E

EXTRA — SUBORDINATE ENRICHMENT — ONLY AFTER THE COMPLETE CORE

OPTIONAL ADVANCED ENRICHMENT · INDIA'S STRUGGLE FOR INDEPENDENCE PRESENTS THE WAR YEARS AS · WHICH IMPERIAL CLAIMS TO DEFEND DEMOCRACY CLASHED WITH THE · THE CONGRESS RESPONSE WAS NOT ISOLATIONIST · IT OBJECTED TO BEING COMMITTED TO WAR WITHOUT A · THE AUGUST OFFER RETAINED THE VICEROY'S CONTROL AND GAVE · THE COLONIAL PATTERN OF USING COMMUNAL SAFEGUARDS TO BLOCK · THE CRIPPS PROPOSALS RECOGNISED CONSTITUTION-MAKING BUT WEAKENED NATIONAL UNITY

OPTIONAL SOURCE DEPTH
- India's Struggle for Independence presents the war years as a decisive phase in
- which imperial claims to defend democracy clashed with the denial of Indian self-government.
- The Congress response was not isolationist
- it objected to being committed to war without a declaration that India would be free and without an immediate national government.

ADVANCED DEBATE
- The August Offer retained the Viceroy's control and gave minorities a practical veto, strengthening
- the colonial pattern of using communal safeguards to block national transfer of power.
- The Cripps proposals recognised constitution-making but weakened national unity by allowing British Indian provinces not to accept the
- princely-state representation remained controlled by rulers rather than popular election.

LEGACY / NUANCE
- The arrest of the entire top leadership on 9 August 1942 produced a decentralised upsurge
- local activists, students, workers, peasants and underground socialists carried the struggle forward.
- The movement included strikes, processions, attacks on railways and telegraphs,
- disruption of police stations, underground bulletins and clandestine radio broadcasts.

OPTIONAL STATUS — This optional depth is unnecessary for a competent core answer; use it only for added nuance after the complete core has been written.
