

COMPLETE LEARNING SESSION

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments - Learner-v2 Refreshed

UPSC complete learning session | Foundation to advanced | Concepts, evidence, practice and answer writing

Original deterministic study visual; labels are explanatory, not textual quotations.

Source order: repository knowledge -> official current linkage -> clearly marked analysis. No fabricated PYQs or statistics.

CONTENTS / SESSION INDEX

Major learning parts and meaningful subtopics are listed in document order. Page numbers are generated from the final PDF layout; PDF bookmarks mirror the same hierarchy.

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments - Learner-v2 Complete Learning Session	7
SOURCE, PROGRESSION AND CURRENT-LINKAGE AUDIT	7
BASIC LEARNING SESSION	8
DEEP-REVIEW LEARNING CONTRACT	8
EVIDENCE, PYQ AND CURRENT-STATUS CONTROL	9
SESSION 1 - FOUNDATION - What the sports-governance owner holds	10
SESSION 2 - FOUNDATION - The layered governance map	11
SESSION 3 - FOUNDATION - Three functions and one autonomy limit	13
SESSION 4 - CORE - Why the absence of exit changes everything	15
SESSION 5 - CORE - The Grand Slam architecture	16
SESSION 6 - CORE - Four entry routes and the eligibility distinction	17
SESSION 7 - CORE - Wild-card precision	19
SESSION 8 - CORE - Stages, thresholds and the statement method	20
SESSION 9 - CORE - The statute and its legislative trail	22
SESSION 10 - CORE - Phased commencement and the gazette record	23
SESSION 11 - CORE - What the Act actually creates	24
SESSION 12 - CORE - The status ladder discipline	26
SESSION 13 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Anti-doping law and strict liability	27
SESSION 14 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Legal character and the six-test checklist	29
SESSION 15 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Trade-offs, incidence and honest ownership	31
GOVERNANCE DEEP-REVIEW CORE CONTROL	41
BASIC MCQS / REMEDIATION	41
Q1. Which statement correctly identifies What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?	41
Q2. Which chronology card should be filed under What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?	42
Q3. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?	42
Q4. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?	43
Q5. Which statement correctly identifies The layered governance map of organised sport?	44
Q6. Which chronology card should be filed under The layered governance map of organised sport?	44

Q7. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The layered governance map of organised sport?	45
Q8. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The layered governance map of organised sport?	45
Q9. Which statement correctly identifies The distinct roles of the named institutions?	46
Q10. Which chronology card should be filed under The distinct roles of the named institutions?	47
Q11. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The distinct roles of the named institutions?	47
Q12. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The distinct roles of the named institutions?	48
Q13. Which statement correctly identifies Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?	48
Q14. Which chronology card should be filed under Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?	49
Q15. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?	49
Q16. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?	50
Q17. Which statement correctly identifies Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?	50
Q18. Which chronology card should be filed under Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?	51
Q19. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?	51
Q20. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?	52
Q21. Which statement correctly identifies Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?	52
Q22. Which chronology card should be filed under Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?	53
Q23. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?	53
Q24. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?	54
Q25. Which statement correctly identifies The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?	54
Q26. Which chronology card should be filed under The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?	55
Q27. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?	55
Q28. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?	56
Q29. Which statement correctly identifies The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?	56
Q30. Which chronology card should be filed under The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?	57
Q31. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?	57
Q32. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?	58
Q33. Which statement correctly identifies Wild-card precision?	58
Q34. Which chronology card should be filed under Wild-card precision?	59
Q35. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Wild-card precision?	59
Q36. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Wild-card precision?	60

Q37. Which statement correctly identifies Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?	60
Q38. Which chronology card should be filed under Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?	61
Q39. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?	61
Q40. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?	62
Q41. Which statement correctly identifies The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?	63
Q42. Which chronology card should be filed under The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?	63
Q43. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?	64
Q44. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?	64
Q45. Which statement correctly identifies The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?	65
Q46. Which chronology card should be filed under The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?	66
Q47. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?	66
Q48. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?	67
Q49. Which statement correctly identifies Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?	68
Q50. Which chronology card should be filed under Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?	68
Q51. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?	69
Q52. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?	70
Q53. Which statement correctly identifies What the Act creates as examinable governance content?	70
Q54. Which chronology card should be filed under What the Act creates as examinable governance content?	71
Q55. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What the Act creates as examinable governance content?	72
Q56. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What the Act creates as examinable governance content?	73
Q57. Which statement correctly identifies The status ladder that must appear in any answer?	74
Q58. Which chronology card should be filed under The status ladder that must appear in any answer?	75
Q59. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The status ladder that must appear in any answer?	75
Q60. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The status ladder that must appear in any answer?	77
Q61. Which statement correctly identifies The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?	78
Q62. Which chronology card should be filed under The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?	79
Q63. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?	80
Q64. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?	81
Q65. Which statement correctly identifies Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?	82

Q66. Which chronology card should be filed under Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?	83
Q67. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?	84
Q68. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?	85
Q69. Which statement correctly identifies Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?	86
Q70. Which chronology card should be filed under Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?	87
Q71. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?	88
Q72. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?	89
Q73. Which statement correctly identifies The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?	89
Q74. Which chronology card should be filed under The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?	90
Q75. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?	91
Q76. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?	92
Q77. Which statement correctly identifies Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?	93
Q78. Which chronology card should be filed under Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?	94
Q79. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?	95
Q80. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?	97
PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE	98
VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT	98
OWNER PYQ LEDGER EXTRACTS	98
PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2026 Preliminary Examination General Studies Paper-I	99
ORIGINAL MAINS 1 - 10 MARKS	101
ORIGINAL MAINS 2 - 10 MARKS	103
ORIGINAL MAINS 3 - 15 MARKS	105
ORIGINAL MAINS 4 - 15 MARKS	107
ORIGINAL MAINS 5 - 20 MARKS	110
ORIGINAL MAINS 6 - 20 MARKS	111
OPTIONAL ADVANCED DEPTH - NOT REQUIRED FOR A CORE ANSWER	114
CONSOLIDATED REGISTER NOTES	115
Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments: RAPID INSTITUTION, INSTRUMENT AND EVIDENCE MAP	115
Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments: CLOSE-OPTION AND CAUSAL TRAPS	118
Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments: ANSWER-WRITING SPINE	119
Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments: CURRENT-STATUS AND DATA BOUNDARY	119

COMPLETE TOPIC ASCII MASTER FLOW DIAGRAM 120

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments - Learner-v2 Complete Learning Session

Authoring-only generation: 2026-09-02. No PDF was rendered and no tracker or index was mutated.

SOURCE, PROGRESSION AND CURRENT-LINKAGE AUDIT

- Generation date: 2026-09-02.
- Repository-first evidence: the Basic owner is taught first and preserved in full; the Advanced owner is retained only in the optional final teaching block.
- OCR evidence: Repository Markdown was primary. The OCR-searchable official General Studies question papers held under books\mains and books\more_previous_papers were used only to confirm the printed wording of routed Mains demands. No official answer key, marking scheme, page precision or unsupported quotation was imported from them.
- Qdrant: not used; repository Markdown and available OCR context were sufficient.
- PYQ integrity: One applied objective demand is routed to this topic across the audited ledgers and no direct General Studies Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here, so no Mains demand card is manufactured and no question is invented from the locally held OCR-searchable official papers. The audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes the objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, and the owner's own generated 2026 integration block records the same routing. The 2026 Set-A key held locally is provisional, so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred for it, and the demand card below supplies only the rule-architecture route by which each proposition in such an item is tested separately. The Indian statutory position was verified by the owners on 13 August 2026 and the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026, and the package applies the status ladder throughout, so no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the National Sports Board is asserted, no case decided by the National Sports Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.
- Live-link boundary: One live official page was verified for this topic on 2026-09-02. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page on the official yas.gov.in domain was read successfully on that date and returned the text of the National Sports Policy, which states that the Central Government, in conjunction with the State Governments, the Indian Olympic Association and the National Sports Federations, will pursue the twin objectives of broad-basing of sports and achieving excellence in sports at the national and international levels, that broad-basing will primarily remain a responsibility of the State Governments while the Union Government actively supplements their efforts including for tapping latent talent in rural and tribal areas, that the Union Government and the Sports Authority of India in association with the Indian Olympic Association and the National Sports Federations will focus on achieving excellence, that a Resolution on the National Sports Policy was laid in both Houses of Parliament in August 1984, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution of India and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued; that last item is recorded strictly as a stated policy intention and is not treated as a claim about the present position of sports in the constitutional lists, and nothing further is inferred from the page. Seven further official checks were attempted on the same date and yielded no usable official text, namely the Sports Authority of India website, which returned a server error, the national anti-doping organisation's about page, which redirected away from any content, the Court of Arbitration for Sport's information pages, which returned not-found errors, the international tennis federation's rules and regulations page, which was blocked by a bot-protection interstitial, the world anti-doping agency's code page, which returned no extractable content, the international Olympic body's governance information page, which timed out, and the Press Information Bureau release page, which was refused with an access error; no content from any of them was read or used and no secondary summary has been treated as an official source. Every substantive statutory and tournament element in this package therefore rests on the repository owners with their own status checks, namely the National Sports Governance Act, 2025 introduced on 23 July 2025, passed on 11 and 12 August 2025, assented on 18 August 2025 as Act No. 25 of 2025, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O.

