

SOLVED PRACTICE WORKBOOK

UN and International Institutions: Global Governance - Solved Practice Workbook

UPSC complete learning session | Foundation to advanced | Concepts, evidence, practice and answer writing

Original deterministic study visual; labels are explanatory, not textual quotations.

Source order: repository knowledge -> official current linkage -> clearly marked analysis. No fabricated PYQs or statistics.

CONTENTS / WORKBOOK INDEX

Major learning parts and meaningful subtopics are listed in document order. Page numbers are generated from the final PDF layout; PDF bookmarks mirror the same hierarchy.

UN and International Institutions: Global Governance - Solved Practice Workbook 6

BASIC MCQS / REMEDIATION 6

Q1. Which statement correctly identifies What this global-governance owner holds and how its boundaries are routed?	6
Q2. Which card should be filed under What this global-governance owner holds and how its boundaries are routed in an International Relations answer?	7
Q3. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What this global-governance owner holds and how its boundaries are routed?	8
Q4. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What this global-governance owner holds and how its boundaries are routed?	9
Q5. Which statement correctly identifies The principal organs and the functions that separate them?	10
Q6. Which card should be filed under The principal organs and the functions that separate them in an International Relations answer?	11
Q7. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The principal organs and the functions that separate them?	12
Q8. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The principal organs and the functions that separate them?	13
Q9. Which statement correctly identifies Composition and election under the Charter's own words?	14
Q10. Which card should be filed under Composition and election under the Charter's own words in an International Relations answer?	15
Q11. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Composition and election under the Charter's own words?	16
Q12. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Composition and election under the Charter's own words?	17
Q13. Which statement correctly identifies What a Council decision actually obliges and where its powers come from?	18
Q14. Which card should be filed under What a Council decision actually obliges and where its powers come from in an International Relations answer?	19
Q15. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What a Council decision actually obliges and where its powers come from?	20
Q16. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What a Council decision actually obliges and where its powers come from?	21
Q17. Which statement correctly identifies The voting rule and what the word veto precisely denotes?	22
Q18. Which card should be filed under The voting rule and what the word veto precisely denotes in an International Relations answer?	23
Q19. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The voting rule and what the word veto precisely denotes?	24
Q20. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The voting rule and what the word veto precisely denotes?	25
Q21. Which statement correctly identifies The amendment rule that locks the whole reform debate?	26
Q22. Which card should be filed under The amendment rule that locks the whole reform debate in an International Relations answer?	27
Q23. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The amendment rule that locks the whole reform debate?	28

Q24. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The amendment rule that locks the whole reform debate?	29
Q25. Which statement correctly identifies India's participation record inside the existing structure?	30
Q26. Which card should be filed under India's participation record inside the existing structure in an International Relations answer?	31
Q27. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of India's participation record inside the existing structure?	32
Q28. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about India's participation record inside the existing structure?	32
Q29. Which statement correctly identifies The counter-terrorism committee's coordinating mandate and its expert arm?	33
Q30. Which card should be filed under The counter-terrorism committee's coordinating mandate and its expert arm in an International Relations answer?	34
Q31. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The counter-terrorism committee's coordinating mandate and its expert arm?	35
Q32. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The counter-terrorism committee's coordinating mandate and its expert arm?	36
Q33. Which statement correctly identifies The reform coalition, the process it replaced and the wider demand?	37
Q34. Which card should be filed under The reform coalition, the process it replaced and the wider demand in an International Relations answer?	38
Q35. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The reform coalition, the process it replaced and the wider demand?	39
Q36. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The reform coalition, the process it replaced and the wider demand?	40
Q37. Which statement correctly identifies The coalition's dated statement and the Common African Position?	41
Q38. Which card should be filed under The coalition's dated statement and the Common African Position in an International Relations answer?	41
Q39. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The coalition's dated statement and the Common African Position?	42
Q40. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The coalition's dated statement and the Common African Position?	43
Q41. Which statement correctly identifies India's stated national position at the negotiations?	44
Q42. Which card should be filed under India's stated national position at the negotiations in an International Relations answer?	45
Q43. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of India's stated national position at the negotiations?	46
Q44. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about India's stated national position at the negotiations?	47
Q45. Which statement correctly identifies The negotiation's status and the two things the Assembly has not done?	48
Q46. Which card should be filed under The negotiation's status and the two things the Assembly has not done in an International Relations answer?	49
Q47. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The negotiation's status and the two things the Assembly has not done?	50
Q48. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The negotiation's status and the two things the Assembly has not done?	51
Q49. Which statement correctly identifies The summit outcome document and its two annexes?	52

Q50. Which card should be filed under The summit outcome document and its two annexes in an International Relations answer?	53
Q51. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The summit outcome document and its two annexes?	54
Q52. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The summit outcome document and its two annexes?	55
Q53. Which statement correctly identifies The reform tracks that bypass Charter amendment altogether?	56
Q54. Which card should be filed under The reform tracks that bypass Charter amendment altogether in an International Relations answer?	57
Q55. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The reform tracks that bypass Charter amendment altogether?	58
Q56. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The reform tracks that bypass Charter amendment altogether?	59
Q57. Which statement correctly identifies The Court's advisory function and the exact limit of an advisory opinion?	61
Q58. Which card should be filed under The Court's advisory function and the exact limit of an advisory opinion in an International Relations answer?	62
Q59. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The Court's advisory function and the exact limit of an advisory opinion?	63
Q60. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The Court's advisory function and the exact limit of an advisory opinion?	65
Q61. Which statement correctly identifies The judicial-body distinction and India's own treaty position?	67
Q62. Which card should be filed under The judicial-body distinction and India's own treaty position in an International Relations answer?	68
Q63. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The judicial-body distinction and India's own treaty position?	69
Q64. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The judicial-body distinction and India's own treaty position?	71
Q65. Which statement correctly identifies Peacekeeping principles and what India's contribution does and does not buy?	72
Q66. Which card should be filed under Peacekeeping principles and what India's contribution does and does not buy in an International Relations answer?	73
Q67. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Peacekeeping principles and what India's contribution does and does not buy?	75
Q68. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Peacekeeping principles and what India's contribution does and does not buy?	76
Q69. Which statement correctly identifies The specialised agencies as the effectiveness test?	77
Q70. Which card should be filed under The specialised agencies as the effectiveness test in an International Relations answer?	78
Q71. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The specialised agencies as the effectiveness test?	80
Q72. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The specialised agencies as the effectiveness test?	81
Q73. Which statement correctly identifies Financial and trade governance as the parallel reform dimension?	82
Q74. Which card should be filed under Financial and trade governance as the parallel reform dimension in an International Relations answer?	84
Q75. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Financial and trade governance as the parallel reform dimension?	85

Q76. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Financial and trade governance as the parallel reform dimension? . . .	87
Q77. Which statement correctly identifies Honest question ownership for this global-governance owner?	88
Q78. Which card should be filed under Honest question ownership for this global-governance owner in an International Relations answer?	89
Q79. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Honest question ownership for this global-governance owner?	91
Q80. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Honest question ownership for this global-governance owner? . . .	92
PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE	93
VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT	93
OWNER PYQ LEDGER EXTRACTS	94
PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2024 General Studies Paper II Question 19	99
PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2025 General Studies Paper II Question 20	101
PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2019 General Studies Paper II Question 10	103
PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2020 General Studies Paper II Question 9	105
PYQ DEMAND CARD 5 - 2022 General Studies Paper II Question 20	107
ORIGINAL MAINS 1 - 10 MARKS	109
ORIGINAL MAINS 2 - 10 MARKS	112
ORIGINAL MAINS 3 - 15 MARKS	114
ORIGINAL MAINS 4 - 15 MARKS	116
ORIGINAL MAINS 5 - 20 MARKS	119
ORIGINAL MAINS 6 - 20 MARKS	123

UN and International Institutions: Global Governance - Solved Practice Workbook

BASIC MCQS / REMEDIATION

Q1. Which statement correctly identifies What this global-governance owner holds and how its boundaries are routed?

A. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10.

B. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it.

C. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency.

D. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it.

Answer: A. Explanation: This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q2. Which card should be filed under What this global-governance owner holds and how its boundaries are routed in an International Relations answer?

A. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. B. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. C. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it.

Answer: B. Explanation: This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q3. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What this global-governance owner holds and how its boundaries are routed?

A. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. B. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. C. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change.

Answer: C. Explanation: This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q4. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What this global-governance owner holds and how its boundaries are routed?

A. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. B. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. D. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10.

Answer: D. Explanation: This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q5. Which statement correctly identifies The principal organs and the functions that separate them?

A. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. B. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. C. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. D. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q6. Which card should be filed under The principal organs and the functions that separate them in an International Relations answer?

A. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. B. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. C. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. D. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q7. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The principal organs and the functions that separate them?

A. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. B. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. C. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. D. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q8. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The principal organs and the functions that separate them?

A. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. B. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. D. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q9. Which statement correctly identifies Composition and election under the Charter's own words?

A. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. B. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. D. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist.

Answer: A. Explanation: The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q10. Which card should be filed under Composition and election under the Charter's own words in an International Relations answer?

A. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. B. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. C. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. D. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives.

Answer: B. Explanation: The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q11. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Composition and election under the Charter's own words?

A. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. B. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change.

Answer: C. Explanation: The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q12. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Composition and election under the Charter's own words?

A. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. B. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. C. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it.

Answer: D. Explanation: The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q13. Which statement correctly identifies What a Council decision actually obliges and where its powers come from?

A. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. B. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. C. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change.

Answer: A. Explanation: The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q14. Which card should be filed under What a Council decision actually obliges and where its powers come from in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. B. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. C. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change.

Answer: B. Explanation: The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q15. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What a Council decision actually obliges and where its powers come from?

A. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. B. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. C. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. D. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body.

Answer: C. Explanation: The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q16. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What a Council decision actually obliges and where its powers come from?

A. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. B. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. C. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. D. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency.

Answer: D. Explanation: The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q17. Which statement correctly identifies The voting rule and what the word veto precisely denotes?

A. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. B. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. D. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives.

Answer: A. Explanation: The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q18. Which card should be filed under The voting rule and what the word veto precisely denotes in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. B. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. C. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. D. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all.

Answer: B. Explanation: The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q19. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The voting rule and what the word veto precisely denotes?

A. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. B. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. C. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. D. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all.

