EXTRA

SUBORDINATE ENRICHMENT — ONLY AFTER THE COMPLETE CORE

OPTIONAL ADVANCED ENRICHMENT · THE COLONIAL ECONOMY WAS STRUCTURALLY DEPENDENT — COMMERCIALISED AGRICULTURE · GROWTH, ARRESTED INDUSTRIALISATION, AND A STATE GEARED TO EXTRACTION · LANDLESS AGRICULTURAL LABOUR HAD RISEN FROM ABOUT 13% (1871) · THE PARADOX OF 1947 IS THAT INDIA WAS ECONOMICALLY · THE MOST CONFIDENT — BECAUSE THE FREEDOM STRUGGLE HAD · CHANDRA'S ARGUMENT · THE NATIONAL MOVEMENT " INDIGENISED DEMOCRACY , " GIVING

OPTIONAL SOURCE DEPTH

- The colonial economy was structurally dependent — commercialised agriculture without productivity
- growth; arrested industrialisation, and a state geared to extraction, not development.
- Landless agricultural labour had risen from about 13% (1871) to 28% (1951) , a marker of colonial agrarian distress.
- CAUTION: The paradox of 1947 is that India was economically among the poorest nations yet politically among

ADVANCED DEBATE

- the most confident — because the freedom struggle had already built a democratic, participatory political culture.
- CAUTION: Chandra's argument: the national movement " indigenised democracy , " giving
- the new institutions a legitimacy that most decolonising states lacked.
- Four simultaneous threats — communal violence, the Telangana insurgency, princely-state integration, and

LEGACY / NUANCE

- the Kashmir war — could have Balkanised or militarised the state.
- The leadership chose secularism plus force plus reconciliation : containing riots; banning and then rehabilitating
- the RSS, integrating states, and defeating the Communist insurgency while keeping the CPI legal.
- CAUTION: The decision to adopt universal adult franchise at once — in a poor, largely illiterate

OPTIONAL STATUS — This optional depth is unnecessary for a competent core answer; use it only for added nuance after the complete core has been written.
