PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE

[FACT] Audited local routing identifies two direct Prelims demands and one cross-owned Mains demand relevant to this package.

[LIMIT] The routed ledgers preserve neutral demand summaries, not full official wording. No wording is reconstructed. No official answer letter is claimed where the ledger does not record it.

Caption: The package solves the concepts without inventing missing official keys or wording.

Routed Prelims PYQ 1 - 2022 GS-I Q16

Verified neutral demand: Anti-defection provisions for nominated legislators.

Source status: Key unavailable locally; exact official wording is not reconstructed.

Concept resolution - not an officially verified answer letter

- [FACT] A nominated member who is already a party member at nomination is deemed to belong to that party.
- [FACT] A nominated member who is not then a party member may join a party before expiry of six months from taking the seat.
- [FACT] Joining after that six-month period triggers paragraph 2(3) disqualification.
- [LIMIT] The rule differs from an independent elected member, who is disqualified on joining any party after election.

Elimination method: Reject any statement saying “never”, “only after six months”, or giving an independent member the six-month window.

Confidence: High on the doctrine; no official option letter claimed.

Routed Prelims PYQ 2 - 2025 GS-I Q88

Verified neutral demand: Tenth Schedule disqualification and express mention of “political party”.

Source status: Official Set-A key file is present locally, but the routed ledger does not record the answer letter; no letter is claimed.

Concept resolution

- [FACT] Paragraph 2 repeatedly uses political party: the party that set up the elected candidate, the party membership voluntarily given up, and the party/person/authority issuing a direction.
- [FACT] Paragraph 1 separately defines legislature party and original political party.
- [FACT] Subhash Desai confirms that the political party, not a factional legislature party, appoints the authorised Whip and Leader.
- [LIMIT] The phrase “political party” does not mean the ECI becomes the paragraph 6 adjudicator.

Elimination method: Distinguish organisational party authority from the House-level group and from ECI's separate Symbols Order function.

Routed Mains PYQ - 2023 GS-II Q5

Verified neutral demand: Discuss the role of Presiding Officers of State legislatures in maintaining order and impartial conduct of business. 10 marks | 150 words

Model solution

Thesis: [FACT] State presiding officers are procedural guardians whose powers over debate, discipline, voting and defection make impartiality a constitutional operating condition.

1. [CLAIM] They maintain orderly deliberation. [EVIDENCE] Articles 178-185 create the offices; House rules govern recognition, admissibility, discipline and voting. [ANALYSIS] fair allocation of speaking and motion time protects majority decision and opposition scrutiny. [LIMIT] broad procedural discretion requires consistent reasons.
2. [CLAIM] They perform high-impact constitutional functions. [EVIDENCE] Article 189 supplies the casting vote, Article 199 involves Money Bill certification, and paragraph 6 of the Tenth Schedule assigns defection adjudication. [ANALYSIS] these decisions can affect bicameral scrutiny and government survival. [LIMIT] political membership creates an appearance-of-bias risk.
3. [CLAIM] Judicial control supports impartiality. [EVIDENCE] Kihoto Hollohan treats the Speaker as a reviewable tribunal; Keisham requires reasonable-time decision-making. [ANALYSIS] legality and timeliness prevent procedure from becoming partisan strategy. [LIMIT] the proposed independent tribunal is not enacted.

Verdict: Impartiality should be institutionalised through reasoned rulings, equal procedure, timely decisions and neutral defection adjudication, not left to personal convention alone.

Why this earns marks: It connects functions to impartiality, uses Articles and cases, and avoids a generic list of Speaker powers.

M1. Grounds and Member Types (10 marks, 150 words)

Question: Explain the grounds of disqualification under the Tenth Schedule and the distinct treatment of independent and nominated members.

Model solution

Thesis: [FACT] Paragraph 2 uses different rules because party-ticket, independent and nominated members enter the House with different electoral relationships.

1. [CLAIM] A party member faces two grounds. [EVIDENCE] Paragraph 2(1)(a) covers voluntarily giving up membership; Ravi S. Naik permits inference from conduct. Paragraph 2(1)(b) covers contrary voting/abstention without prior permission and without condonation within 15 days. [ANALYSIS] The first protects continuing allegiance; the second enforces authorised voting discipline. [LIMIT] every speech or dissent is not a whip breach.
2. [CLAIM] An independent member has the strictest joining rule. [EVIDENCE] Paragraph 2(2) disqualifies on joining any party after election. [ANALYSIS] The voter chose a non-party candidate. [LIMIT] no six-month window exists.
3. [CLAIM] A nominated member receives a limited choice period. [EVIDENCE] Paragraph 2(3) disqualifies only for joining after six months from taking the seat. [ANALYSIS] The text permits early political alignment. [LIMIT] the clock does not run from nomination.