Answer: C. Explanation: The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q20. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The voting rule and what the word veto precisely denotes?

A. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. B. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. C. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. D. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist.

Answer: D. Explanation: The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q21. Which statement correctly identifies The amendment rule that locks the whole reform debate?

A. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. B. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. C. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. D. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives.

Answer: A. Explanation: The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q22. Which card should be filed under The amendment rule that locks the whole reform debate in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. B. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. C. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. D. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment.

Answer: B. Explanation: The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q23. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The amendment rule that locks the whole reform debate?

A. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. B. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. D. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment.

Answer: C. Explanation: The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q24. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The amendment rule that locks the whole reform debate?

A. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. B. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. C. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change.

Answer: D. Explanation: The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q25. Which statement correctly identifies India's participation record inside the existing structure?

A. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. B. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. C. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. D. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q26. Which card should be filed under India's participation record inside the existing structure in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. B. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. C. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. D. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q27. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of India's participation record inside the existing structure?

A. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. B. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. C. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. D. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q28. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about India's participation record inside the existing structure?

A. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. B. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. C. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. D. The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q29. Which statement correctly identifies The counter-terrorism committee's coordinating mandate and its expert arm?

A. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. B. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. C. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil,

Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. D. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q30. Which card should be filed under The counter-terrorism committee's coordinating mandate and its expert arm in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. B. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. C. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. D. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q31. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The counter-terrorism committee's coordinating mandate and its expert arm?

A. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. B. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. C. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. D. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q32. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The counter-terrorism committee's coordinating mandate and its expert arm?

A. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. B. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. C. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. D. The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q33. Which statement correctly identifies The reform coalition, the process it replaced and the wider demand?

A. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. B. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. C. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. D. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q34. Which card should be filed under The reform coalition, the process it replaced and the wider demand in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. B. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. C. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. D. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q35. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The reform coalition, the process it replaced and the wider demand?

A. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. B. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. C. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. D. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q36. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The reform coalition, the process it replaced and the wider demand?

A. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. B. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. C. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. D. The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q37. Which statement correctly identifies The coalition's dated statement and the Common African Position?

A. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. B. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. C. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. D. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q38. Which card should be filed under The coalition's dated statement and the Common African Position in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. B. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. C. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. D. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q39. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The coalition's dated statement and the Common African Position?

A. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. B. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. C. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. D. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q40. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The coalition's dated statement and the Common African Position?

A. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. B. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. C. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. D. The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners record the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement issued at New York on 25 September 2025 on the margins of the eightieth session of the General Assembly, which reaffirms expansion in both the permanent and the non-permanent categories, supports the Common African Position as enshrined in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, records strong concern over the continued absence of concrete progress in the Intergovernmental Negotiations format, states an intention to work with a view to developing a consolidated model leading to text-based negotiations, and asserts that consensus is not a decision-making requirement; the owners flag the last clause as the analytically sharpest line available, because it reframes the blockage as a contested procedural convention rather than a legal rule, while a joint ministerial statement remains a political declaration and not an amendment. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q41. Which statement correctly identifies India's stated national position at the negotiations?

A. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. B. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. C. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. D. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q42. Which card should be filed under India's stated national position at the negotiations in an International Relations answer?

A. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. B. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. C. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. D. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q43. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of India's stated national position at the negotiations?

A. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. B. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. C. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. D. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q44. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about India's stated national position at the negotiations?

A. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. B. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. C. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. D. The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q45. Which statement correctly identifies The negotiation's status and the two things the Assembly has not done?

A. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. B. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. C. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. D. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q46. Which card should be filed under The negotiation's status and the two things the Assembly has not done in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. B. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. C. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. D. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q47. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The negotiation's status and the two things the Assembly has not done?

A. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. B. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. C. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. D. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q48. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The negotiation's status and the two things the Assembly has not done?

A. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. B. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. C. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. D. The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q49. Which statement correctly identifies The summit outcome document and its two annexes?

A. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. B. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. C. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. D. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q50. Which card should be filed under The summit outcome document and its two annexes in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. B. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. C. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. D. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q51. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The summit outcome document and its two annexes?

A. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. B. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. C. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. D. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q52. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The summit outcome document and its two annexes?

A. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. B. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. C. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. D. The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q53. Which statement correctly identifies The reform tracks that bypass Charter amendment altogether?

A. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. B. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. C. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. D. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q54. Which card should be filed under The reform tracks that bypass Charter amendment altogether in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. B. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. C. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. D. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q55. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The reform tracks that bypass Charter amendment altogether?

A. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. B. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. C. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. D. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q56. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The reform tracks that bypass Charter amendment altogether?

A. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. B. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. C. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. D. The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q57. Which statement correctly identifies The Court's advisory function and the exact limit of an advisory opinion?

A. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. B. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. C. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. D. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025.

Answer: A. Explanation: The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q58. Which card should be filed under The Court's advisory function and the exact limit of an advisory opinion in an International Relations answer?

A. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. B. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. C. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. D. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025.

Answer: B. Explanation: The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q59. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The Court's advisory function and the exact limit of an advisory opinion?

A. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. B. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. C. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. D. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party.

Answer: C. Explanation: The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q60. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The Court's advisory function and the exact limit of an advisory opinion?

A. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. B. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. C. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. D. The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility.

Answer: D. Explanation: The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q61. Which statement correctly identifies The judicial-body distinction and India's own treaty position?

A. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. B. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. C. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. D. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q62. Which card should be filed under The judicial-body distinction and India's own treaty position in an International Relations answer?

A. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. B. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. C. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. D. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q63. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The judicial-body distinction and India's own treaty position?

A. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. B. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. C. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. D. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q64. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The judicial-body distinction and India's own treaty position?

A. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10.

B. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them.

C. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it.

D. The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution.

Q65. Which statement correctly identifies Peacekeeping principles and what India's contribution does and does not buy?

A. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. B. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. C. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. D. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them.

Answer: A. Explanation: The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q66. Which card should be filed under Peacekeeping principles and what India's contribution does and does not buy in an International Relations answer?

A. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10.

B. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. C. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. D. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them.

Answer: B. Explanation: The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q67. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Peacekeeping principles and what India's contribution does and does not buy?

A. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10.

B. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them.

C. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat.

D. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it.

Answer: C. Explanation: The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q68. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Peacekeeping principles and what India's contribution does and does not buy?

A. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. B. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. D. The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat.

Answer: D. Explanation: The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q69. Which statement correctly identifies The specialised agencies as the effectiveness test?

A. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. B. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. C. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. D. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q70. Which card should be filed under The specialised agencies as the effectiveness test in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. B. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. C. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. D. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q71. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The specialised agencies as the effectiveness test?

A. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10.

B. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it.

C. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025.

D. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q72. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The specialised agencies as the effectiveness test?

A. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. B. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. C. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. D. The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q73. Which statement correctly identifies Financial and trade governance as the parallel reform dimension?

A. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. B. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. C. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. D. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it.

Answer: A. Explanation: The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q74. Which card should be filed under Financial and trade governance as the parallel reform dimension in an International Relations answer?

A. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10.

B. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party.

C. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it.

Answer: B. Explanation: The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q75. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Financial and trade governance as the parallel reform dimension?

A. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. B. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. C. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. D. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it.

Answer: C. Explanation: The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q76. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Financial and trade governance as the parallel reform dimension?

A. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. B. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. D. The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party.

Answer: D. Explanation: The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q77. Which statement correctly identifies Honest question ownership for this global-governance owner?

A. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. B. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. C. This topic owns the structure, mandate, decision rule and reform politics of the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods and trade institutions as they bear on India: which organ or body holds which power, what legal instrument creates it, what a decision of it actually binds, what India asks for and on what evidentiary level that ask currently stands; its distinctive feature is that reform must be analysed along four separable dimensions rather than as one undifferentiated demand, and five General Studies Paper II Mains demands from 2019, 2020, 2022, 2024 and 2025 are routed here alongside routed objective demands from 2018 to 2026, while the United Nations creation-era chronology belongs to the World History owner, operational lending and trade mechanics to the Economy owner, India's Nationally Determined Contribution and climate-trade evidence to topic 11, the representation grievance of the wider developing world to topic 08 and the Group of Twenty and BRICS as non-United Nations platforms to topic 10. D. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it.

Answer: A. Explanation: The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q78. Which card should be filed under Honest question ownership for this global-governance owner in an International Relations answer?

A. The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. B. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. C. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. D. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency.

Answer: B. Explanation: The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q79. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Honest question ownership for this global-governance owner?

A. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. B. The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. C. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. D. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist.

Answer: C. Explanation: The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

Q80. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Honest question ownership for this global-governance owner?

A. The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. B. The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. C. The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. D. The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them.

Answer: D. Explanation: The audited ledgers route five General Studies Paper II Mains demands to this owner: 2024 question 19 asking the answer to evaluate the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating the threat of terrorism at the international level, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2025 question 20 asking the answer to examine and critically evaluate East-West policy confrontations in the light of the statement that the reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and the entanglement of the United States against the Russo-Chinese alliance, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question; 2019 question 10 asking the answer to discuss the statement that too little cash and too much politics leaves the education and culture agency fighting for life, in the light of the United States withdrawal and its accusation of anti-Israel bias, a 10-mark demand whose printed tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit comes from the paper's instruction block; 2020 question 9 on the role of the health agency in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words for which the 2020 paper is not among the locally held official papers, so only the ledger's neutral rendering is carried; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, a 15-mark demand whose 250-word limit is printed in the question and which the ledger expressly records as cross-cutting, with this owner holding the institutional half and topic 11 holding the trade, negotiating and external-policy half; the objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from 2018 to 2023, three from 2024 to 2025 and four from 2026 to this owner, and because the 2018-2023 official keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key is provisional, no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded for any of them. The remaining options belong to different actors, instruments, evidentiary levels or analytical categories.

PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE

VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT

Five General Studies Paper II Mains demands are routed to this topic in the audited routing ledgers and each is reproduced below as a demand card with its printed year, paper, question number, directive, marks and word-limit provenance exactly as observed: 2024 question 19 on evaluating the effectiveness of the Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee and its associated bodies, 15 marks with the 250-word limit printed in the question; 2025 question 20 on examining and critically evaluating East-West policy confrontations in relation to the unresolved reform process, 15 marks with the 250-word limit printed in the question; 2019 question 10 on the education and culture agency's funding and political stress in the light of the United States withdrawal, 10 marks, whose printed per-question tail carries only the mark value so that its 150-word limit is taken from that paper's own instruction block stating that answers to Questions 1 to 10 should be in 150 words and answers to Questions 11 to 20 in 250 words; 2020 question 9 on the health agency's role in global health security during the pandemic, a Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words; and 2022 question 20 on India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics, 15 marks with the 250-word limit printed in the question. Three provenance facts are reported rather than repaired. First, the 2020 General Studies Paper II is not among the locally held official papers, so only the audited ledger's own neutral rendering of that demand is carried and its printed stem is deliberately not reconstructed, quoted or paraphrased. Second, the 2019, 2022, 2024 and 2025 stems were confirmed word for word against the locally held official General Studies Paper II question papers for those years, and the 2019 instruction block was read directly rather than assumed. Third, the 2022 demand is expressly cross-cutting in the audited ledger, which records that both the climate regime and multilateral fora are named in the stem, so this owner holds the institutional half while topic 11 holds the trade, negotiating and external-policy half, and the shared ownership is declared rather than silently duplicated or silently dropped. The objective ledgers additionally route fourteen demands from the audited 2018-2023 papers, three from the audited 2024-2025 papers and four from the audited 2026 paper to this owner, covering famine and conflict-affected countries, the anti-corruption, transnational-organised-crime and drugs-and-crime conventions, international declarations matched to their subjects, the Credentials Committee, the International Polar Code, General Assembly observer status and Permanent Observers, the Bidibidi and Dadaab refugee settlements, conflict zones in North Kivu, Nagorno-Karabakh, Kherson, Zaporizhzhia, Donbas, Kachin and Tigray, the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration, International Years and their designated years, India's ratification status of major international labour and humanitarian conventions, migration cooperation platforms and their binding or consultative character, United Nations agencies awarded the Nobel Prize on multiple occasions and United Nations peacekeeping operations matched with their operational periods. The official 2018-2023 objective keys are not held locally, the 2024-2025 Set-A keys are held and the 2026 Set-A key held locally is provisional, and in every case no option, answer letter or inferred key is recorded, so none of these objective demands is converted into a solved answer. The locally held OCR-searchable official General Studies papers were read only to confirm the printed wording and word-limit provenance of the routed Mains demands; no question was invented from them, no stem was paraphrased into an apparent routing, and no marking scheme or official answer key was imported.

OWNER PYQ LEDGER EXTRACTS

9. PYQ application

- FACT: 2024 Q19 (direct): Evaluate the CTC's mandate and its structural limitation (no enforcement power, dependent on member-state compliance), using India's chairmanship experience as illustrative context, and note that effectiveness varies by member-state capacity and political will.

- FACT: 2025 Q20 (direct): Cite the G4/IGN process, the UN Pact for the Future

(22 September 2024) and the G4 Foreign Ministers' joint statement (25 September 2025) as evidence that reform remains under active discussion; frame the "East-West" and "USA vs. Russo-Chinese alliance" tension as a structural obstacle to consensus, without predicting a specific resolution. ANALYSIS: Strengthen the answer by noting that the G4 statement itself insists "consensus is not a decision-making requirement," which reframes the blockage as procedural-political rather than legally mandated.

2026 PYQ Integration

Status: 2026 question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-PRELIMS-2026 .md. Answer-key rule: The 2026 Prelims and CSAT Set-A keys held locally are provisional; no option or answer is recorded or inferred in this integration.

- Year represented: 2026
- Paper(s): Prelims GS-I
- Routed question demands: 4

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2026	Prelims GS-I	64	India's ratification status of major international labour and humanitarian conventions	Objective question; provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally, answer not inferred	Provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally (Ans - 2026 - GS1 - Provisional); key is provisional - no answer letter recorded or inferred here	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2026	Prelims GS-I	69	Migration cooperation platforms and their binding or consultative character	Objective question; provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally, answer not inferred	Provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally (Ans - 2026 - GS1 - Provisional); key is provisional - no answer letter recorded or inferred here	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2026	Prelims GS-I	70	United Nations agencies awarded the Nobel Prize on multiple occasions	Objective question; provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally, answer not inferred	Provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally (Ans - 2026 - GS1 - Provisional); key is provisional - no answer letter recorded or inferred here	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2026	Prelims GS-I	71	United Nations peacekeeping operations matched with their operational periods	Objective question; provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally, answer not inferred	Provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally (Ans - 2026 - GS1 - Provisional); key is provisional - no answer letter recorded or inferred here	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.

What this owner must now support

- India's ratification status of major international labour and humanitarian conventions
- Migration cooperation platforms and their binding or consultative character
- United Nations agencies awarded the Nobel Prize on multiple occasions
- United Nations peacekeeping operations matched with their operational periods

This block integrates the 2026 examinable demand and paper metadata. It is kept separate from the 2018-2023 and 2024-2025 blocks and does not convert a provisionally-keyed, answer-free objective question into a solved answer.

Recent PYQ Integration (2024-2025)

Status: 2024-2025 question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-MAINS-GS1-GS2-ESSAY-2024-2025.md, _PYQ-ROUTING-PRELIMS-2024-2025.md. Answer-key rule: The official 2024-2025 Prelims Set-A keys are present in the repository and CSAT Set-A keys are supplied; even so, no option or answer is recorded or inferred in this integration.

- Years represented: 2024, 2025
- Paper(s): GS-II, Prelims GS-I
- Routed question demands: 3

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2024	GS-II	19	Effectiveness of the UNSC Counter-Terrorism Committee	Evaluate · 15 marks · 250 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2025	GS-II	20	UN reform amid East-West imbalance and USA vs Russo-Chinese alliance	Examine and evaluate · 15 marks · 250 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2025	Prelims GS-I	96	International Years and their designated years	Objective question; official Set-A key available locally, answer not inferred	Key available locally (official Set-A answer key present); answer not recorded here	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.

What this owner must now support

- Effectiveness of the UNSC Counter-Terrorism Committee
- UN reform amid East-West imbalance and USA vs Russo-Chinese alliance
- International Years and their designated years

This block integrates the 2024-2025 examinable demand and paper metadata. It is kept separate from the 2018-2023 block and does not convert an unkeyed/answer-free objective question into a solved answer.

Historical PYQ Integration (2018-2023)

Status: Question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-MAINS-GS1-GS2-ESSAY-2018-2023.md, _PYQ-ROUTING-PRELIMS-2018-2023.md. Answer-key rule: The official 2018-2023 Prelims/CSAT keys are not held locally; no option or answer has been inferred.

- Years represented: 2018, 2019, 2020, 2022, 2023
- Paper(s): GS-II, Prelims GS-I
- Routed question demands: 14

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2018	Prelims GS-I	18	Countries facing severe famine due to war and conflict	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2019	GS-II	10	UNESCO funding stress and the US withdrawal	Discuss · 10 marks · 150 words	Core route supersedes older Advanced ownership	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2019	Prelims GS-I	54	UNCAC UNTOC and UNODC international conventions mandates	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2020	GS-II	9	WHO role in global health security during the pandemic	Critically examine · 10 marks · 150 words	Core route supersedes older Advanced ownership	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2020	Prelims GS-I	10	International declarations Alma-Ata Talanoa Under2 subject matching	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2022	GS-II	20	Clean energy and India's climate policy in international fora	Describe briefly · 15 marks · 250 words	IR Core owns diplomatic/institutional dimension	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2022	Prelims GS-I	76	UN Credentials Committee structure mandate and functioning	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2022	Prelims GS-I	77	International Polar Code purpose and scope	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2022	Prelims GS-I	78	UN General Assembly observer status and Permanent Observers	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2022	Prelims GS-I	82	Bidibidi and Dadaab refugee settlements in East Africa	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2023	Prelims GS-I	78	Country with decades of civil strife and famine	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2023	Prelims GS-I	90	Global Compact for Safe Orderly and Regular Migration GCM	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2023	Prelims GS-I	93	Conflict zones North Kivu Nagorno-Karabakh Kherson Zaporizhzhia	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.
2023	Prelims GS-I	97	Conflict zones Donbas Kachin Tigray matched country locations	Objective question; official key unavailable locally	Routed; key unavailable locally	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.

What this owner must now support

- Countries facing severe famine due to war and conflict
- UNESCO funding stress and the US withdrawal
- UNCAC UNTOC and UNODC international conventions mandates
- WHO role in global health security during the pandemic
- International declarations Alma-Ata Talanoa Under2 subject matching
- Clean energy and India's climate policy in international fora
- UN Credentials Committee structure mandate and functioning
- International Polar Code purpose and scope
- UN General Assembly observer status and Permanent Observers
- Bidibidi and Dadaab refugee settlements in East Africa

- Country with decades of civil strife and famine
- Global Compact for Safe Orderly and Regular Migration GCM
- Conflict zones North Kivu Nagorno-Karabakh Kherson Zaporizhzhia
- Conflict zones Donbas Kachin Tigray matched country locations

The table integrates the examinable demand and paper metadata. It does not turn an unkeyed objective question into a solved answer, and it does not claim that lexical presence alone proves full conceptual sufficiency.

10. PYQ-based analytical application

- FACT: 2024 Q19 (direct): *Evaluate the effectiveness of the United Nations

Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee (CTC) and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating this threat at the international level.* An advanced answer should: (1) define the CTC's coordinating/monitoring mandate precisely (resolution 1373, 28 September 2001) and distinguish it from the 1267/1989/2253 ISIL and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee, which does the listing; (2) note its dependence on member-state compliance capacity as the central limitation on "effectiveness," while crediting CTED's assessment machinery (mandate to 5 January 2029 under resolution 2810 (2025)); (3) use India's own chairmanship and the Delhi Declaration (29 October 2022) on terrorist misuse of new and emerging technologies as evidence of substantive engagement; (4) avoid claiming direct enforcement power for the CTC.