2406(E) commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, sections 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29, rules framed during 2026 whose individual contents remain secondary-reported, the National Sports Board and National Sports Tribunal as statutory creations whose recognition and jurisdiction provisions were not located in a commenced tranche, the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 as the still-operative administrative recognition instrument read with the Act's deeming continuity, the National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 giving the national anti-doping organisation statutory status, the National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 recorded only from secondary reporting and therefore cited without section numbers or commencement dates, the Sports Authority of India as a society registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport as an international arbitral institution at Lausanne established in 1984, all as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, together with the Grand Slam tournament and entry-route architecture verified by the owners on 2 August 2026. The controlling discipline applied throughout is that enactment is not commencement, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution and constitution is not operational jurisdiction. No unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the National Sports Board is asserted, no case decided by the National Sports Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, no tournament date, host, draw outcome or result is asserted, no medal tally is asserted, and no funding figure is asserted. Decorative match trivia is excluded by design, because the examinable content of this topic is institutional and legal rather than sporting.

- Fact/inference discipline: no current-affairs item, PYQ wording, figure or quotation is invented.

BASIC LEARNING SESSION

DEEP-REVIEW LEARNING CONTRACT

Control	Binding rule for this package
Syllabus boundary	Complete Governance Basic/Core is answer-complete before optional Advanced depth.
Authority boundary	Constitution, statute, delegated rule, executive policy, scheme, recommendation, institution and implementation outcome remain distinct.
Implementation method	Objective -> authority -> finance -> institution -> frontline process -> citizen access -> output -> outcome -> feedback and remedy.
Federal method	Union, state, district, local body, regulator, parastatal and non-state roles are assigned without inventing jurisdiction.
Accountability method	Duty-holder -> information -> forum -> questioning -> consequence -> correction -> grievance/appeal.
Evidence method	Claim -> named India-centric law/institution/scheme/case -> causal analysis -> source/date/status and implementation qualification.
Inclusion method	Gender, caste, tribe, disability, language, region, digital divide, privacy and offline safeguards are tested across access and outcome.
Practice contract	Every solved item has demand decoding, a detailed examiner-grade model, executable timed/compression plan, marks rationale and answer-specific improvement.
Approval	This immutable successor remains approved: false pending explicit approval.

Canonical Basic/Core owner: upsc-ai-kit\knowledge\Governance\basic\16_Sports-Governance-Institutions-and-Major-Tournaments.md Substantive canonical provenance owner: upsc-ai-kit\knowledge\Governance\16_Sports-Governance-Institutions-and-Major-Tournaments_Learner-V2-Complete-Topic-Package.md Optional Advanced owner: upsc-ai-kit\knowledge\Governance\advanced\16_Sports-Governance-Institutions-and-Major-Tournaments.md Official syllabus mapping: upsc-ai-kit\knowledge\Governance\OFFICIAL-UPSC-SYLLABUS-MAPPING.md

EVIDENCE, PYQ AND CURRENT-STATUS CONTROL

- Legal-status discipline: a proposal, commission recommendation, policy announcement, Cabinet approval, enacted statute, notified rule, commenced provision and implemented programme are never treated as the same status.
- Institutional discipline: constitutional, statutory, executive, regulatory, autonomous, registered private and international bodies retain exact mandate, jurisdiction and accountability.
- Causal discipline: allocation, portal creation, training, registration, disposal count or ranking does not by itself prove access, remedy, capability, service quality or outcome.
- Indicator discipline: input, process, output, outcome and impact indicators are separated; denominator, baseline, disaggregation, attribution and gaming risks are stated.
- Trade-off discipline: speed, expertise, autonomy, transparency, privacy, participation, fiscal control and inclusion are balanced with safeguards and residual risk.
- PYQ discipline: exact wording is preserved only where verified; routed or reconstructed demands remain labelled and no inferred answer is promoted as official.
- Current-status note, rechecked 2026-09-05: volatile law, scheme, institution, tournament and programme claims retain official source, date, jurisdiction and operative/interim/final status.

Generation-local live/current sources:

- <https://yas.gov.in/sports/national-sports-governance-act-2025>

Refreshed teaching navigation

Distinct embedded teaching-navigation image. The separate continuous Cārvāka-style flowchart package remains an independent at-a-glance artifact.

SESSION 1 - FOUNDATION - What the sports-governance owner holds

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: What the sports-governance owner holds is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, What the sports-governance owner holds denotes the source-bounded relationship among What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

What the sports-governance owner holds should be analysed as a relation among What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- What
- sports-governance
- holds
- this
- ways
- examined

How to use them: Define What, sports-governance, holds; cite this as named evidence; then apply this qualification: No result, medal tally, athlete name, doping case or recognition status belongs in this answer. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Set the correct scope and avoid decorative sporting detail from the first sentence..

VISUAL FIRST

WHAT THE SPORTS-GOVERNANCE OWNER HOLDS

01. What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined

BOUNDARY -> No result, medal tally, athlete name, doping case or recognition status belongs in this answer.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- No result, medal tally, athlete name, doping case or recognition status belongs in this answer.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to What the sports-governance owner holds.
- Mains: Set the correct scope and avoid decorative sporting detail from the first sentence.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined
- Qualified use: Set the correct scope and avoid decorative sporting detail from the first sentence.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS What sports-governance holds this ways examined	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that set the correct scope and avoid decorative sporting detail from the first sentence.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: No result, medal tally, athlete name, doping case or recognition status belongs in this answer.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: What the sports-governance owner holds converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 2 - FOUNDATION - The layered governance map

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: The layered governance map is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how The layered governance map of organised sport and The distinct roles of the named institutions fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, The layered governance map denotes the source-bounded relationship among The layered governance map of organised sport and The distinct roles of the named institutions, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

The layered governance map should be analysed as a relation among The layered governance map of organised sport and The distinct roles of the named institutions, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- layered
- organised
- sport
- distinct
- roles
- named

How to use them: Define layered, organised, sport; cite distinct as named evidence; then apply this qualification: The Olympic body does not make the ordinary rules of every sport. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Place a disputed decision in the correct governing layer before analysing it..

VISUAL FIRST

THE LAYERED GOVERNANCE MAP

01. The layered governance map of organised sport

|
v

02. The distinct roles of the named institutions

BOUNDARY -> The Olympic body does not make the ordinary rules of every sport.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.
- The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- The Olympic body does not make the ordinary rules of every sport.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to The layered governance map.
- Mains: Place a disputed decision in the correct governing layer before analysing it.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: The layered governance map of organised sport -> The distinct roles of the named institutions
- Qualified use: Place a disputed decision in the correct governing layer before analysing it.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW | SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW

1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS layered organised sport distinct roles named	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate The layered governance map of organised sport and The distinct roles of the named institutions through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that place a disputed decision in the correct governing layer before analysing it.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: The Olympic body does not make the ordinary rules of every sport.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: The layered governance map converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 3 - FOUNDATION - Three functions and one autonomy limit

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Three functions and one autonomy limit is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions and Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Three functions and one autonomy limit denotes the source-bounded relationship among Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions and Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Three functions and one autonomy limit should be analysed as a relation among Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions and Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Three
- functions
- autonomy
- Recognition
- selection
- organisation

How to use them: Define Three, functions, autonomy; cite Recognition as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Autonomy protects sporting judgement and never displaces law, audit or rights. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Separate recognition, selection and organisation, then bound the autonomy claim..

VISUAL FIRST

THREE FUNCTIONS AND ONE AUTONOMY LIMIT

01. Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions

|
v

02. Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity

BOUNDARY -> Autonomy protects sporting judgement and never displaces law, audit or rights.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority.
- Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Autonomy protects sporting judgement and never displaces law, audit or rights.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Three functions and one autonomy limit.
- Mains: Separate recognition, selection and organisation, then bound the autonomy claim.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions -> Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity
- Qualified use: Separate recognition, selection and organisation, then bound the autonomy claim.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Three functions autonomy Recognition selection organisation	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions and Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that separate recognition, selection and organisation, then bound the autonomy claim.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Autonomy protects sporting judgement and never displaces law, audit or rights.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Three functions and one autonomy limit converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 4 - CORE - Why the absence of exit changes everything

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Why the absence of exit changes everything is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Why the absence of exit changes everything denotes the source-bounded relationship among Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Why the absence of exit changes everything should be analysed as a relation among Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- absence
- exit
- changes
- everything
- Structural
- monopoly

How to use them: Define absence, exit, changes; cite everything as named evidence; then apply this qualification: The problem is structural monopoly rather than any assumption of bad faith. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Explain why sport needs governing without moralising about federations..

