EXTRA

SUBORDINATE ENRICHMENT — ONLY AFTER THE COMPLETE CORE

OPTIONAL ADVANCED ENRICHMENT · THE COMPANY USED THE 1717 FARMAN AND DASTAKS TO · BEYOND LEGITIMATE COMPANY GOODS, DAMAGING THE NAWAB'S REVENUE AND · COMPANY SERVANTS PURSUED PRIVATE TRADE UNDER THE COVER OF · CREATING A CONFLICT BETWEEN BENGAL'S FISCAL SOVEREIGNTY AND COMPANY · FORTIFICATION OF CALCUTTA WITHOUT NAWAB PERMISSION CHALLENGED SIRAJ-UD-DAULA'S AUTHORITY · THE BLACK HOLE NARRATIVE SHOULD BE TREATED CAUTIOUSLY BECAUSE · PLASSEY WAS A PALACE-AND-BANKING CONSPIRACY INVOLVING MIR JAFAR, RAI

OPTIONAL SOURCE DEPTH
- The Company used the 1717 farman and dastaks to expand duty-free trade
- beyond legitimate Company goods, damaging the Nawab's revenue and Indian merchants.
- Company servants pursued private trade under the cover of Company privileges,
- creating a conflict between Bengal's fiscal sovereignty and Company commercial immunity.

ADVANCED DEBATE
- Fortification of Calcutta without Nawab permission challenged Siraj-ud-Daula's authority and made the Company appear like a political power.
- CAUTION: The Black Hole narrative should be treated cautiously because its details and later use as imperial justification are contested.
- Plassey was a palace-and-banking conspiracy involving Mir Jafar, Rai Durlabh, Jagat Seth and Amichand
- It gave the Company a pliant Nawab and enormous leverage.

LEGACY / NUANCE
- Mir Qasim tried to restore autonomy through administrative reform, military reorganisation and abolition of inland duties
- this threatened Company privilege.
- Buxar mattered more militarily because the Company defeated a combined Bengal-Awadh-Mughal force, proving supremacy beyond palace politics.
- Allahabad (1765) gave the Company Diwani while keeping Awadh as a buffer, producing a revenue-backed territorial corporation.

OPTIONAL STATUS — This optional depth is unnecessary for a competent core answer; use it only for added nuance after the complete core has been written.