- FACT: 2025 Q20 (direct): The reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved, because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and entanglement of the USA vs. Russo-Chinese alliance." Examine and critically evaluate the East-West policy confrontations in this regard. An advanced answer should: (1) distinguish the veto's stabilising-versus-blocking dual character; (2) cite the G4/IGN process and the dated Pact for the Future and G4 Foreign Ministers' joint statement (25 September 2025) as evidence of sustained but unresolved advocacy, noting that as of 3 August 2026 neither a consolidated model nor text-based negotiation had been agreed; (3) acknowledge the East-West fault line as significant but not the sole explanatory factor, noting counter-coalition opposition as an additional obstacle; (4) avoid predicting a specific reform outcome or timeline. ANALYSIS: A distinguishing move: observe that institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require P5 ratification - UN80 (2025), the ICJ climate advisory opinion (2025) and the BBNJ Agreement's entry into force (2026).

Historical PYQ Integration (2018-2023)

Status: Question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-MAINS-GS1-GS2-ESSAY-2018-2023.md.

- Years represented: 2019, 2020, 2022
- Paper(s): GS-II
- Routed question demands: 3

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2019	GS-II	10	UNESCO funding stress and the US withdrawal	Discuss · 10 marks · 150 words	Routed to owning topic; word limit taken from the instruction block	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2020	GS-II	9	WHO role in global health security during the pandemic	Critically examine · 10 marks · 150 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2022	GS-II	20	Clean energy and India's climate policy in international fora	Describe briefly · 15 marks · 250 words	Cross-cutting; climate regime and multilateral fora both named in the stem	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.

What this owner must now support

- UNESCO funding stress and the US withdrawal
- WHO role in global health security during the pandemic
- Clean energy and India's climate policy in international fora

The table integrates the examinable demand and paper metadata. It does not turn an unkeyed objective question into a solved answer, and it does not claim that lexical presence alone proves full conceptual sufficiency.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2024 General Studies Paper II Question 19

Demand: "Terrorism has become a significant threat to global peace and security." Evaluate the effectiveness of the United Nations Security Council's Counter Terrorism Committee (CTC) and its associated bodies in addressing and mitigating this threat at the international level. (Answer in 250 words). A 15-mark demand whose word limit is printed in the question itself, confirmed word for word against the locally held official General Studies Paper II of 2024.

Status: Routed to this owner in the audited 2024-2025 Mains routing ledger and named by the Basic owner as the anchor demand for the counter-terrorism half of this topic. No official answer key exists for a Mains demand and none is claimed.

Model solution: Claim: the Committee and its associated bodies are effective at the task the Council actually gave them, which is standard-setting, monitoring and capacity assessment, and structurally incapable of the task the question's word threat invites, which is suppression, so the evaluation must be mandate-relative rather than outcome-relative. Named evidence and example: the Committee is a subsidiary body created under Article 29 of the Charter, which the United Nations text confirms permits the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary, and it was established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001; its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; India chaired the Committee during its 2011-12 non-permanent term and hosted its special meeting of 28-29 October 2022, which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes; listings, by contrast, sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team; and the underlying obligation flows from Article 25, by which Members agree to accept and carry out the Council's decisions. Analysis: effectiveness therefore has two measurable limbs and one structural ceiling, since the Committee has succeeded in converting a single Council decision into a near-universal reporting and assessment architecture and in extending its normative reach to emerging technologies through the Delhi Declaration, while its Executive Directorate supplies the technical assessment that makes assistance targeted; the ceiling is that neither body investigates, prosecutes or sanctions, so measured outcomes depend on member-state capacity and political will, which vary far more than the standards themselves. Qualification: the evaluation must not attribute enforcement power to the Committee, must not confuse it with the sanctions committee that performs listings, must not treat the separate Financial Action Task Force as a United Nations body, must note that resolution 1373's obligations are binding under Article 25 while implementation is national, and must avoid claiming a measurable reduction in terrorism attributable to the Committee, since no such attribution is established in the sources used here. Why this earns marks: it defines the object of evaluation before evaluating it, credits genuine institutional achievement with dated instruments, and locates the limitation in the mandate's design rather than in vague institutional failure.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2024 General Studies Paper II Question 19", every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Claim: the Committee and its associated bodies are effective at the task the Council actually gave them, which is standard-setting, monitoring and capacity assessment, and structurally incapable of the task the question's word threat invites, which is suppression, so the evaluation must be mandate-relative rather than outcome-relative. Named evidence and example: the Committee is a subsidiary body created under Article 29 of the Charter, which the United Nations text confirms permits the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary, and it was established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001; its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; India chaired the Committee during its 2011-12 non-permanent term and hosted its special meeting of 28-29 October 2022, which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes; listings, by contrast, sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team; and the underlying obligation flows from Article 25, by which Members agree to accept and carry out the Council's decisions. Analysis: effectiveness therefore has two measurable limbs and one structural ceiling, since the Committee has succeeded in converting a single Council decision into a near-universal reporting and assessment architecture and in extending its normative reach to emerging technologies through the Delhi Declaration, while its Executive Directorate supplies the technical assessment that makes assistance targeted; the ceiling is that neither body investigates, prosecutes or sanctions, so measured outcomes depend on member-state capacity and political will, which vary far more than the standards themselves. Qualification: the evaluation must not attribute enforcement power to the Committee, must not confuse it with the sanctions committee that performs listings, must not treat the separate Financial Action Task Force as a United Nations body, must note that resolution 1373's obligations are binding under Article 25 while implementation is national, and must avoid claiming a measurable reduction in terrorism attributable to the Committee, since no such attribution is established in the sources used here. Why this earns marks: it defines the object of evaluation before evaluating it, credits genuine institutional achievement with dated instruments, and locates the limitation in the mandate's design rather than in vague institutional failure.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2024 General Studies Paper II Question 19 Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Claim: the Committee and its associated bodies are effective at the task the Council actually gave them, which is standard-setting, monitoring and capacity assessment, and structurally incapable of the task the question's word threat invites, which is suppression, so the evaluation must be mandate-relative rather than outcome-relative. Named evidence and example: the Committee is a subsidiary body created under Article 29 of the Charter, which the United Nations text confirms permits the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary, and it was established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001; its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; India chaired the Committee during its 2011-12 non-permanent term and hosted its special meeting of 28-29 October 2022, which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes; listings, by contrast, sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team; and the underlying obligation flows from Article 25, by which Members agree to accept and carry out the Council's decisions. Analysis: effectiveness therefore has two measurable limbs and one structural ceiling, since the Committee has succeeded in converting a single Council decision into a near-universal reporting and assessment architecture and in extending its normative reach to emerging technologies through the Delhi Declaration, while its Executive Directorate supplies the technical assessment that makes assistance targeted; the ceiling is that neither body investigates, prosecutes or sanctions, so measured outcomes depend on member-state capacity and political will, which vary far more than the standards themselves. Qualification: the evaluation must not attribute enforcement power to the Committee, must not confuse it with the sanctions committee that performs listings, must not treat the separate Financial Action Task Force as a United Nations body, must note that resolution 1373's obligations are binding under Article 25 while implementation is national, and must avoid claiming a measurable reduction in terrorism attributable to the Committee, since no such attribution is established in the sources used here. Why this earns marks: it defines the object of evaluation before evaluating it, credits genuine institutional achievement with dated instruments, and locates the limitation in the mandate's design rather than in vague institutional failure.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2024 General Studies Paper II Question 19", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2025 General Studies Paper II Question 20

Demand: "The reform process in the United Nations remains unresolved, because of the delicate imbalance of East and West and entanglement of the USA vs. Russo-Chinese alliance." Examine and critically evaluate the East-West policy confrontations in this regard. (Answer in 250 words). A 15-mark demand whose word limit is printed in the question itself, confirmed word for word against the locally held official General Studies Paper II of 2025.

Status: Routed to this owner in the audited 2024-2025 Mains routing ledger and named by the Basic owner as the anchor demand for the reform half of this topic. No official answer key exists for a Mains demand and none is claimed.