VISUAL FIRST

WHY THE ABSENCE OF EXIT CHANGES EVERYTHING

01. Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing

BOUNDARY -> The problem is structural monopoly rather than any assumption of bad faith.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- The problem is structural monopoly rather than any assumption of bad faith.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Why the absence of exit changes everything.
- Mains: Explain why sport needs governing without moralising about federations.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing
- Qualified use: Explain why sport needs governing without moralising about federations.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS absence exit changes everything Structural monopoly	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that explain why sport needs governing without moralising about federations.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: The problem is structural monopoly rather than any assumption of bad faith.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Why the absence of exit changes everything converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 5 - CORE - The Grand Slam architecture

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: The Grand Slam architecture is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, The Grand Slam architecture denotes the source-bounded relationship among The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

The Grand Slam architecture should be analysed as a relation among The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Grand
- Slam
- architecture
- ownership
- distinction
- four

How to use them: Define Grand, Slam, architecture; cite ownership as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Cooperation in rule-making does not merge ownership or operation. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Get the institutional proposition right before touching eligibility..

VISUAL FIRST

THE GRAND SLAM ARCHITECTURE

01. The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction

BOUNDARY -> Cooperation in rule-making does not merge ownership or operation.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Cooperation in rule-making does not merge ownership or operation.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to The Grand Slam architecture.
- Mains: Get the institutional proposition right before touching eligibility.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction
- Qualified use: Get the institutional proposition right before touching eligibility.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Grand Slam architecture ownership distinction four	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that get the institutional proposition right before touching eligibility.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Cooperation in rule-making does not merge ownership or operation.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: The Grand Slam architecture converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 6 - CORE - Four entry routes and the eligibility distinction

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Four entry routes and the eligibility distinction is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Four entry routes and the eligibility distinction denotes the source-bounded relationship among The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Four entry routes and the eligibility distinction should be analysed as a relation among The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Four
- entry
- routes
- eligibility
- distinction
- distinct

How to use them: Define Four, entry, routes; cite eligibility as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Replace an impression of elite sport with the exact route structure..

VISUAL FIRST

FOUR ENTRY ROUTES AND THE ELIGIBILITY DISTINCTION

01. The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction

BOUNDARY -> Eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Four entry routes and the eligibility distinction.
- Mains: Replace an impression of elite sport with the exact route structure.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction
- Qualified use: Replace an impression of elite sport with the exact route structure.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Four entry routes eligibility distinction distinct	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that replace an impression of elite sport with the exact route structure.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Four entry routes and the eligibility distinction converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 7 - CORE - Wild-card precision

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Wild-card precision is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how Wild-card precision fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Wild-card precision denotes the source-bounded relationship among Wild-card precision, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Wild-card precision should be analysed as a relation among Wild-card precision, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Wild-card
- precision
- wild
- card
- discretionary
- entry

How to use them: Define Wild-card, precision, wild; cite card as named evidence; then apply this qualification: A limit on slots in a draw is not a cap on a player. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Defeat the discretionary-entry proposition on its own terms..

VISUAL FIRST

WILD-CARD PRECISION

01. Wild-card precision

BOUNDARY -> A limit on slots in a draw is not a cap on a player.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- A limit on slots in a draw is not a cap on a player.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Wild-card precision.
- Mains: Defeat the discretionary-entry proposition on its own terms.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Wild-card precision
- Qualified use: Defeat the discretionary-entry proposition on its own terms.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Wild-card precision wild card discretionary entry	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Wild-card precision through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that defeat the discretionary-entry proposition on its own terms.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: A limit on slots in a draw is not a cap on a player.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Wild-card precision converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 8 - CORE - Stages, thresholds and the statement method

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Stages, thresholds and the statement method is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold and The statement-by-statement method for objective demands fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Stages, thresholds and the statement method denotes the source-bounded relationship among Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold and The statement-by-statement method for objective demands, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Stages, thresholds and the statement method should be analysed as a relation among Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold and The statement-by-statement method for objective demands, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Stages
- thresholds
- statement
- Main
- draw
- qualifying

How to use them: Define Stages, thresholds, statement; cite Main as named evidence; then apply this qualification: A broadly true description of elite sport is not evidence of a specific rule. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Apply proposition-by-proposition discipline to an objective demand..

VISUAL FIRST

STAGES, THRESHOLDS AND THE STATEMENT METHOD

01. Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold

|
v

02. The statement-by-statement method for objective demands

BOUNDARY -> A broadly true description of elite sport is not evidence of a specific rule.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance.
- An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- A broadly true description of elite sport is not evidence of a specific rule.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Stages, thresholds and the statement method.
- Mains: Apply proposition-by-proposition discipline to an objective demand.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold -> The statement-by-statement method for objective demands
- Qualified use: Apply proposition-by-proposition discipline to an objective demand.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Stages thresholds statement Main draw qualifying	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold and The statement-by-statement method for objective demands through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that apply proposition-by-proposition discipline to an objective demand.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: A broadly true description of elite sport is not evidence of a specific rule.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Stages, thresholds and the statement method converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 9 - CORE - The statute and its legislative trail

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: The statute and its legislative trail is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, The statute and its legislative trail denotes the source-bounded relationship among The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

The statute and its legislative trail should be analysed as a relation among The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- statute
- legislative
- trail
- National
- Sports
- introduced

How to use them: Define statute, legislative, trail; cite National as named evidence; then apply this qualification: An answer written on the earlier code-only framework is now wrong. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Name the Act with its dates and number rather than gesturing at reform..

VISUAL FIRST

THE STATUTE AND ITS LEGISLATIVE TRAIL

01. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail

BOUNDARY -> An answer written on the earlier code-only framework is now wrong.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- An answer written on the earlier code-only framework is now wrong.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to The statute and its legislative trail.
- Mains: Name the Act with its dates and number rather than gesturing at reform.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail
- Qualified use: Name the Act with its dates and number rather than gesturing at reform.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS statute legislative trail National Sports introduced	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that name the Act with its dates and number rather than gesturing at reform.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: An answer written on the earlier code-only framework is now wrong.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: The statute and its legislative trail converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 10 - CORE - Phased commencement and the gazette record

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Phased commencement and the gazette record is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Phased commencement and the gazette record denotes the source-bounded relationship among Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Phased commencement and the gazette record should be analysed as a relation among Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Phased
- commencement
- gazette
- record
- gazette-verified
- tranche

How to use them: Define Phased, commencement, gazette; cite record as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Rule contents and the first tranche list remain secondary-reported and need verification. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Cite commencement with its instrument instead of implying full operation..

VISUAL FIRST

PHASED COMMENCEMENT AND THE GAZETTE RECORD

01. Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche

BOUNDARY -> Rule contents and the first tranche list remain secondary-reported and need verification.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Rule contents and the first tranche list remain secondary-reported and need verification.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Phased commencement and the gazette record.
- Mains: Cite commencement with its instrument instead of implying full operation.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche
- Qualified use: Cite commencement with its instrument instead of implying full operation.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Phased commencement gazette record gazette-verified tranche	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that cite commencement with its instrument instead of implying full operation.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Rule contents and the first tranche list remain secondary-reported and need verification.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Phased commencement and the gazette record converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 11 - CORE - What the Act actually creates

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: What the Act actually creates is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how What the Act creates as examinable governance content fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, What the Act actually creates denotes the source-bounded relationship among What the Act creates as examinable governance content, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

What the Act actually creates should be analysed as a relation among What the Act creates as examinable governance content, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- What
- actually
- creates
- examinable
- content
- National

How to use them: Define What, actually, creates; cite examinable as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Design in the statute is not the same as exercise of the power. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Supply the examinable institutional content of the reform..

VISUAL FIRST

WHAT THE ACT ACTUALLY CREATES

01. What the Act creates as examinable governance content

BOUNDARY -> Design in the statute is not the same as exercise of the power.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Design in the statute is not the same as exercise of the power.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to What the Act actually creates.
- Mains: Supply the examinable institutional content of the reform.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: What the Act creates as examinable governance content
- Qualified use: Supply the examinable institutional content of the reform.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW | SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW

1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS What actually creates examinable content National	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate What the Act creates as examinable governance content through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that supply the examinable institutional content of the reform.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Design in the statute is not the same as exercise of the power.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: What the Act actually creates converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 12 - CORE - The status ladder discipline

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: The status ladder discipline is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how The status ladder that must appear in any answer fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, The status ladder discipline denotes the source-bounded relationship among The status ladder that must appear in any answer, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

The status ladder discipline should be analysed as a relation among The status ladder that must appear in any answer, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- ladder
- discipline
- that
- must
- appear
- controlling

How to use them: Define ladder, discipline, that; cite must as named evidence; then apply this qualification: The 2011 Code remains the operative recognition framework on the verified record. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Write the one paragraph that separates a current answer from an outdated one..