Verdict: The Schedule protects the electoral identity through category-specific rules rather than one universal prohibition.

Why this earns marks: It states every ground, supplies the 15-day and six-month controls, and uses Ravi S. Naik with a qualification.

M2. Political Party and Legislature Party (10 marks, 150 words)

Question: Distinguish “political party” from “legislature party” under the Tenth Schedule. Why does the distinction matter?

Model solution

Thesis: [FACT] A political party is the organisational/electoral entity; a legislature party is its group of members within a particular House.

- [CLAIM] Electoral belonging flows from the political party. [EVIDENCE] Paragraph 2 deems an elected member to belong to the party that set the member up. [ANALYSIS] Voter mandate cannot be rewritten only by House-level numbers. [LIMIT] membership disputes still require evidence.
- [CLAIM] Voting authority flows from the political party. [EVIDENCE] Paragraph 2(1)(b) recognises its direction or an authorised person's direction; Subhash Desai holds that the political party appoints the Whip and Leader. [ANALYSIS] A factional legislature majority cannot manufacture a rival whip. [LIMIT] the Speaker must identify authorisation through inquiry and party rules.
- [CLAIM] Legislature-party numbers matter in paragraph 4. [EVIDENCE] two-thirds agreement triggers the merger deeming rule. [ANALYSIS] This creates the present organisational-versus-numerical controversy. [LIMIT] two-thirds is not a free-standing right to defect.

Verdict: The distinction protects party mandate while exposing the unresolved tension in the merger exception.

Why this earns marks: It defines, applies and qualifies the distinction through both paragraph 2 and paragraph 4.

M3. Speaker as Adjudicator (10 marks, 150 words)

Question: Evaluate the constitutional position of the Speaker as the adjudicator of defection petitions.

Model solution

Thesis: [FACT] Paragraph 6 entrusts the Speaker/Chairman with first-instance decision, but judicial doctrine treats that role as adjudicatory rather than politically immune.

1. [CLAIM] The arrangement keeps the question within the House. [EVIDENCE] Paragraph 6 declares the decision final and provides a House-elected substitute when the Speaker is personally concerned. [ANALYSIS] institutional familiarity may aid speed. [LIMIT] continued party affiliation creates perceived bias.
2. [CLAIM] Finality is constitutionally controlled. [EVIDENCE] Kihoto Hollohan classifies the Speaker as a tribunal and permits review for constitutional breach, mala fides, natural-justice violation and perversity. [ANALYSIS] legality survives the finality clause. [LIMIT] review is not a full appeal.
3. [CLAIM] delay is a structural weakness. [EVIDENCE] Keisham identifies an ordinary three-month outer limit and proposes an independent tribunal. [ANALYSIS] delayed justice can alter government survival. [LIMIT] no express Schedule deadline or tribunal amendment exists.

Verdict: The current model is legally reviewable but institutionally fragile; neutral, time-bound adjudication is the stronger design.

Why this earns marks: It balances constitutional text, judicial control, practical bias and reform within the word limit.

M4. Kihoto and Judicial Review (15 marks, 250 words)

Question: “Kihoto Hollohan saved the anti-defection law from both invalidation and unaccountability.” Discuss.

Model solution

Thesis: [FACT] Kihoto upheld the central Tenth Schedule design while invalidating its attempted total ouster of courts, producing a controlled compromise between House adjudication and constitutional review.

Saved from invalidation

- [CLAIM] The majority rejected the argument that vesting power in the Speaker necessarily destroyed the basic structure. [EVIDENCE] It emphasised the high constitutional office and retained paragraph 6. [ANALYSIS] This preserved the 52nd Amendment's anti-defection mechanism. [LIMIT] the minority's bias concern later informed reform debate.

Saved from unaccountability

- [CLAIM] Paragraph 7 could not validly exclude Supreme Court/High Court jurisdiction. [EVIDENCE] It affected Articles 136, 226 and 227 but lacked ratification by half the States under Article 368(2). [ANALYSIS] amendment procedure protected federal participation and judicial review. [LIMIT] paragraph 7 remains printed but legally invalid.
- [CLAIM] The Speaker is a tribunal. [EVIDENCE] Review survives for constitutional mandate violation, mala fides, natural-justice breach and perversity. [ANALYSIS] a political office exercising judicial power must give a legally defensible order. [LIMIT] review is jurisdictional, not a routine merits appeal.
- [CLAIM] First-instance authority remains with the Speaker. [EVIDENCE] ordinary quia timet/interlocutory intervention is restricted. [ANALYSIS] this respects constitutional allocation. [LIMIT] Keisham later clarifies that courts may aid prompt decision against inaction.