Model solution: Claim: the statement identifies a real obstacle but misplaces its weight, because East-West confrontation aggravates a blockage whose primary cause is written into the Charter itself, so a critical evaluation must show the structural lock first and then the geopolitical layer that sits on top of it. Named evidence and example: the Charter text confirmed on the United Nations site records Article 27, under which decisions on all matters other than procedure require an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, and Article 108, under which amendments come into force only when adopted by two thirds of the General Assembly and ratified by two thirds of the Members including all the permanent members of the Security Council, with Article 109 imposing the identical ratification condition on any alteration recommended by a review conference; the political record is equally dated, with the Pact for the Future adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with the Global Digital Compact and the Declaration on Future Generations as its annexes, the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement of 25 September 2025 reaffirming expansion in both categories, supporting the Common African Position in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, recording strong concern at the absence of concrete progress and asserting that consensus is not a decision-making requirement, India's Intergovernmental Negotiations intervention of 20 April 2026 backing the African model, a twenty-six-member Council and veto parity between existing and new permanent members, and co-chairs Kuwait and the Netherlands appointed on 31 October 2025, with neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations adopted as of 3 August 2026. Analysis: the structural lock means that any expansion of the permanent category must be ratified by precisely the states whose relative position it would diminish, so great-power rivalry does not create the veto point but determines how easily it is used; East-West confrontation therefore explains the current absence of even procedural movement, while two further fault lines the statement omits, namely counter-coalition preference for elected-seat expansion and disagreement within the developing world over the model itself, explain why a united majority has never formed to test the coalition's claim that consensus is not required. Qualification: the evaluation must not predict an outcome or timeline, must treat a ministerial joint statement and a national intervention as political positions rather than agreed decisions, must record that the Pact expresses intent rather than delivering change, and must concede that the East-West framing risks oversimplification, since it is one significant fault line among several rather than the sole explanatory factor; it should also note the consequence that institutional change has migrated to tracks needing no ratification, including the UN80 Initiative of 12 March 2025, the International Court of Justice advisory opinion of 23 July 2025 and the entry into force of the marine biodiversity agreement on 17 January 2026. Why this earns marks: it engages the quotation critically instead of restating it, grounds the impasse in two Charter articles quoted at the right level, and adds the omitted fault lines and the migration observation that distinguish a strong answer.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2025 General Studies Paper II Question 20", every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Claim: the statement identifies a real obstacle but misplaces its weight, because East-West confrontation aggravates a blockage whose primary cause is written into the Charter itself, so a critical evaluation must show the structural lock first and then the geopolitical layer that sits on top of it. Named evidence and example: the Charter text confirmed on the United Nations site records Article 27, under which decisions on all matters other than procedure require an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, and Article 108, under which amendments come into force only when adopted by two thirds of the General Assembly and ratified by two thirds of the Members including all the permanent members of the Security Council, with Article 109 imposing the identical ratification condition on any alteration recommended by a review conference; the political record is equally dated, with the Pact for the Future adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with the Global Digital Compact and the Declaration on Future Generations as its annexes, the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement of 25 September 2025 reaffirming expansion in both categories, supporting the Common African Position in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, recording strong concern at the absence of concrete progress and asserting that consensus is not a decision-making requirement, India's Intergovernmental Negotiations intervention of 20 April 2026 backing the African model, a twenty-six-member Council and veto parity between existing and new permanent members, and co-chairs Kuwait and the Netherlands appointed on 31 October 2025, with neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations adopted as of 3 August 2026. Analysis: the structural lock means that any expansion of the permanent category must be ratified by precisely the states whose relative position it would diminish, so great-power rivalry does not create the veto point but determines how easily it is used; East-West confrontation therefore explains the current absence of even procedural movement, while two further fault lines the statement omits, namely counter-coalition preference for elected-seat expansion and disagreement within the developing world over the model itself, explain why a united majority has never formed to test the coalition's claim that consensus is not required. Qualification: the evaluation must not predict an outcome or timeline, must treat a ministerial joint statement and a national intervention as political positions rather than agreed decisions, must record that the Pact expresses intent rather than delivering change, and must concede that the East-West framing risks oversimplification, since it is one significant fault line among several rather than the sole explanatory factor; it should also note the consequence that institutional change has migrated to tracks needing no ratification, including the UN80 Initiative of 12 March 2025, the International Court of Justice advisory opinion of 23 July 2025 and the entry into force of the marine biodiversity agreement on 17 January 2026. Why this earns marks: it engages the quotation critically instead of restating it, grounds the impasse in two Charter articles quoted at the right level, and adds the omitted fault lines and the migration observation that distinguish a strong answer.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2025 General Studies Paper II Question 20 Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Claim: the statement identifies a real obstacle but misplaces its weight, because East-West confrontation aggravates a blockage whose primary cause is written into the Charter itself, so a critical evaluation must show the structural lock first and then the geopolitical layer that sits on top of it. Named evidence and example: the Charter text confirmed on the United Nations site records Article 27, under which decisions on all matters other than procedure require an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, and Article 108, under which amendments come into force only when adopted by two thirds of the General Assembly and ratified by two thirds of the Members including all the permanent members of the Security Council, with Article 109 imposing the identical ratification condition on any alteration recommended by a review conference; the political record is equally dated, with the Pact for the Future adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with the Global Digital Compact and the Declaration on Future Generations as its annexes, the Group of Four Foreign Ministers' joint statement of 25 September 2025 reaffirming expansion in both categories, supporting the Common African Position in the Ezulwini Consensus and the Sirte Declaration, recording strong concern at the absence of concrete progress and asserting that consensus is not a decision-making requirement, India's Intergovernmental Negotiations intervention of 20 April 2026 backing the African model, a twenty-six-member Council and veto parity between existing and new permanent members, and co-chairs Kuwait and the Netherlands appointed on 31 October 2025, with neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations adopted as of 3 August 2026. Analysis: the structural lock means that any expansion of the permanent category must be ratified by precisely the states whose relative position it would diminish, so great-power rivalry does not create the veto point but determines how easily it is used; East-West confrontation therefore explains the current absence of even procedural movement, while two further fault lines the statement omits, namely counter-coalition preference for elected-seat expansion and disagreement within the developing world over the model itself, explain why a united majority has never formed to test the coalition's claim that consensus is not required. Qualification: the evaluation must not predict an outcome or timeline, must treat a ministerial joint statement and a national intervention as political positions rather than agreed decisions, must record that the Pact expresses intent rather than delivering change, and must concede that the East-West framing risks oversimplification, since it is one significant fault line among several rather than the sole explanatory factor; it should also note the consequence that institutional change has migrated to tracks needing no ratification, including the UN80 Initiative of 12 March 2025, the International Court of Justice advisory opinion of 23 July 2025 and the entry into force of the marine biodiversity agreement on 17 January 2026. Why this earns marks: it engages the quotation critically instead of restating it, grounds the impasse in two Charter articles quoted at the right level, and adds the omitted fault lines and the migration observation that distinguish a strong answer.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2025 General Studies Paper II Question 20", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2019 General Studies Paper II Question 10

Demand: 'Too little cash, too much politics, leaves UNESCO fighting for life.' Discuss the statement in the light of US' withdrawal and its accusation of the cultural body as being 'anti-Israel bias'. A 10-mark demand confirmed word for word against the locally held official General Studies Paper II of 2019, whose printed per-question tail carries only the mark value; the 150-word limit is taken from that paper's instruction block, which states that answers to Questions No. 1 to 10 should be in 150 words and answers to Questions No. 11 to 20 in 250 words.

Status: Routed to this owner in the audited 2018-2023 Mains routing ledger, where the Core route is recorded as superseding the older Advanced ownership and where the word limit is recorded as taken from the paper's instruction block. That instruction block was read directly in the locally held official paper and is reported here rather than reconstructed. No official answer key exists for a Mains demand and none is claimed.

Model solution: Claim: the statement captures a real vulnerability of specialised agencies, namely that a universal-membership body funded by assessed contributions is exposed to the budgetary and political choices of its largest contributors, but the phrase fighting for life overstates the institutional consequence, because the agency's mandate, organs and treaty functions have continued to operate. Named evidence and example: the agency was created in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, works through a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight and a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and administers the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case is dated precisely, with the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying a further withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that it remained a member as of 3 August 2026; and India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which supplies agenda and oversight access. Analysis: the two halves of the quotation are causally connected rather than parallel, because a contested political judgement by a major contributor becomes a financial shock through the assessed-contribution mechanism, and the shock then constrains exactly the technical and normative programmes that give the agency its legitimacy, which is why cyclical withdrawal, arrears and return is more damaging to programme continuity than a single funding cut would be; the same episode also shows the countervailing fact that a universal body survives a major-power exit because its treaty functions belong to the whole membership. Qualification: the discussion must record that notification of withdrawal is not completed withdrawal, that election to an executive organ creates access rather than delivery or control, that the accusation cited in the stem is a stated position of a member state rather than a finding, and that no claim is made here about any specific programme's budget or closure. Why this earns marks: it separates the financial and political limbs of the quotation, dates every step of the withdrawal-and-return cycle, and qualifies the metaphor instead of adopting it.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2019 General Studies Paper II Question 10", every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Claim: the statement captures a real vulnerability of specialised agencies, namely that a universal-membership body funded by assessed contributions is exposed to the budgetary and political choices of its largest contributors, but the phrase fighting for life overstates the institutional consequence, because the agency's mandate, organs and treaty functions have continued to operate. Named evidence and example: the agency was created in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, works through a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight and a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and administers the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case is dated precisely, with the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying a further withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that it remained a member as of 3 August 2026; and India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which supplies agenda and oversight access. Analysis: the two halves of the quotation are causally connected rather than parallel, because a contested political judgement by a major contributor becomes a financial shock through the assessed-contribution mechanism, and the shock then constrains exactly the technical and normative programmes that give the agency its legitimacy, which is why cyclical withdrawal, arrears and return is more damaging to programme continuity than a single funding cut would be; the same episode also shows the countervailing fact that a universal body survives a major-power exit because its treaty functions belong to the whole membership. Qualification: the discussion must record that notification of withdrawal is not completed withdrawal, that election to an executive organ creates access rather than delivery or control, that the accusation cited in the stem is a stated position of a member state rather than a finding, and that no claim is made here about any specific programme's budget or closure. Why this earns marks: it separates the financial and political limbs of the quotation, dates every step of the withdrawal-and-return cycle, and qualifies the metaphor instead of adopting it.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2019 General Studies Paper II Question 10 Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Claim: the statement captures a real vulnerability of specialised agencies, namely that a universal-membership body funded by assessed contributions is exposed to the budgetary and political choices of its largest contributors, but the phrase fighting for life overstates the institutional consequence, because the agency's mandate, organs and treaty functions have continued to operate. Named evidence and example: the agency was created in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, works through a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight and a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and administers the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case is dated precisely, with the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying a further withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that it remained a member as of 3 August 2026; and India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which supplies agenda and oversight access. Analysis: the two halves of the quotation are causally connected rather than parallel, because a contested political judgement by a major contributor becomes a financial shock through the assessed-contribution mechanism, and the shock then constrains exactly the technical and normative programmes that give the agency its legitimacy, which is why cyclical withdrawal, arrears and return is more damaging to programme continuity than a single funding cut would be; the same episode also shows the countervailing fact that a universal body survives a major-power exit because its treaty functions belong to the whole membership. Qualification: the discussion must record that notification of withdrawal is not completed withdrawal, that election to an executive organ creates access rather than delivery or control, that the accusation cited in the stem is a stated position of a member state rather than a finding, and that no claim is made here about any specific programme's budget or closure. Why this earns marks: it separates the financial and political limbs of the quotation, dates every step of the withdrawal-and-return cycle, and qualifies the metaphor instead of adopting it.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2019 General Studies Paper II Question 10", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2020 General Studies Paper II Question 9

Demand: The role of the World Health Organization in global health security during the pandemic. A Critically examine demand of 10 marks and 150 words. This is the neutral rendering recorded in the audited 2018-2023 Mains routing ledger; the 2020 General Studies Paper II is not among the locally held official papers, so the printed stem is deliberately not reconstructed, quoted or paraphrased into an apparent verbatim wording, and only the ledger's own rendering, directive, marks and word limit are carried here.

Status: Routed to this owner in the audited 2018-2023 Mains routing ledger, where the Core route is recorded as superseding the older Advanced ownership. No official answer key exists for a Mains demand and none is claimed, and the absence of a locally held 2020 paper is reported rather than repaired by an invented or reconstructed stem.