VISUAL FIRST

THE STATUS LADDER DISCIPLINE

01. The status ladder that must appear in any answer

BOUNDARY -> The 2011 Code remains the operative recognition framework on the verified record.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- The 2011 Code remains the operative recognition framework on the verified record.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to The status ladder discipline.
- Mains: Write the one paragraph that separates a current answer from an outdated one.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: The status ladder that must appear in any answer
- Qualified use: Write the one paragraph that separates a current answer from an outdated one.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS ladder discipline that must appear controlling	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate The status ladder that must appear in any answer through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that write the one paragraph that separates a current answer from an outdated one.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: The 2011 Code remains the operative recognition framework on the verified record.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: The status ladder discipline converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 13 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Anti-doping law and strict liability

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Anti-doping law and strict liability is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified and Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Anti-doping law and strict liability denotes the source-bounded relationship among The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified and Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Anti-doping law and strict liability should be analysed as a relation among The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified and Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Anti-doping
- strict
- liability
- statutory
- layer
- amendment

How to use them: Define Anti-doping, strict, liability; cite statutory as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Section numbers and commencement dates of the 2025 amendment must not be stated. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Handle a fast-moving integrity layer without overstating the record..

VISUAL FIRST

ANTI-DOPING LAW AND STRICT LIABILITY

01. The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified

|
v

02. Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability

BOUNDARY -> Section numbers and commencement dates of the 2025 amendment must not be stated.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

- The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Section numbers and commencement dates of the 2025 amendment must not be stated.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Anti-doping law and strict liability.
- Mains: Handle a fast-moving integrity layer without overstating the record.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified -> Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability
- Qualified use: Handle a fast-moving integrity layer without overstating the record.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Anti-doping strict liability statutory layer amendment	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified and Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that handle a fast-moving integrity layer without overstating the record.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Section numbers and commencement dates of the 2025 amendment must not be stated.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Anti-doping law and strict liability converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 14 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Legal character and the six-test checklist

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Legal character and the six-test checklist is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong and The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Legal character and the six-test checklist denotes the source-bounded relationship among Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong and The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Legal character and the six-test checklist should be analysed as a relation among Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong and The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Legal
- character
- six-test

- checklist
- Institutional
- distinction

How to use them: Define Legal, character, six-test; cite checklist as named evidence; then apply this qualification: A society is not a statutory corporation and an arbitral institution is not a court. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Transfer the framework to an unfamiliar body or governance failure..

VISUAL FIRST

LEGAL CHARACTER AND THE SIX-TEST CHECKLIST

01. Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong

|
v

02. The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure

BOUNDARY -> A society is not a statutory corporation and an arbitral institution is not a court.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.
- Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- A society is not a statutory corporation and an arbitral institution is not a court.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Legal character and the six-test checklist.
- Mains: Transfer the framework to an unfamiliar body or governance failure.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong -> The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure
- Qualified use: Transfer the framework to an unfamiliar body or governance failure.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Legal character six-test checklist Institutional distinction	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong and The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that transfer the framework to an unfamiliar body or governance failure.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: A society is not a statutory corporation and an arbitral institution is not a court.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Legal character and the six-test checklist converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 15 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Trade-offs, incidence and honest ownership

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Trade-offs, incidence and honest ownership is the part of Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments that explains how Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership fit into one examinable governance relationship.

Technical definition: In governance analysis, Trade-offs, incidence and honest ownership denotes the source-bounded relationship among Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership, described by the duty-holder who is bound, the legal or administrative form that binds them, the mechanism that converts the norm into a delivered outcome, the remedy available when it fails, and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Trade-offs, incidence and honest ownership should be analysed as a relation among Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership, not as a list of virtues attached to the word governance.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Trade-offs
- incidence
- honest
- ownership
- that
- international

How to use them: Define Trade-offs, incidence, honest; cite ownership as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Policy intention about the Concurrent List is not a claim about the present entry list. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Close a twenty-mark answer with balance, incidence and an explicit data boundary..

VISUAL FIRST

TRADE-OFFS, INCIDENCE AND HONEST OWNERSHIP

01. Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership

BOUNDARY -> Policy intention about the Concurrent List is not a claim about the present entry list.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Policy intention about the Concurrent List is not a claim about the present entry list.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact statute, section, institution, official category, dated edition or scope rule attached to Trade-offs, incidence and honest ownership.
- Mains: Close a twenty-mark answer with balance, incidence and an explicit data boundary.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership
- Qualified use: Close a twenty-mark answer with balance, incidence and an explicit data boundary.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Trade-offs incidence honest ownership that international	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership through duty-holder, binding form and remedy	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that close a twenty-mark answer with balance, incidence and an explicit data boundary.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Policy intention about the Concurrent List is not a claim about the present entry list.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Trade-offs, incidence and honest ownership converts named institutional evidence into a qualified argument

COMPLETE BASIC OWNER EVIDENCE BANK

Subject: Governance | Tier: Must-Do (foundation) | GS Paper: GS-II + Prelims. Core area: International and Indian sports-governance layers, federation autonomy, tournament rule-making, eligibility, anti-doping and dispute resolution. Grounded in: ITF 2026 Grand Slam Rule Book; official IOC, WADA, CAS, Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports, SAI and NADA institutional material; the National Sports Governance Act, 2025 (Act No. 25 of 2025); official 2026 Prelims Set-A scan. Tournament rules verified 2 Aug 2026; Indian statutory position verified 13 Aug 2026. FACT: = source-grounded | ANALYSIS: = analytical inference | CURRENT: = dated current anchor | WRONG: = trap. Companion: advanced/16_Sports-Governance-Institutions-and-Major-Tournaments.md.

1. Governance map

IOC / international event owner
|
international federation -> common sport rules and recognition
|
continental / national federation
|
tournament organiser / league / selection body
|
athlete eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding

Parallel integrity layer: WADA Code -> national anti-doping body
Dispute layer: internal appeal -> sport tribunal / CAS where applicable

2. Institution types

Institution	Primary role
FACT: IOC	Olympic Movement and Olympic Games governance; distinct from each sport's international federation.
FACT: International federation	Governs a sport internationally and frames sport-specific rules.
FACT: National sports federation	Governs/represents the sport nationally, subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework.
FACT: WADA	Global anti-doping code and standards; it does not organise tournaments.
FACT: NADA India	India's national anti-doping organisation.
FACT: CAS	Independent sports-dispute forum; not the ordinary rule-maker for every sport.
FACT: Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports	Union policy and recognition framework.
FACT: Sports Authority of India	Training, infrastructure and athlete-support implementation.

3. Grand Slam tennis architecture

FACT: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open. Each event has its own organiser, while the Grand Slams cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book.

Layer	Exam-ready distinction
Shared governance	Partnership/common rule-making among the four Grand Slam tournaments does not erase their separate ownership and operation.
Entry	Entry depends on the applicable ranking, acceptance and eligibility rules; "internationally ranked" does not mean unlimited automatic entry.
Age	The rule book must be read precisely: an age threshold is an eligibility condition, not proof of acceptance into the draw.
Wild card	A wild card is discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance; distinguish limits on slots in a draw from any alleged lifetime cap on a player.
Main draw vs qualifying	They are separate stages with separate draw sizes and entry routes.

4. 2026 question mechanism

The question combines three different propositions:

1. FACT: Institutional proposition: whether the four tournaments share a governance partnership.
2. FACT: Eligibility proposition: whether age and international ranking alone make all players eligible for entry.
3. FACT: Wild-card proposition: whether the rules cap how many wild cards a player may receive.

ANALYSIS: Evaluate each statement against the rule book independently. Do not treat a broadly true description of elite tennis as proof of a specific entry rule.

5. Must-know governance distinctions

- FACT: Sports federation autonomy does not mean immunity from national law, anti-doping rules, financial accountability or judicial review.
- FACT: Recognition of a federation, selection of athletes and organisation of an event are distinct functions.
- FACT: Eligibility, qualification, ranking acceptance and wild-card entry are distinct routes or thresholds.
- FACT: WADA frames the global code; national bodies implement testing and results management within their jurisdiction.
- FACT: CAS adjudication is different from tournament administration.
- WRONG: IOC governs every sport's ordinary rules. -> International federations govern sport-specific rules.
- WRONG: A wild card means rules do not apply. -> The player bypasses ordinary ranking acceptance, not eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules.
- WRONG: Shared governance means a single owner operates all four Grand Slams. -> Cooperation and ownership are separate questions.

6. India's statutory sports-governance framework

CURRENT: Verified 13 August 2026. ANALYSIS: Major current-status update. An earlier version of this file described Indian sports governance without any national governance statute. That is no longer the position, and an answer written on the older, code-only framework is now wrong.

6.1 The National Sports Governance Act, 2025

Stage	Position
FACT: Introduced	Lok Sabha, 23 July 2025
FACT: Passed	Lok Sabha 11 August 2025 ; Rajya Sabha 12 August 2025
FACT: Assent	18 August 2025 - Act No. 25 of 2025
FACT: Commencement	Phased: select provisions from 1 January 2026 ; a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E)
FACT: Rules	Rules under the Act were framed during 2026 . Their existence is recorded; individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation

What the Act creates - the examinable governance content:

- FACT: National Sports Board - a statutory body whose recognition/regulatory jurisdiction is designed by the Act. ANALYSIS: The principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026; do not present the Board as already exercising it.
 - FACT: National Sports Tribunal - a statutory forum designed for sports disputes. ANALYSIS: Constitution-related provisions have commenced in phases, but the jurisdiction and appeal provisions were not located in the commenced tranches as of 13 August 2026. Do not claim that it has replaced ordinary litigation operationally.
 - FACT: National sports bodies framework - a structured statutory category covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations, with compliance conditions attached to recognition.
 - FACT: Governance conditions - the Act's stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the RTI Act.
- ANALYSIS: Status discipline that must appear in any answer. The Act is enacted and partially commenced in at least two tranches: 1 January and 12 May 2026. The 2011 National Sports Development Code remains the operative recognition framework, read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies, until the Act's recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The Tribunal is created in law but its jurisdiction/appeal route is not yet operationally available on the verified tranche record. WRONG: Do not assert that the Board or Tribunal has decided cases, derecognised a federation or displaced every existing arrangement.

