheme conditions weaken the practical effect of devolution. Water tribunals suffer delay and implementation gaps. CBI general-consent withdrawals reveal distrust in central agencies.

However, constitutional design also contributes. Residuary power, Article 253, Article 356, Governor appointment, Article 293 borrowing consent and vertical fiscal imbalance give the Union superior leverage. Institutional activation alone cannot erase this structural tilt.

Reform should therefore combine use and redesign: regular ISC meetings with tracked responses; mandatory consultation protocols for Concurrent laws; neutral Governor conventions and reasoned decisions; transparent cesses and flexible schemes; a GST dispute mechanism; shared river data and implementation bodies; comprehensive CBI legislation; and joint All-India Service governance.

Sarkaria and Punchhi already provide much of this menu. S.R. Bommai and Mohit Minerals show that courts can protect boundaries but cannot substitute for political dialogue.

The proposition is substantially correct: India has enough forums, but insufficient habits of consultation. Trust requires repeated, rule-bound use of institutions while correcting the Union's strongest structural asymmetries.