Model solution: Claim: the health agency supplied the common alert, technical guidance and coordination platform that no state could have supplied alone, and its weaknesses lay in the timing of collective judgement and in enforcement capacity rather than in the absence of a mandate, so a critical examination must credit the platform and locate the failure precisely. Named evidence and example: the agency's governance places the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body, with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing programmes under the Director-General; the Emergency Committee convened under the International Health Regulations did not reach a public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 and, after reconvening, the emergency was declared on 30 January 2020; the COVAX mechanism operated with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund and delivered close to two billion vaccine doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023; and the institutional response since then is equally dated, with the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025 and the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025, its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force. Analysis: the pattern is consistent across all three limbs, since the agency's authority is informational and normative while the decisive resources, borders and manufacturing capacity remain national, so a divided early expert judgement delayed the signal, dependence on state reporting limited verification, and a functioning global delivery mechanism could not by itself defeat supply nationalism and unequal coverage; the post-pandemic instruments accordingly target reporting and equity rather than enforcement, which is an honest institutional response and not a solution. Qualification: the examination must record that adoption of an agreement is not entry into force, that an unfinished annex means there is no operating legal regime, that the declaration date and the first-meeting date are different facts that must not be merged, that a delivery mechanism's dose count measures reach rather than equity, and that this stem is carried only in its neutral ledger rendering. Why this earns marks: it credits and criticises the same institution on evidence, dates the sequence exactly, and ends on the enforcement gap that every strong answer on global health security must name.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2020 General Studies Paper II Question 9", every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Claim: the health agency supplied the common alert, technical guidance and coordination platform that no state could have supplied alone, and its weaknesses lay in the timing of collective judgement and in enforcement capacity rather than in the absence of a mandate, so a critical examination must credit the platform and locate the failure precisely. Named evidence and example: the agency's governance places the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body, with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing programmes under the Director-General; the Emergency Committee convened under the International Health Regulations did not reach a public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 and, after reconvening, the emergency was declared on 30 January 2020; the COVAX mechanism operated with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund and delivered close to two billion vaccine doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023; and the institutional response since then is equally dated, with the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025 and the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025, its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force. Analysis: the pattern is consistent across all three limbs, since the agency's authority is informational and normative while the decisive resources, borders and manufacturing capacity remain national, so a divided early expert judgement delayed the signal, dependence on state reporting limited verification, and a functioning global delivery mechanism could not by itself defeat supply nationalism and unequal coverage; the post-pandemic instruments accordingly target reporting and equity rather than enforcement, which is an honest institutional response and not a solution. Qualification: the examination must record that adoption of an agreement is not entry into force, that an unfinished annex means there is no operating legal regime, that the declaration date and the first-meeting date are different facts that must not be merged, that a delivery mechanism's dose count measures reach rather than equity, and that this stem is carried only in its neutral ledger rendering. Why this earns marks: it credits and criticises the same institution on evidence, dates the sequence exactly, and ends on the enforcement gap that every strong answer on global health security must name.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2020 General Studies Paper II Question 9 Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Claim: the health agency supplied the common alert, technical guidance and coordination platform that no state could have supplied alone, and its weaknesses lay in the timing of collective judgement and in enforcement capacity rather than in the absence of a mandate, so a critical examination must credit the platform and locate the failure precisely. Named evidence and example: the agency's governance places the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body, with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing programmes under the Director-General; the Emergency Committee convened under the International Health Regulations did not reach a public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 and, after reconvening, the emergency was declared on 30 January 2020; the COVAX mechanism operated with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund and delivered close to two billion vaccine doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023; and the institutional response since then is equally dated, with the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025 and the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025, its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force. Analysis: the pattern is consistent across all three limbs, since the agency's authority is informational and normative while the decisive resources, borders and manufacturing capacity remain national, so a divided early expert judgement delayed the signal, dependence on state reporting limited verification, and a functioning global delivery mechanism could not by itself defeat supply nationalism and unequal coverage; the post-pandemic instruments accordingly target reporting and equity rather than enforcement, which is an honest institutional response and not a solution. Qualification: the examination must record that adoption of an agreement is not entry into force, that an unfinished annex means there is no operating legal regime, that the declaration date and the first-meeting date are different facts that must not be merged, that a delivery mechanism's dose count measures reach rather than equity, and that this stem is carried only in its neutral ledger rendering. Why this earns marks: it credits and criticises the same institution on evidence, dates the sequence exactly, and ends on the enforcement gap that every strong answer on global health security must name.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2020 General Studies Paper II Question 9", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 5 - 2022 General Studies Paper II Question 20

Demand: 'Clean energy is the order of the day.' Describe briefly India's changing policy towards climate change in various international fora in the context of geopolitics. (Answer in 250 words). A 15-mark demand whose word limit is printed in the question itself, confirmed word for word against the locally held official General Studies Paper II of 2022. The audited ledger records this demand as cross-cutting: this owner holds the institutional half and topic 11 holds the trade, negotiating and external-policy half.

Status: Routed to this owner in the audited 2018-2023 Mains routing ledger for its institutional dimension, with the trade and external-policy dimension recorded against topic 11. The shared ownership is declared here rather than silently duplicated. No official answer key exists for a Mains demand and none is claimed.

Model solution: Claim: on the institutional half of this demand, India's climate diplomacy has changed by widening the range of fora in which it argues, moving from a treaty-process position expressed mainly in the climate regime to a position simultaneously advanced in the climate regime, in general United Nations instruments, in adjudication and in the trade institution. Named evidence and example: in the general United Nations track, the Pact for the Future adopted on 22 September 2024 carries the Declaration on Future Generations as Annex II and the Global Digital Compact as Annex I, both political frameworks rather than binding treaties; in the adjudicative track, the International Court of Justice delivered its advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change on 23 July 2025, treating climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation with breach capable of engaging State responsibility, while the Court's own page confirms that advisory opinions are not binding except where binding force is expressly provided and that the requesting body remains free to decide what effect to give them; in the treaty track, the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entered into force on 17 January 2026, with India having signed on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification; and in the trade institution, whose own page confirms a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost organ meeting at least once every two years, climate-linked measures now enter the same negotiating space, while the financing dimension is carried by the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association, finalised in December 2024 and mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028. Analysis: the institutional change is a change of venue as much as of content, because a position that once had to be won inside one treaty process can now be pressed through law, finance and trade rules simultaneously, which suits a state whose central claim is differentiated responsibility with finance and technology access; the geopolitical edge follows directly, since the venues that advance fastest are those that do not require permanent-member ratification. Qualification: the description must record that an advisory opinion is authoritative but not binding, that signature without ratification leaves India outside a treaty in force, that a summit annex expresses intent rather than obligation, that replenishment finance does not redistribute governance, and that India's own emissions-intensity and non-fossil capacity commitments and its climate-finance negotiating positions belong to topic 11 and are cited rather than re-argued here. Why this earns marks: it answers the institutional half precisely, evidences each venue with a dated instrument at its correct evidentiary level, and names the geopolitical mechanism instead of gesturing at it.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on “PYQ DEMAND CARD 5 - 2022 General Studies Paper II Question 20”, every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Claim: on the institutional half of this demand, India's climate diplomacy has changed by widening the range of fora in which it argues, moving from a treaty-process position expressed mainly in the climate regime to a position simultaneously advanced in the climate regime, in general United Nations instruments, in adjudication and in the trade institution. Named evidence and example: in the general United Nations track, the Pact for the Future adopted on 22 September 2024 carries the Declaration on Future Generations as Annex II and the Global Digital Compact as Annex I, both political frameworks rather than binding treaties; in the adjudicative track, the International Court of Justice delivered its advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change on 23 July 2025, treating climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation with breach capable of engaging State responsibility, while the Court's own page confirms that advisory opinions are not binding except where binding force is expressly provided and that the requesting body remains free to decide what effect to give them; in the treaty track, the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entered into force on 17 January 2026, with India having signed on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification; and in the trade institution, whose own page confirms a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost organ meeting at least once every two years, climate-linked measures now enter the same negotiating space, while the financing dimension is carried by the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association, finalised in December 2024 and mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028.

Analysis: the institutional change is a change of venue as much as of content, because a position that once had to be won inside one treaty process can now be pressed through law, finance and trade rules simultaneously, which suits a state whose central claim is differentiated responsibility with finance and technology access; the geopolitical edge follows directly, since the venues that advance fastest are those that do not require permanent-member ratification.

Qualification: the description must record that an advisory opinion is authoritative but not binding, that signature without ratification leaves India outside a treaty in force, that a summit annex expresses intent rather than obligation, that replenishment finance does not redistribute governance, and that India's own emissions-intensity and non-fossil capacity commitments and its climate-finance negotiating positions belong to topic 11 and are cited rather than re-argued here. Why this earns marks: it answers the institutional half precisely, evidences each venue with a dated instrument at its correct evidentiary level, and names the geopolitical mechanism instead of gesturing at it.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: PYQ DEMAND CARD 5 - 2022 General Studies Paper II Question 20 Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Claim: on the institutional half of this demand, India's climate diplomacy has changed by widening the range of fora in which it argues, moving from a treaty-process position expressed mainly in the climate regime to a position simultaneously advanced in the climate regime, in general United Nations instruments, in adjudication and in the trade institution. Named evidence and example: in the general United Nations track, the Pact for the Future adopted on 22 September 2024 carries the Declaration on Future Generations as Annex II and the Global Digital Compact as Annex I, both political frameworks rather than binding treaties; in the adjudicative track, the International Court of Justice delivered its advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change on 23 July 2025, treating climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation with breach capable of engaging State responsibility, while the Court's own page confirms that advisory opinions are not binding except where binding force is expressly provided and that the requesting body remains free to decide what effect to give them; in the treaty track, the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entered into force on 17 January 2026, with India having signed on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification; and in the trade institution, whose own page confirms a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost organ meeting at least once every two years, climate-linked measures now enter the same negotiating space, while the financing dimension is carried by the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association, finalised in December 2024 and mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028. Analysis: the institutional change is a change of venue as much as of content, because a position that once had to be won inside one treaty process can now be pressed through law, finance and trade rules simultaneously, which suits a state whose central claim is differentiated responsibility with finance and technology access; the geopolitical edge follows directly, since the venues that advance fastest are those that do not require permanent-member ratification. Qualification: the description must record that an advisory opinion is authoritative but not binding, that signature without ratification leaves India outside a treaty in force, that a summit annex expresses intent rather than obligation, that replenishment finance does not redistribute governance, and that India's own emissions-intensity and non-fossil capacity commitments and its climate-finance negotiating positions belong to topic 11 and are cited rather than re-argued here. Why this earns marks: it answers the institutional half precisely, evidences each venue with a dated instrument at its correct evidentiary level, and names the geopolitical mechanism instead of gesturing at it.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 5 - 2022 General Studies Paper II Question 20", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 1 - 10 MARKS

Question: Comment on the proposition that the veto is simultaneously the reason the United Nations survived and the reason its Security Council cannot be reformed. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: The proposition is defensible once the Charter's own wording is used, so the comment must state the voting rule and the amendment rule exactly and then show that the same requirement performs both functions.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist.
- The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change.