6.2 Anti-doping

- FACT: National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made NADA a statutory body, replacing its earlier society-registered form, and provides the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India.
- CURRENT: A National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted. Its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of NADA's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel, and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport. ANALYSIS: This item is recorded from secondary reporting, not from a Gazette text obtained during this audit - describe it as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions should be verified before citation. WRONG: Do not state its section numbers or commencement dates.
- FACT: WADA frames the global World Anti-Doping Code and the international standards; national anti-doping organisations implement testing and results management within their jurisdiction. WADA does not organise competitions.

6.3 Institutional legal character - the distinction most often got wrong

Body	Legal character	Precision point
FACT: Sports Authority of India (SAI)	An autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860, under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports	WRONG: Not a statutory corporation created by its own Act. The 2025 Act brings sports bodies under a statutory regulatory framework; it does not convert SAI's organisational form into a statutory body
FACT: NADA	Statutory under the National Anti-Doping Act, 2022	Its status genuinely changed in 2022 - before that it was a registered society
FACT: National Sports Board	Statutory under the National Sports Governance Act, 2025	Created in law; do not treat uncommenced recognition powers as operational
FACT: National Sports Tribunal	Statutory under the same Act	Created in law; verified commencement does not yet establish operational jurisdiction/appeal
FACT: National Sports Federations	Private associations that require recognition	As of 13 August 2026, continuity rests on the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 and the Act's deeming protection for previously recognised bodies; transition to the Act is incomplete
FACT: Indian Olympic Association	The National Olympic Committee, a private body within the Olympic Movement	Autonomy under the Olympic Charter coexists with national law; it is not immune from it
FACT: CAS	An international arbitral institution based in Lausanne, established in 1984	An arbitral forum, not a court of any state and not a rule-maker for any sport

7. Answer architecture (10/15/20-mark support)

Scope. This topic is examined in two very different ways: as Prelims factual precision about tournament and institutional rules, and as a GS-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector. Both are held in this file; advanced/16 is optional enrichment only.

7.1 Demand map

Stem pattern	What is being tested	Opening move
"Federation autonomy vs accountability"	The core governance tension	Autonomy protects sporting decisions from politics; it never exempts from law, audit or rights
"Sports governance reform in India"	Current legal status	Name the 2025 Act with its commencement stage , not merely its existence
"Athlete rights / selection dispute"	Due process in a private body	Notice, criteria published in advance, reasons, appeal, independent forum
"Anti-doping"	Layered jurisdiction	WADA Code -> national statute -> results management -> CAS appeal
Tournament-rule Prelims statements	Statement-by-statement discipline	Test each statement against the applicable rule book independently (Section 7.5)
Novel case (a new federation dispute, a governance failure, an eligibility controversy)	Transferability	Apply the six-test checklist (Section 7.4)

7.2 Qualified theses

- T1 (autonomy): "Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions, not a jurisdictional immunity: a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance, whatever its legal form."
- T2 (monopoly): "The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly - one federation per sport, with no exit for the athlete - which is why ordinary contractual and market disciplines do not apply and why statutory oversight became necessary."
- T3 (Indian reform): "India has moved sports governance from an executive code enforced through funding conditions to a statutory framework with a regulator and a tribunal - a real change in the basis of authority, whose effect will depend on how independently the new institutions are constituted and staffed."
- T4 (rights): "Athlete welfare, safeguarding and due process are not adjuncts to sports governance; they are the reason it needs governing, because the athlete is the party with the least bargaining power and the shortest career horizon."

7.3 Mark-scaled structure

10 marks - the autonomy/accountability tension; the Indian statutory position with its stage; one named mechanism (recognition, tribunal, anti-doping); one limitation; verdict.

15 marks - thesis; the governance layers (international federation -> national federation -> organiser -> athlete, with the parallel integrity and dispute layers); 4-6 evidence units; the monopoly and due-process analysis; the autonomy counter-argument; graded verdict.

20 marks - thesis with criteria; the six-test checklist applied; the shift from the 2011 Code to the 2025 Act analysed as a change in the source of authority; athlete rights, safeguarding and grievance; anti-doping's layered jurisdiction and the athlete's strict-liability burden; comparison with regulatory governance generally (see 11 - the same autonomy-accountability-expertise trilemma appears here); verdict with reversal condition.

7.4 Six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure

1. Basis of authority - statute, recognition, contract or private rule book?
2. Recognition and conditions - who recognises it, on what published criteria, and can recognition be withdrawn with reasons?
3. Internal governance - elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules, published accounts and audit.

4. Selection and eligibility - are criteria published before the selection cycle, applied consistently, and are reasons given for exclusion?
5. Dispute resolution - is there an independent forum, with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal; and is the athlete required to waive access to courts?
6. Athlete protection - safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support, and protection from retaliation for complaining.

7.5 Prelims-precision bank

- FACT: Layered rule-making: the IOC governs the Olympic Movement and the Games; each international federation governs its own sport's rules; the organiser governs its own event's entry conditions. WRONG: The IOC does not make the ordinary rules of every sport.
- FACT: Four distinct entry routes to a competition: direct ranking acceptance, qualifying, wild card and protected/special entry. They are not interchangeable, and eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw.
- FACT: Wild card: a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking acceptance. WRONG: It does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules; and a limit on the number of wild-card slots in a draw is not the same as a cap on a player.
- FACT: Grand Slam tennis: the four tournaments - Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open - each have their own organiser and ownership, while cooperating through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book. WRONG: Shared governance does not mean a single owner operates all four.
- FACT: Main draw and qualifying are separate stages with separate draw sizes and entry routes. An age threshold is an eligibility condition, not proof of acceptance.
- FACT: Anti-doping: WADA writes the Code; the national anti-doping organisation tests and manages results; appeals may lie to CAS. Strict liability means an athlete is responsible for what is in their body irrespective of intent - the single most examinable anti-doping concept.
- ANALYSIS: Method for statement questions: evaluate each statement separately against the named rule book. A broadly true description of elite sport is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is exactly the trap the 2026 Prelims item exploits.

7.6 Counter-argument and trade-off bank

- ANALYSIS: Autonomy vs state oversight: international charters protect sports bodies from government interference, and excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body. Reply: oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules - and this distinction is what makes statutory regulation defensible.
- ANALYSIS: Specialist tribunal vs ordinary courts: a sports tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge, which matter enormously when a selection dispute must be resolved before a competition; it also raises the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally (see 11).
- ANALYSIS: Strict liability vs fairness: anti-doping's strict liability is necessary because intent is unprovable and is genuinely harsh on athletes affected by contamination or negligent support staff.
- ANALYSIS: Elite performance vs mass participation: governance attention and funding follow medals; broad-base sport and school sport have weaker constituencies.
- ANALYSIS: Commercial revenue vs athlete share: event and broadcast revenue concentrates at the federation and organiser level; athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it.
- ANALYSIS: Federal dimension: sport involves both Union and State bodies and State associations; a national statute does not by itself reform State-level federations.

7.7 Stakeholder variation

- Athlete: shortest career horizon, least bargaining power, highest cost of a wrong selection or eligibility decision, and real fear of retaliation for complaining.
- National federation: holds monopoly recognition and often depends on public funding.
- International federation: sets rules the national body must follow, creating a genuine conflict where national law and international rules diverge.
- Government/SAI: funds and supports, and must avoid the interference that would breach charter autonomy.
- Coach and support staff: hold the day-to-day power over an athlete, which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them.
- Event organiser and broadcaster: shape the calendar and the commercial terms.

7.8 Verdict scaffolds and factual controls

Verdicts.

- Autonomy stem: "Autonomy in sport is properly a shield for sporting decisions and has too often been used as a shield against accountability for money, selection and safeguarding - which is precisely the gap statutory regulation addresses."
- Reform stem: "India has changed the basis of sports governance from an executive code to a statute with a regulator and a tribunal; whether it changes the practice depends on how independently those institutions are constituted, and that evidence does not yet exist."
- Athlete-rights stem: "The athlete is the only participant who cannot exit, cannot negotiate and cannot wait - which is why published criteria, reasons and an independent, fast appeal matter more in sport than in most regulated sectors."
- Novel-case stem: run the six tests; a body that cannot state its selection criteria in advance has already failed the governance question, whatever the sporting merits.

Factual and current-status controls.