Verdict: Kihoto did not perfect the law; it constitutionalised accountability around a structurally partisan decider. Later delay cases expose why judicial review is necessary but not sufficient.

Why this earns marks: It answers both halves of the quotation, explains ratification, review grounds and timing, and adds a measured limitation.

M5. Merger Exception (15 marks, 250 words)

Question: “The merger exception risks converting a prohibition on defection into a numerical licence for wholesale defection.” Critically examine.

Model solution

Thesis: [FACT] Paragraph 4 protects genuine party merger, but its two-thirds deeming rule can be used to present coordinated legislative migration as constitutional realignment.

Why protection exists

- [CLAIM] Parties may genuinely reorganise. [EVIDENCE] Paragraph 4 protects members accepting another/new party and those rejecting the merger and functioning separately. [ANALYSIS] A rigid individual-only rule could punish authentic collective realignment. [LIMIT] protection must remain tied to merger, not convenience.

Why it becomes a loophole

- [CLAIM] The threshold rewards group engineering. [EVIDENCE] not less than two-thirds of the legislature party triggers the deeming rule after the one-third split defence was deleted. [ANALYSIS] actors rationally aggregate numbers rather than defect individually. [LIMIT] threshold alone does not answer the original-political-party language.
- [CLAIM] Organisational mandate may be bypassed. [EVIDENCE] Paragraph 4(1) speaks of the original political party merging; Subhash Desai elsewhere stresses political-party authority over mere legislature factions. [ANALYSIS] voter choice is weakened if House numbers can rewrite party identity. [LIMIT] paragraph 4(2)'s deeming fiction creates a genuine interpretive dispute.

- [CLAIM] Rajendra Singh Rana supplies a cautionary analogy. [EVIDENCE] under old paragraph 3, legislator numbers did not themselves prove an original-party split. [ANALYSIS] organisational reality matters. [LIMIT] that case interpreted the now-omitted split rule, not a final modern merger rule.

Reform: Clarify organisational consent/evidence, redesign or remove the defence, and protect only transparent, genuine mergers followed by electoral accountability.

Verdict: Paragraph 4 should remain an exception proved strictly, not a numerical safe harbour presumed automatically.

Why this earns marks: It preserves the textual controversy, gives both rationales and avoids claiming an unverified 2026 settlement.

M6. Resignation and Office Bars (15 marks, 250 words)

Question: Analyse the relationship between resignation, defection disqualification and the office disabilities introduced by the 91st Amendment.

Model solution

Thesis: [FACT] Resignation and disqualification are distinct vacancy mechanisms; the 91st Amendment prevents a person adjudged a defector from immediately converting seat loss into ministerial or remunerative office.

Resignation does not erase prior defection

- [CLAIM] Liability is tied to the defection date. [EVIDENCE] Shrimanth Balasaheb Patil holds that a later resignation does not vaporise the taint or terminate Speaker jurisdiction. [ANALYSIS] otherwise a member could defeat paragraph 2 by timing a resignation. [LIMIT] the Speaker still must prove the ground through fair process.

Disqualification does not create an unlimited election ban

- [CLAIM] The Speaker's power is text-bound. [EVIDENCE] Shrimanth struck down the direction barring re-election until the Assembly term ended. [ANALYSIS] desirability cannot supply a qualification absent from the Constitution/RPA. [LIMIT] re-election does not retrospectively validate the earlier conduct.

91st-Amendment disabilities

- [CLAIM] Articles 75(1B) and 164(1B) bar ministerial appointment; Article 361B bars a remunerative political post. [EVIDENCE] each runs from disqualification until original term expiry or earlier declared re-election. [ANALYSIS] this targets the office reward that can motivate defection. [LIMIT] it is not criminal punishment or lifetime exclusion.

Verdict: The scheme now follows a calibrated sequence: adjudicate past defection despite resignation, vacate the seat, impose temporary office disability, but preserve the electorate's power to return the candidate.

Why this earns marks: It separates three legal mechanisms, uses the controlling case and states the exact duration formula.

M7. Effectiveness and Reform (20 marks, 300 words)

Question: Has the anti-defection law strengthened parliamentary democracy or reduced legislators to agents of party leadership? Critically examine and suggest reforms.

Model solution

Thesis: [ANALYSIS] The Tenth Schedule strengthened government stability and party-linked electoral accountability, but its broad whip, merger incentives and partisan adjudication weakened deliberative representation. It is a necessary principle with an overbroad and poorly enforced design.