- The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all.
- The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it.

Qualified conclusion: The proposition is defensible once the Charter's own wording is used, so the comment must state the voting rule and the amendment rule exactly and then show that the same requirement performs both functions.

Demand decoding: The directive comment requires a direct position on "Comment on the proposition that the veto is simultaneously the reason the United Nations...", every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: The proposition is defensible once the Charter's own wording is used, so the comment must state the voting rule and the amendment rule exactly and then show that the same requirement performs both functions.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

2. Claim and named evidence: The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
3. Claim and named evidence: The owners record that the Group of Four, comprising India, Brazil, Germany and Japan, is the principal coalition advocating expansion of the Security Council, that Tharoor records the coalition taking the debate away from what he calls the feckless Open-Ended Working Group in 2010 toward a more concrete reform push, and that Tharoor's own framing of the objective is a renewed, not a retired, United Nations, since the United Nations is as necessary today as it was in 1945 and will be even more necessary tomorrow; the owners require the distinction between a diffuse consensus-seeking working group and a focused advocacy coalition to be stated precisely, because it explains why reform momentum shifted after 2010 without producing an outcome, and they add that a counter-coalition favouring expansion centred on elected seats rather than new permanent seats is a genuine and persistent obstacle that is not reducible to opposition to any enlargement at all. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
4. Claim and named evidence: The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: The proposition is defensible once the Charter's own wording is used, so the comment must state the voting rule and the amendment rule exactly and then show that the same requirement performs both functions.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 10 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains strategy and implementation rather than listing visits or groupings, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves institutional, status, level, causal and geopolitical distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For “Comment on the proposition that the veto is simultaneously the reason the United Nations...”, replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 2 - 10 MARKS

Question: Comment on the claim that India's reform demand is confined to a permanent seat on the Security Council. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: The claim is incomplete, so the comment must set out the dual-track demand, evidence the General Assembly limb from the source that states it and cite India's dated negotiating position.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it.
- The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome.
- The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives.
- The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one.

Qualified conclusion: The claim is incomplete, so the comment must set out the dual-track demand, evidence the General Assembly limb from the source that states it and cite India's dated negotiating position.

Demand decoding: The directive comment requires a direct position on “Comment on the claim that India's reform demand is confined to a permanent seat on the...”, every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: The claim is incomplete, so the comment must set out the dual-track demand, evidence the General Assembly limb from the source that states it and cite India's dated negotiating position.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: The owners set out the principal organs with distinct functions that must not be merged: the General Assembly with universal membership, deliberating and recommending; the Security Council with primary responsibility for international peace and security and a permanent membership holding a veto; the Economic and Social Council coordinating economic and social work; the International Court of Justice as the judicial organ; and the Secretariat as the administrative organ headed by the Secretary-General; they add that India's reform demand is dual-track, because Tharoor records that India, like many developing countries, wants the General Assembly strengthened as the primary intergovernmental legislative body, which it is not yet, rather than left as a rhetorical forum prone to declaratory effulgences without effect, so treating Security Council expansion as the whole of India's reform position understates it. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
2. Claim and named evidence: The owners record India's intervention at the Intergovernmental Negotiations on 20 April 2026, delivered on the African model of Security Council reform, in which India aligned with the L.69 and Group of Four statements and, nationally, supported the African model, expansion in both categories, a twenty-six-member Council, a larger role for troop-contributing countries in mandate design, the principle that existing and new permanent members must have the same privileges and responsibilities on the veto expressed as an all-or-none rule with no sub-category within the permanent category, and the position that non-permanent-only expansion would not result in real and substantive reform; the owners insist that this is a negotiating position and not reform achieved, and that a stated national position must never be reported as an agreed outcome. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
3. Claim and named evidence: The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
4. Claim and named evidence: The owners record that the Intergovernmental Negotiations are the General Assembly-mandated informal-plenary forum where Security Council reform is discussed without a fixed timeline, that the co-chairs for the eightieth session were appointed on 31 October 2025 and are Kuwait and the Netherlands, and that as of 3 August 2026 the Assembly had adopted neither a consolidated model nor a decision commencing text-based negotiations, with the eightieth-session process continuing through a revised Elements Paper and a rollover decision recorded in the July 2026 correspondence; the owners name this as the single most important status fact for any reform answer, because it converts an easy claim that negotiations have begun into a checkable and false one. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: The claim is incomplete, so the comment must set out the dual-track demand, evidence the General Assembly limb from the source that states it and cite India's dated negotiating position.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 10 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains strategy and implementation rather than listing visits or groupings, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves institutional, status, level, causal and geopolitical distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Comment on the claim that India's reform demand is confined to a permanent seat on the...", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 3 - 15 MARKS

Question: Examine why an evaluation of the Security Council's counter-terrorism machinery must begin by identifying which body is being evaluated. Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: Effectiveness is mandate-relative, so the examination must separate coordination from listing, date the founding and renewal instruments and then judge effectiveness against the mandate that actually exists.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body.
- The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency.
- The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat.

- The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution.

Qualified conclusion: Effectiveness is mandate-relative, so the examination must separate coordination from listing, date the founding and renewal instruments and then judge effectiveness against the mandate that actually exists.

Demand decoding: The directive examine requires a direct position on "Examine why an evaluation of the Security Council's counter-terrorism machinery must begin by...", every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Effectiveness is mandate-relative, so the examination must separate coordination from listing, date the founding and renewal instruments and then judge effectiveness against the mandate that actually exists.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
2. Claim and named evidence: The same Charter page records Article 24, by which Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and agree that in carrying out its duties the Council acts on their behalf, with its specific powers laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII and with an obligation to submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly; Article 25, by which the Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the Charter; Article 29, permitting the Council to establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary; and Articles 31 and 32, permitting non-members of the Council and even non-members of the Organization to participate in discussion without vote in specified circumstances; the owners use Article 29 in particular to explain why a counter-terrorism committee is a creature of the Council rather than an independent agency. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
3. Claim and named evidence: The United Nations Peacekeeping page checked live on 2026-09-03 records three inter-related and mutually reinforcing basic principles, namely consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and it records that consent by the main parties does not guarantee consent at the local level, that impartiality must not be confused with neutrality or inactivity since peacekeepers should be impartial in dealings but not neutral in executing the mandate, and that operations are not an enforcement tool although they may use force at the tactical level with Security Council authorization, so robust peacekeeping must not be confused with peace enforcement under Chapter VII of the Charter; the owners add India's dated contribution, recording more than 275,000 Indian personnel serving in over fifty missions since 1948 and the first all-women Formed Police Unit deployed to Liberia in 2007, and they attach the limitation plainly, namely that troop contribution strengthens India's responsible-multilateralism claim but does not automatically yield a permanent seat. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence.

Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

4. Claim and named evidence: The owners require the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court to be kept apart: the former is a principal organ of the United Nations deciding disputes between States and giving advisory opinions, while the latter is a separate treaty court created by the 1998 Rome Statute to prosecute individuals for specified international crimes, and India is neither a signatory nor a State Party to that Statute; they add the parallel institutional distinction that the Council's counter-terrorism machinery monitors implementation of resolution 1373 through United Nations bodies while the Financial Action Task Force is a separate intergovernmental standard-setter for anti-money-laundering and counter-terrorist-financing systems, and that neither substitutes for national investigation and prosecution. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Effectiveness is mandate-relative, so the examination must separate coordination from listing, date the founding and renewal instruments and then judge effectiveness against the mandate that actually exists.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains strategy and implementation rather than listing visits or groupings, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves institutional, status, level, causal and geopolitical distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Examine why an evaluation of the Security Council's counter-terrorism machinery must begin by...", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 4 - 15 MARKS

Question: Examine the proposition that global governance now advances mainly through tracks that do not require Charter amendment. Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: The proposition is largely supported by dated evidence, so the examination must name the adjudicative, administrative and treaty tracks, evidence each and then concede what those tracks cannot deliver.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause.

- The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility.
- The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party.
- The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator.

Qualified conclusion: The proposition is largely supported by dated evidence, so the examination must name the adjudicative, administrative and treaty tracks, evidence each and then concede what those tracks cannot deliver.

Demand decoding: The directive examine requires a direct position on "Examine the proposition that global governance now advances mainly through tracks that do not...", every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: The proposition is largely supported by dated evidence, so the examination must name the adjudicative, administrative and treaty tracks, evidence each and then concede what those tracks cannot deliver.

Analytical body:

- 1. Claim and named evidence: The owners record two administrative tracks that change how the Organization works without changing who sits on the Council: the UN80 Initiative launched by the Secretary-General on 12 March 2025, covering Secretariat efficiency, mandate-implementation review and structural and programmatic realignment, and the selection process for the next Secretary-General, since Antonio Guterres's second term ends on 31 December 2026 and the process was formally initiated by a joint letter of the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council on 25 November 2025 under resolution 79/327 of 5 September 2025; the owners add the distinctively advanced observation that while Charter-level reform stalls, institutional change has migrated to tracks that do not require permanent-member ratification, which explains the impasse's consequence and not merely its cause. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
- 2. Claim and named evidence: The International Court of Justice page checked live on 2026-09-03 records that only States are entitled to appear before the Court in contentious cases, that a special advisory procedure is available to five United Nations organs, fifteen specialized agencies and one related organization and to them alone, that advisory proceedings begin with a written request addressed to the Registrar by the Secretary-General or the head of the requesting entity, and that, contrary to judgments and except in rare cases where binding force is expressly provided such as the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, the corresponding Convention for the specialized agencies and the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States, the Court's advisory opinions are not binding, so the requesting organ, agency or organization remains free to decide what effect to give them while the opinions nonetheless carry great legal weight and moral authority; the owners attach the dated Indian-relevant instances, recording President Yuji Iwasawa elected on 3 March 2025 and the advisory opinion on Obligations of States in respect of Climate Change delivered on 23 July 2025, which treats climate-protection duties under treaty and customary law as requiring due diligence, prevention of significant harm and cooperation, with breach capable of engaging State responsibility. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
- 3. Claim and named evidence: The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

4. Claim and named evidence: The owners record that the Pact for the Future was adopted at the Summit of the Future on 22 September 2024 with Annex I, the Global Digital Compact, and Annex II, the Declaration on Future Generations, and they record that the Global Digital Compact is a political framework for digital cooperation rather than a binding global technology treaty; they require the Pact to be cited as evidence of sustained political attention to reform rather than as delivered institutional change, since a summit outcome document expresses intent and cannot amend the Charter, and they connect it to the wider technology-governance layer in which the Global Partnership on Artificial Intelligence is a multistakeholder partnership for responsible human-centric artificial intelligence and the International Telecommunication Union develops telecommunications standards and supports connectivity without being an artificial-intelligence regulator. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: The proposition is largely supported by dated evidence, so the examination must name the adjudicative, administrative and treaty tracks, evidence each and then concede what those tracks cannot deliver.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains strategy and implementation rather than listing visits or groupings, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves institutional, status, level, causal and geopolitical distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For “Examine the proposition that global governance now advances mainly through tracks that do not...”, replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 5 - 20 MARKS

Question: Assess the four dimensions along which reform of international institutions should be analysed. Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: Reform is not one question, so the assessment must separate representation, decision-making, financing and compliance, evidence each with a dated instrument and deliver a graded verdict on where movement is actually possible.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it.