- FACT: Safe, verified 13 August 2026: National Sports Governance Act, 2025 - introduced 23 July 2025, passed 11 and 12 August 2025, assent 18 August 2025, Act No. 25 of 2025, select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E); rules framed during 2026; National Sports Board and National Sports Tribunal as statutory creations; National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 giving NADA statutory status; SAI as a registered society, not a statutory corporation; the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 as the still-operative administrative recognition instrument during the incomplete statutory transition; CAS as an international arbitral institution at Lausanne, established 1984.
- ANALYSIS: Recorded from secondary reporting, verify before citation: the National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 and its contents; the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026; and the individual rules notified during 2026.
- FACT: Gazette-verified second tranche: S.O. 2406(E), 12 May 2026 commenced s.5(3)-(5), s.7, s.17(8)-(9), ss.18, 19, 21, 28 and 29.
- WRONG: Do not assert: any unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act; any decision, inquiry or derecognition by the National Sports Board; any case decided by the National Sports Tribunal; any doping case, athlete name or sanction; any federation's recognition status; any medal tally, funding figure or tournament result.
- ANALYSIS: The controlling exam discipline for this topic is the same status ladder used throughout this folder:* enacted ≠ provision commenced ≠ rules framed ≠ institution constituted ≠ jurisdiction operational. As of 13 August 2026 the Act is in a phased transition; recognition continues under the 2011 Code/deeming arrangement, and no operational Tribunal jurisdiction is asserted.

8. PYQ application

2026 PYQ Integration

Status: 2026 question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-PRELIMS-2026.md. Answer-key rule: The 2026 Prelims and CSAT Set-A keys held locally are provisional; no option or answer is recorded or inferred in this integration.

- Year represented: 2026
- Paper(s): Prelims GS-I
- Routed question demands: 1

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2026	Prelims GS-I	82	Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility, and wild-card participation rules	Objective question; provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally, answer not inferred	Provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally (Ans - ■2026-■GS1-■Provisional); key is provisional - no answer letter recorded or inferred here	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.

What this owner must now support

- Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility, and wild-card participation rules

This block integrates the 2026 examinable demand and paper metadata. It is kept separate from the 2018-2023 and 2024-2025 blocks and does not convert a provisionally-keyed, answer-free objective question into a solved answer.

Semantic-completeness ownership and PYQ control

- Official syllabus/index and owned core: Sports governance allocates policy, recognition, funding, selection, integrity, athlete welfare, dispute resolution and event organisation across government, autonomous sports bodies, national federations, international federations and organising committees.
- Indispensable distinction and prerequisite taxonomy: The Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports is an executive ministry, Sports Authority of India an autonomous body under it, Indian Olympic Association the recognised national Olympic committee, national sports federations sport-specific bodies, and BCCI a cricket governing body rather than a statutory national federation; tournament, governing body and organiser must not be conflated.
- Mechanism, implementation and evidence control: Qualify the National Sports Development Code, court or committee directions, Olympic Charter recognition, federation status and tournament ownership by source and date; analyse selection transparency, tenure, athlete representation, safe sport, anti-doping, finance, conflict of interest, appeal and regulatory autonomy.
- FACT: Verified current fact (official sources rechecked 5 September 2026):

Rechecked 2026-09-05: the National Sports Governance Act, 2025 is Act No. 25 of 2025; official Ministry pages carry the Act and 2026 rules/notifications. The Ministry, SAI, IOA, national federations, BCCI, international federations and event organisers retain distinct legal roles. Sources: <https://yas.gov.in/en/sports/nsga-2025>; <https://www.yas.gov.in/sites/default/files/National%20Sports%20Governance%20Act,%202025.pdf>; https://sports.yas.gov.in/search-detail/gazette_notifications/30

- ANALYSIS: Analytical inference: institutional design, allocation, a portal, a registration, a report, a training completion, a disposal count or a ranking can support a causal argument only after authority, capacity, incentives, distribution, implementation, grievance, outcome and alternative explanations are tested.

- Canonical and cross-owner boundary: this Governance owner teaches the authority-to-delivery-to-remedy chain. Detailed constitutional doctrine stays with Polity; sector entitlement design stays with Social Justice; macro-fiscal doctrine stays with Economy; ethics theory stays with Ethics. Cross-owner evidence may be routed but is not silently duplicated or re-owned.

- Four-ledger hostile audit: literal syllabus, indispensable prerequisites, standard public-administration/governance taxonomy and complete verified PYQ demands were checked for absent concepts, institutions, mechanisms, classifications, exceptions, comparisons, criticisms, current status, answer architecture and dependent artifacts.

- Verified PYQ ownership, 2018-2026: One applied objective demand is routed to this topic across the audited ledgers and no direct General Studies Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here, so no Mains demand card is manufactured and no question is invented from the locally held OCR-searchable official papers. The audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes the objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, and the owner's own generated 2026 integration block records the same routing. The 2026 Set-A key held locally is provisional, so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred for it, and the demand card below supplies only the rule-architecture route by which each proposition in such an item is tested separately. The Indian statutory position was verified by the owners on 13 August 2026 and the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026, and the package applies the status ladder throughout, so no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the National Sports Board is asserted, no case decided by the National Sports Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

GOVERNANCE DEEP-REVIEW CORE CONTROL

- Must remember: Sports governance allocates policy, recognition, funding, selection, integrity, athlete welfare, dispute resolution and event organisation across government, autonomous sports bodies, national federations, international federations and organising committees.
- Close distinction: The Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports is an executive ministry, Sports Authority of India an autonomous body under it, Indian Olympic Association the recognised national Olympic committee, national sports federations sport-specific bodies, and BCCI a cricket governing body rather than a statutory national federation; tournament, governing body and organiser must not be conflated.
- Authority / evidence / implementation limit: Qualify the National Sports Development Code, court or committee directions, Olympic Charter recognition, federation status and tournament ownership by source and date; analyse selection transparency, tenure, athlete representation, safe sport, anti-doping, finance, conflict of interest, appeal and regulatory autonomy.

BASIC MCQS / REMEDIATION

Q1. Which statement correctly identifies What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?

A. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: A. Explanation: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q2. Which chronology card should be filed under What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?

A. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: B. Explanation: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q3. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?

A. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. B. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

Answer: C. Explanation: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q4. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

Answer: D. Explanation: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q5. Which statement correctly identifies The layered governance map of organised sport?

A. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. D. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

Answer: A. Explanation: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q6. Which chronology card should be filed under The layered governance map of organised sport?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. C. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. D. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

Answer: B. Explanation: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q7. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The layered governance map of organised sport?

A. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. B. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

Answer: C. Explanation: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q8. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The layered governance map of organised sport?

A. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. B. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.

Answer: D. Explanation: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q9. Which statement correctly identifies The distinct roles of the named institutions?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. D. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

Answer: A. Explanation: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q10. Which chronology card should be filed under The distinct roles of the named institutions?

A. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. B. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

Answer: B. Explanation: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q11. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The distinct roles of the named institutions?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. D. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

Answer: C. Explanation: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q12. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The distinct roles of the named institutions?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: D. Explanation: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q13. Which statement correctly identifies Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?

A. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. B. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

Answer: A. Explanation: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q14. Which chronology card should be filed under Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?

A. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: B. Explanation: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q15. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?

A. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. B. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. C. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: C. Explanation: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q16. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?

A. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. B. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. C. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. D. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority.

Answer: D. Explanation: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q17. Which statement correctly identifies Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?

A. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

Answer: A. Explanation: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q18. Which chronology card should be filed under Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: B. Explanation: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q19. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance.

Answer: C. Explanation: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q20. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. C. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. D. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

Answer: D. Explanation: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q21. Which statement correctly identifies Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. C. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: A. Explanation: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q22. Which chronology card should be filed under Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?

A. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. B. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. C. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: B. Explanation: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q23. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. C. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. D. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance.

Answer: C. Explanation: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q24. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?

A. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. D. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

Answer: D. Explanation: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q25. Which statement correctly identifies The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?

A. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: A. Explanation: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q26. Which chronology card should be filed under The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?

A. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. B. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. C. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. D. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.

Answer: B. Explanation: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q27. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?

A. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: C. Explanation: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q28. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?

A. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. D. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

Answer: D. Explanation: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q29. Which statement correctly identifies The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?

A. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. D. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.

Answer: A. Explanation: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q30. Which chronology card should be filed under The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?

A. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: B. Explanation: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q31. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?

A. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: C. Explanation: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q32. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: D. Explanation: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q33. Which statement correctly identifies Wild-card precision?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: A. Explanation: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q34. Which chronology card should be filed under Wild-card precision?

A. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. B. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. C. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: B. Explanation: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q35. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Wild-card precision?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. D. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.

Answer: C. Explanation: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q36. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Wild-card precision?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.

Answer: D. Explanation: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q37. Which statement correctly identifies Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?

A. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. B. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. C. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: A. Explanation: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q38. Which chronology card should be filed under Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: B. Explanation: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q39. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. D. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

Answer: C. Explanation: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q40. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance.

Answer: D. Explanation: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q41. Which statement correctly identifies The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?

A. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. B. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. C. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. D. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.