Democratic gains

1. [CLAIM] It raises the cost of opportunistic floor-crossing. [EVIDENCE] the 52nd Amendment constitutionalised seat loss for voluntary abandonment and whip defiance. [ANALYSIS] this protects the voter from office-driven mandate trading. [LIMIT] it cannot eliminate incentives.
2. [CLAIM] It stabilises responsible government. [EVIDENCE] confidence arithmetic becomes more predictable. [ANALYSIS] ministries can implement programmes. [LIMIT] stability without scrutiny may become executive dominance.

3. [CLAIM] It recognises political parties as constitutional actors. [EVIDENCE] candidate-setting, membership and directions all refer to the political party. [ANALYSIS] party labels shape electoral choice. [LIMIT] party leadership may be internally undemocratic.

Democratic costs

1. [CLAIM] Broad whips chill judgment. [EVIDENCE] paragraph 2(1)(b) is not confined to confidence or money votes. [ANALYSIS] legislators become numbers rather than deliberators. [LIMIT] core survival votes justify stronger discipline.
2. [CLAIM] Group and resignation routes displace individual defection. [EVIDENCE] paragraph 4 and Shrimanth reveal merger/resignation strategies. [ANALYSIS] the law redirects rather than removes defections. [LIMIT] genuine merger and resignation remain legitimate constitutional possibilities.
3. [CLAIM] Speaker timing can determine political outcomes. [EVIDENCE] Kihoto, Rajendra Singh Rana, Keisham and the 2025 Telangana direction. [ANALYSIS] delayed adjudication can make final review hollow. [LIMIT] complex cases may require justified extension.

Reforms

- narrow binding whips to confidence/no-confidence, money/supply and clearly defined core commitments;
- create an independent tribunal or a carefully insulated President/Governor-on-ECI-advice model;
- enact a fixed deadline with reasoned exceptional extension;
- redesign paragraph 4 to require transparent proof of genuine organisational merger;
- require recorded party authorisation and strengthen internal party democracy;
- preserve judicial review and natural justice.

Verdict: Anti-defection should protect the mandate at moments of government survival, not extinguish representative judgment throughout legislative life.

Why this earns marks: It balances achievement and harm, uses eight named anchors, explains mechanisms and offers matched reforms.

M8. Maharashtra Institutional Conflict (20 marks, 300 words)

Question: Using Subhash Desai, analyse how the Tenth Schedule distributes authority among the political party, legislature party, Speaker, Election Commission, Governor and courts.

Model solution

Thesis: [FACT] Subhash Desai rejects a single-institution solution to a party split. It assigns each institution a legally bounded function and prevents legislative headcount from silently replacing political-party authority.

Political party and legislature party

- [CLAIM] The political party controls authorised legislative direction. [EVIDENCE] it appoints the Whip and Leader; paragraph 2 links the member to the party that set the candidate up. [ANALYSIS] a factional legislature majority cannot self-authorise a rival whip. [LIMIT] the Speaker must determine authentic authority through the party constitution and evidence.
- [CLAIM] Legislature-party numbers remain relevant but not sovereign. [EVIDENCE] paragraph 4 uses the two-thirds threshold. [ANALYSIS] numbers serve a defined constitutional defence. [LIMIT] they do not automatically settle party identity.

Speaker and ECI

- [CLAIM] The Speaker decides paragraph 6 petitions. [EVIDENCE] Kihoto tribunal doctrine and Subhash Desai first-instance rule. [ANALYSIS] membership liability remains House-linked. [LIMIT] decisions must be timely and reviewable.
- [CLAIM] ECI decides the separate Symbols Order dispute. [EVIDENCE] Subhash Desai permits concurrent proceedings. [ANALYSIS] symbol recognition and defection ask different legal questions. [LIMIT] neither result mechanically controls the other.

Governor and courts

- [CLAIM] The Governor may use constitutionally relevant objective material for government formation/floor test, but cannot decide defection. [EVIDENCE] the impugned floor-test call lacked objective material; later government invitation after vacancy was upheld. [ANALYSIS] majority testing cannot become an indirect party-recognition mechanism. [LIMIT] facts and timing matter.
- [CLAIM] Courts police boundaries. [EVIDENCE] judicial review remains; the Court did not ordinarily decide disqualifications first instance. [ANALYSIS] constitutional supervision preserves distributed authority. [LIMIT] Nabam Rebia correctness remains referred.

Verdict: The judgment's enduring principle is jurisdictional discipline: political authority, legislative grouping, membership adjudication, symbol recognition and government formation must interact without collapsing into one another.

Why this earns marks: It addresses all six institutions, uses exact holdings and preserves the unresolved Nabam Rebia issue.