- The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist.
- The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party.
- The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025.

Qualified conclusion: Reform is not one question, so the assessment must separate representation, decision-making, financing and compliance, evidence each with a dated instrument and deliver a graded verdict on where movement is actually possible.

Demand decoding: The directive assess requires a direct position on “Assess the four dimensions along which reform of international institutions should be...”, every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Reform is not one question, so the assessment must separate representation, decision-making, financing and compliance, evidence each with a dated instrument and deliver a graded verdict on where movement is actually possible.

Analytical body:

- 1. Claim and named evidence: The United Nations Charter Chapter V page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 23 providing that the Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations, that the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America shall be permanent members, that the General Assembly shall elect ten other Members as non-permanent members with due regard first to their contribution to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization and also to equitable geographical distribution, that non-permanent members are elected for a term of two years and that a retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election, with each member having one representative; the owners require the Charter's own naming to be read carefully, because the printed text still names the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which is exactly why an answer must distinguish the Charter's text from the practice that followed it. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
- 2. Claim and named evidence: The Charter page records Article 27 providing that each member of the Security Council shall have one vote, that decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members, and that decisions on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, with the proviso that in decisions under Chapter VI and under paragraph 3 of Article 52 a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting; the owners convert this into the exact examinable statement, namely that the word veto does not appear as a grant of a special power but arises from the requirement of concurring permanent-member votes on non-procedural matters, that a nine-vote threshold applies to both categories, and that the only compulsory abstention in the text is the party-to-a-dispute rule, and they add the analytical point that the veto was designed to keep major powers inside the system after the League of Nations experience while simultaneously blocking any reform those same powers resist. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
- 3. Claim and named evidence: The owners treat governance reform of the financial and trade institutions as a distinct reform dimension that runs alongside Security Council reform and is frequently overshadowed by it: the International Monetary Fund provides monetary cooperation, exchange stability and temporary balance-of-payments support, its sixteenth General Review of Quotas concluded in December 2023 approved a fifty per cent equiproportional quota increase that strengthens quota-based resources while leaving relative quota and voting shares unchanged, and India's quota share is about 2.75 per cent with a voting share of about 2.63 per cent, a gap that supports the reform case while requiring collectively negotiated redistribution; the World Bank provides development finance and poverty-reduction support, its shareholding and Evolution Roadmap debates combine voice reform with a larger climate and development mandate, and the twenty-first replenishment of the International Development Association was finalised in December 2024 mobilising one hundred billion United States dollars for the financial years 2025 to 2028, though more finance does not itself redistribute voting power; the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank and the New Development Bank widen emerging-economy financing and voice while supplementing rather than replacing the Bretton Woods institutions; and the World Trade Organization, whose own structure page checked live on 2026-09-03 records a member-driven body deciding normally by consensus, with the Ministerial Conference as its topmost body meeting at least once every two years and the General Council, Dispute Settlement Body and Trade Policy Review Body as the same body under different terms of reference and with no power delegated to a board of directors or to its head, administers multilateral trade rules and provides negotiation, monitoring and dispute settlement; the owners also record law-making advancing outside the Council, with the agreement on marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction entering into force on 17 January 2026 while India signed it on 25 September 2024 without depositing ratification and is therefore not a party. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

4. Claim and named evidence: The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Reform is not one question, so the assessment must separate representation, decision-making, financing and compliance, evidence each with a dated instrument and deliver a graded verdict on where movement is actually possible.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 20 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains strategy and implementation rather than listing visits or groupings, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves institutional, status, level, causal and geopolitical distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Assess the four dimensions along which reform of international institutions should be...", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 6 - 20 MARKS

Question: Assess how far India's record of participation strengthens its claim to a larger role in international institutions. Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: Participation supports but does not entail entitlement, so the assessment must evidence the record across the Council, its committees and peacekeeping, and then state precisely why the entitlement does not follow.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives.
- The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body.
- The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30 January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025.
- The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change.

Qualified conclusion: Participation supports but does not entail entitlement, so the assessment must evidence the record across the Council, its committees and peacekeeping, and then state precisely why the entitlement does not follow.

Demand decoding: The directive assess requires a direct position on “Assess how far India's record of participation strengthens its claim to a larger role in...”, every clause, bilateral/regional/systemic mapping, interests and constraints, objective-instrument-implementation-outcome separation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, alternatives, implementation risks and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Participation supports but does not entail entitlement, so the assessment must evidence the record across the Council, its committees and peacekeeping, and then state precisely why the entitlement does not follow.

Analytical body:

- 1. Claim and named evidence: The owners record India's substantive engagement within the Council as it stands: Tharoor documents India's election by record margin to a non-permanent seat for 2011-12 alongside Germany and South Africa, with Brazil and Nigeria halfway through their own terms, and cites then-Foreign Minister S.M. Krishna's statement in India's first year on the Council that the international structure for maintaining peace and security and peacebuilding needs to be reformed because global power and the capacities to address problems are much more dispersed than they were six decades ago; India's most recent non-permanent terms were 2011-12 and 2021-22 and it launched its candidature for the 2028-29 term on 13 July 2026; the owners require participation and reform advocacy to be presented as two tracks of one position rather than as alternatives.

Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
- 2. Claim and named evidence: The owners record that the Counter-Terrorism Committee is a subsidiary body established by Security Council resolution 1373 of 28 September 2001, that India chaired it responsibly during its 2011-12 non-permanent term, that India hosted a special meeting of the Committee on 28-29 October 2022 which adopted the Delhi Declaration of 29 October 2022 on countering the use of new and emerging technologies for terrorist purposes, and that its expert arm, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, had its mandate renewed by resolution 2810 of 2025 through 5 January 2029; they state the decisive limitation in the same place, namely that the Committee and its Directorate coordinate, monitor and assess member-state compliance without independent enforcement power, and that listings sit with the separate 1267, 1989 and 2253 Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee supported by its Monitoring Team, a distinction that decides whether an evaluative answer is even addressing the right body. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.
- 3. Claim and named evidence: The owners use two agencies as the standing test of specialised-agency effectiveness. For the education and culture agency they record its creation in 1945 for cooperation in education, science, culture and communication, a General Conference of all members, a fifty-eight-member Executive Board providing oversight, a Secretariat led by the Director-General, and its administration of the 1972 World Heritage Convention through the World Heritage Committee and List; the funding and legitimacy case records the United States announcing withdrawal in 2017 effective 31 December 2018, returning in 2023 with an arrears-payment plan and notifying another withdrawal in July 2025 to take effect only at the end of December 2026, so that as of 3 August 2026 it remained a member and notification is expressly not completed withdrawal, while India was re-elected to the Executive Board for 2025-29, which creates agenda and oversight access without establishing delivery or control. For the health agency they record the World Health Assembly as the supreme decision-making body with an Executive Board giving effect to its decisions and a Secretariat implementing under the Director-General, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee reaching no public-health-emergency determination at its first meeting of 22-23 January 2020 before the declaration on 30

January 2020, the COVAX mechanism of the health agency with Gavi, the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations and the children's fund delivering close to two billion doses to 146 economies before closing at the end of 2023, the Pandemic Agreement adopted by consensus at the seventy-eighth World Health Assembly on 20 May 2025 with its pathogen access and benefit-sharing annex still under negotiation, no opening for signature as of 3 August 2026 and sixty ratifications required for entry into force, and the 2024 amendments to the International Health Regulations entering into force on 19 September 2025. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

4. Claim and named evidence: The United Nations Charter Chapter XVIII page checked live on 2026-09-03 records Article 108 providing that amendments come into force for all Members when they have been adopted by a vote of two thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, and Article 109 providing for a General Conference to review the Charter, convened by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and a vote of any nine members of the Security Council, with any alteration it recommends taking effect only on the same two-thirds ratification including all permanent members; the owners treat this as the single structural fact that explains the impasse, because expansion of the permanent category requires ratification by exactly the states whose relative position it would change. Analysis: Connect Indian and partner interests -> chosen diplomatic, security, economic or institutional instrument -> implementation mechanism -> bilateral, regional and systemic consequence. Qualification: State membership and mandate, announced/signed/ratified/operative/completed status, official source and date, partner agency, causal limit, trade-off, alternative or residual implementation risk.

Counter-position / limit: A doctrine label, summit declaration, signed document, project announcement, military exercise, trade change or diplomatic statement cannot alone establish binding obligation, operational delivery or strategic outcome; test legal character, implementation, partner response, alternatives and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Participation supports but does not entail entitlement, so the assessment must evidence the record across the Council, its committees and peacekeeping, and then state precisely why the entitlement does not follow.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 20 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing level -> interest -> instrument -> implementation -> outcome -> alternative; state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for source, date, membership, operative status, partner agency, causation, escalation and residual risk.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains strategy and implementation rather than listing visits or groupings, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves institutional, status, level, causal and geopolitical distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Assess how far India's record of participation strengthens its claim to a larger role in...", replace the weakest event-list point with one named actor, interest, instrument, implementation bottleneck, measurable outcome, alternative and source-date-status qualification.