Answer: A. Explanation: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q42. Which chronology card should be filed under The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. C. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: B. Explanation: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q43. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?

A. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. B. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. C. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. D. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

Answer: C. Explanation: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q44. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: D. Explanation: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q45. Which statement correctly identifies The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?

A. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. D. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

Answer: A. Explanation: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q46. Which chronology card should be filed under The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?

A. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: B. Explanation: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q47. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?

A. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. B. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. C. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: C. Explanation: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q48. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?

A. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. B. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. C. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. D. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.

Answer: D. Explanation: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q49. Which statement correctly identifies Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?

A. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. B. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: A. Explanation: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q50. Which chronology card should be filed under Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?

A. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: B. Explanation: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q51. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?

A. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. D. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

Answer: C. Explanation: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q52. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: D. Explanation: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q53. Which statement correctly identifies What the Act creates as examinable governance content?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. D. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

Answer: A. Explanation: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q54. Which chronology card should be filed under What the Act creates as examinable governance content?

A. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. B. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. C. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: B. Explanation: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q55. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What the Act creates as examinable governance content?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: C. Explanation: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. The remaining options belong to

Q56. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What the Act creates as examinable governance content?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. C. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. D. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

Answer: D. Explanation: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q57. Which statement correctly identifies The status ladder that must appear in any answer?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. D. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

Answer: A. Explanation: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q58. Which chronology card should be filed under The status ladder that must appear in any answer?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. C. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: B. Explanation: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q59. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The status ladder that must appear in any answer?

A. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. B. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. C. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: C. Explanation: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q60. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The status ladder that must appear in any answer?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: D. Explanation: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q61. Which statement correctly identifies The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?

A. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. B. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. C. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: A. Explanation: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q62. Which chronology card should be filed under The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. C. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: B. Explanation: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q63. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: C. Explanation: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q64. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?

A. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. B. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

Answer: D. Explanation: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q65. Which statement correctly identifies Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?

A. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. B. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. C. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: A. Explanation: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q66. Which chronology card should be filed under Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: B. Explanation: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q67. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?

A. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: C. Explanation: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q68. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible.

Answer: D. Explanation: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q69. Which statement correctly identifies Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?

A. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. D. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

Answer: A. Explanation: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q70. Which chronology card should be filed under Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?

A. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. B. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

Answer: B. Explanation: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q71. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. D. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.

Answer: C. Explanation: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q72. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?

A. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. B. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: D. Explanation: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q73. Which statement correctly identifies The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. C. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. D. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

Answer: A. Explanation: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q74. Which chronology card should be filed under The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.

Answer: B. Explanation: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q75. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?

A. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. B. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. C. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. D. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority.

Answer: C. Explanation: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q76. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?

A. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. D. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

Answer: D. Explanation: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q77. Which statement correctly identifies Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?

A. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: A. Explanation: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q78. Which chronology card should be filed under Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. C. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. D. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.

Answer: B. Explanation: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q79. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?

A. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. B. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. C. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: C. Explanation: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q80. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: D. Explanation: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE

VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT

One applied objective demand is routed to this topic across the audited ledgers and no direct General Studies Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here, so no Mains demand card is manufactured and no question is invented from the locally held OCR-searchable official papers. The audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes the objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, and the owner's own generated 2026 integration block records the same routing. The 2026 Set-A key held locally is provisional, so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred for it, and the demand card below supplies only the rule-architecture route by which each proposition in such an item is tested separately. The Indian statutory position was verified by the owners on 13 August 2026 and the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026, and the package applies the status ladder throughout, so no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the National Sports Board is asserted, no case decided by the National Sports Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

OWNER PYQ LEDGER EXTRACTS

8. PYQ application

2026 PYQ Integration

Status: 2026 question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-PRELIMS-2026.md. Answer-key rule: The 2026 Prelims and CSAT Set-A keys held locally are provisional; no option or answer is recorded or inferred in this integration.

- Year represented: 2026
- Paper(s): Prelims GS-I
- Routed question demands: 1

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2026	Prelims GS-I	82	Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility, and wild-card participation rules	Objective question; provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally, answer not inferred	Provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally (Ans - ■2026 - ■GS1 - ■Provisional); key is provisional - no answer letter recorded or inferred here	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.

What this owner must now support

- Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility, and wild-card participation rules

This block integrates the 2026 examinable demand and paper metadata. It is kept separate from the 2018-2023 and 2024-2025 blocks and does not convert a provisionally-keyed, answer-free objective question into a solved answer.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2026 Preliminary Examination General Studies Paper-I

Demand: Objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules, routed to this Basic owner by the audited 2026 Prelims ledger and by the owner's own 2026 integration block.

Status: The 2026 Set-A key held locally is provisional, so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no tournament result, player or draw outcome is asserted. The tournament-rule position underlying this route was verified by the owners on 2 August 2026.

Model solution: An item of this family combines three propositions that are true or false independently, so the method is to separate them before judging any of them. Take the institutional proposition first. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, each with its own organiser and its own operation, and they cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book; cooperation in rule-making is therefore compatible with four separate owners, and any statement that shared governance means a single owner operates all four is false on that ground alone. Take the eligibility proposition second. Entry into a competition arises through four distinct routes, namely direct ranking acceptance, qualifying, a wild card and a protected or special entry, and eligibility is a condition that a player must satisfy while acceptance into a draw is a separate outcome produced by one of those routes, so a statement that an internationally ranked player of a stated age is thereby entitled to enter confuses a condition with an outcome. Add the stage precision that supports it: the main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance. Take the wild-card proposition third, and read it with the greatest care because it is where such items usually turn. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and it does not exempt the recipient from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules; further, a limit on the number of wild-card slots available within a draw is a rule about the event, while a cap on how many wild cards a single player may receive is a rule about the player, and the two must not be inferred from each other. Now state the general discipline that the item is testing. A broadly accurate description of elite tennis is not evidence of a specific entry rule, so each statement must be checked against the named rule book on its own terms rather than accepted because the overall picture sounds right. Close on the honest boundary: because the locally held 2026 key is provisional, no option may be selected here, no answer letter is inferred, and no distractor is reconstructed; what the routing establishes is the obligation to hold the rule architecture precisely, not an entitlement to state an answer.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2026 Preliminary Examination General Studies Paper-I", every clause, exact authority and institutional boundary, an implementation chain, stakeholder/accountability map, Centre-state-local allocation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, safeguards and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: An item of this family combines three propositions that are true or false independently, so the method is to separate them before judging any of them. Take the institutional proposition first. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, each with its own organiser and its own operation, and they cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book; cooperation in rule-making is therefore compatible with four separate owners, and any statement that shared governance means a single owner operates all four is false on that ground alone. Take the eligibility proposition second. Entry into a competition arises through four distinct routes, namely direct ranking acceptance, qualifying, a wild card and a protected or special entry, and eligibility is a condition that a player must satisfy while acceptance into a draw is a separate outcome produced by one of those routes, so a statement that an internationally ranked player of a stated age is thereby entitled to enter confuses a condition with an outcome. Add the stage precision that supports it: the main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance. Take the wild-card proposition third, and read it with the greatest care because it is where such items usually turn. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and it does not exempt the recipient from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules; further, a limit on the number of wild-card slots available within a draw is a rule about the event, while a cap on how many wild cards a single player may receive is a rule about the player, and the two must not be inferred from each other. Now state the general discipline that the item is testing. A broadly accurate description of elite tennis is not evidence of a specific entry rule, so each statement must be checked against the named rule book on its own terms rather than accepted because the overall picture sounds right. Close on the honest boundary: because the locally held 2026 key is provisional, no option may be selected here, no answer letter is inferred, and no distractor is reconstructed; what the routing establishes is the obligation to hold the rule architecture precisely, not an entitlement to state an answer.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2026 Preliminary Examination General Studies Paper-I
Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
2. Claim and named evidence: Demand: Objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules, routed to this Basic owner by the audited 2026 Prelims ledger and by the owner's own 2026 integration block. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

Counter-position / limit: A constitutional value, commission recommendation, scheme catalogue, budget allocation, portal, disposal count or ranking cannot alone establish lawful authority, inclusive implementation, substantive remedy or attributable outcome; test capacity, federal competence, distribution, privacy, audit, appeal and current operative status.

Qualified conclusion: An item of this family combines three propositions that are true or false independently, so the method is to separate them before judging any of them. Take the institutional proposition first. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, each with its own organiser and its own operation, and they cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book; cooperation in rule-making is therefore compatible with four separate owners, and any statement that shared governance means a single owner operates all four is false on that ground alone. Take the eligibility proposition second. Entry into a competition arises through four distinct routes, namely direct ranking acceptance, qualifying, a wild card and a protected or special entry, and eligibility is a condition that a player must satisfy while acceptance into a draw is a separate outcome produced by one of those routes, so a statement that an internationally ranked player of a stated age is thereby entitled to enter confuses a condition with an outcome. Add the stage precision that supports it: the main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance. Take the wild-card proposition third, and read it with the greatest care because it is where such items usually turn. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and it does not exempt the recipient from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules; further, a limit on the number of wild-card slots available within a draw is a rule about the event, while a cap on how many wild cards a single player may receive is a rule about the player, and the two must not be inferred from each other. Now state the general discipline that the item is testing. A broadly accurate description of elite tennis is not evidence of a specific entry rule, so each statement must be checked against the named rule book on its own terms rather than accepted because the overall picture sounds right. Close on the honest boundary: because the locally held 2026 key is provisional, no option may be selected here, no answer letter is inferred, and no distractor is reconstructed; what the routing establishes is the obligation to hold the rule architecture precisely, not an entitlement to state an answer.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing authority -> institution -> delivery -> outcome -> remedy; define and state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for inclusion, privacy, federal, indicator, grievance and current-status limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains implementation rather than listing schemes, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves legal, federal, institutional, causal and outcome distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2026 Preliminary Examination General Studies Paper-I", replace the weakest catalogue-style point with one named duty-holder, legal or executive basis, delivery bottleneck, process and outcome indicator, grievance route and evidence-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 1 - 10 MARKS

Question: Distinguish the roles of the Olympic body, an international federation, a national federation and a tournament organiser in the governance of sport. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: Each layer makes a different kind of rule and a governance answer must place the disputed decision in the correct layer, because a complaint about entry belongs to the organiser, a complaint about sport rules to the international federation and a complaint about recognition to the national framework.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.
- The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.
- Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority.
- This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

Qualified conclusion: Each layer makes a different kind of rule and a governance answer must place the disputed decision in the correct layer, because a complaint about entry belongs to the organiser, a complaint about sport rules to the international federation and a complaint about recognition to the national framework.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "Distinguish the roles of the Olympic body, an international federation, a national federation...", every clause, exact authority and institutional boundary, an implementation chain, stakeholder/accountability map, Centre-state-local allocation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, safeguards and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Each layer makes a different kind of rule and a governance answer must place the disputed decision in the correct layer, because a complaint about entry belongs to the organiser, a complaint about sport rules to the international federation and a complaint about recognition to the national framework.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

2. Claim and named evidence: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
3. Claim and named evidence: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
4. Claim and named evidence: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

Counter-position / limit: A constitutional value, commission recommendation, scheme catalogue, budget allocation, portal, disposal count or ranking cannot alone establish lawful authority, inclusive implementation, substantive remedy or attributable outcome; test capacity, federal competence, distribution, privacy, audit, appeal and current operative status.

Qualified conclusion: Each layer makes a different kind of rule and a governance answer must place the disputed decision in the correct layer, because a complaint about entry belongs to the organiser, a complaint about sport rules to the international federation and a complaint about recognition to the national framework.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 10 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing authority -> institution -> delivery -> outcome -> remedy; define and state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for inclusion, privacy, federal, indicator, grievance and current-status limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains implementation rather than listing schemes, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves legal, federal, institutional, causal and outcome distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Distinguish the roles of the Olympic body, an international federation, a national federation...", replace the weakest catalogue-style point with one named duty-holder, legal or executive basis, delivery bottleneck, process and outcome indicator, grievance route and evidence-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 2 - 10 MARKS

Question: Explain why autonomy of sports federations cannot be treated as immunity from public accountability. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: Autonomy protects technical and selection judgement while monopoly control over a person's livelihood makes the power public in substance, so oversight of governance, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in selection and is therefore defensible.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.
- The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.
- Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.
- The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Qualified conclusion: Autonomy protects technical and selection judgement while monopoly control over a person's livelihood makes the power public in substance, so oversight of governance, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in selection and is therefore defensible.

Demand decoding: The directive explain requires a direct position on "Explain why autonomy of sports federations cannot be treated as immunity from public...", every clause, exact authority and institutional boundary, an implementation chain, stakeholder/accountability map, Centre-state-local allocation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, safeguards and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Autonomy protects technical and selection judgement while monopoly control over a person's livelihood makes the power public in substance, so oversight of governance, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in selection and is therefore defensible.

Analytical body:

- 1. Claim and named evidence: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
- 2. Claim and named evidence: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
- 3. Claim and named evidence: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
- 4. Claim and named evidence: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

Counter-position / limit: A constitutional value, commission recommendation, scheme catalogue, budget allocation, portal, disposal count or ranking cannot alone establish lawful authority, inclusive implementation, substantive remedy or attributable outcome; test capacity, federal competence, distribution, privacy, audit, appeal and current operative status.

Qualified conclusion: Autonomy protects technical and selection judgement while monopoly control over a person's livelihood makes the power public in substance, so oversight of governance, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in selection and is therefore defensible.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 10 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing authority -> institution -> delivery -> outcome -> remedy; define and state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for inclusion, privacy, federal, indicator, grievance and current-status limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains implementation rather than listing schemes, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves legal, federal, institutional, causal and outcome distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Explain why autonomy of sports federations cannot be treated as immunity from public...", replace the weakest catalogue-style point with one named duty-holder, legal or executive basis, delivery bottleneck, process and outcome indicator, grievance route and evidence-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 3 - 15 MARKS

Question: Examine the shift in Indian sports governance from an executive code to a statutory framework. Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: The change is real because the source of authority has moved from funding-linked administrative conditions to a statute with a regulator and a tribunal, but the change in practice is unproven because commencement is phased and the recognition jurisdiction was not located in a commenced tranche on the verified record.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.
- Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

- The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.
- The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Qualified conclusion: The change is real because the source of authority has moved from funding-linked administrative conditions to a statute with a regulator and a tribunal, but the change in practice is unproven because commencement is phased and the recognition jurisdiction was not located in a commenced tranche on the verified record.

Demand decoding: The directive examine requires a direct position on "Examine the shift in Indian sports governance from an executive code to a statutory...", every clause, exact authority and institutional boundary, an implementation chain, stakeholder/accountability map, Centre-state-local allocation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, safeguards and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: The change is real because the source of authority has moved from funding-linked administrative conditions to a statute with a regulator and a tribunal, but the change in practice is unproven because commencement is phased and the recognition jurisdiction was not located in a commenced tranche on the verified record.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
2. Claim and named evidence: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
3. Claim and named evidence: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies,

National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

4. Claim and named evidence: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

Counter-position / limit: A constitutional value, commission recommendation, scheme catalogue, budget allocation, portal, disposal count or ranking cannot alone establish lawful authority, inclusive implementation, substantive remedy or attributable outcome; test capacity, federal competence, distribution, privacy, audit, appeal and current operative status.

Qualified conclusion: The change is real because the source of authority has moved from funding-linked administrative conditions to a statute with a regulator and a tribunal, but the change in practice is unproven because commencement is phased and the recognition jurisdiction was not located in a commenced tranche on the verified record.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing authority -> institution -> delivery -> outcome -> remedy; define and state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for inclusion, privacy, federal, indicator, grievance and current-status limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains implementation rather than listing schemes, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves legal, federal, institutional, causal and outcome distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Examine the shift in Indian sports governance from an executive code to a statutory...", replace the weakest catalogue-style point with one named duty-holder, legal or executive basis, delivery bottleneck, process and outcome indicator, grievance route and evidence-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 4 - 15 MARKS

Question: Examine the governance conditions that make anti-doping enforcement fair as well as effective. Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: Strict liability is necessary because intent is unprovable and harsh because contamination and negligent support staff fall on the athlete, so fairness depends on accredited testing, reasoned results management, an independent appeal route and an authority whose leadership is insulated from the bodies it regulates.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

- The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible.
- The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.
- Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

Qualified conclusion: Strict liability is necessary because intent is unprovable and harsh because contamination and negligent support staff fall on the athlete, so fairness depends on accredited testing, reasoned results management, an independent appeal route and an authority whose leadership is insulated from the bodies it regulates.

Demand decoding: The directive examine requires a direct position on "Examine the governance conditions that make anti-doping enforcement fair as well as...", every clause, exact authority and institutional boundary, an implementation chain, stakeholder/accountability map, Centre-state-local allocation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, safeguards and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Strict liability is necessary because intent is unprovable and harsh because contamination and negligent support staff fall on the athlete, so fairness depends on accredited testing, reasoned results management, an independent appeal route and an authority whose leadership is insulated from the bodies it regulates.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

2. Claim and named evidence: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
3. Claim and named evidence: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
4. Claim and named evidence: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

Counter-position / limit: A constitutional value, commission recommendation, scheme catalogue, budget allocation, portal, disposal count or ranking cannot alone establish lawful authority, inclusive implementation, substantive remedy or attributable outcome; test capacity, federal competence, distribution, privacy, audit, appeal and current operative status.

Qualified conclusion: Strict liability is necessary because intent is unprovable and harsh because contamination and negligent support staff fall on the athlete, so fairness depends on accredited testing, reasoned results management, an independent appeal route and an authority whose leadership is insulated from the bodies it regulates.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 15 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing authority -> institution -> delivery -> outcome -> remedy; define and state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for inclusion, privacy, federal, indicator, grievance and current-status limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains implementation rather than listing schemes, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves legal, federal, institutional, causal and outcome distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Examine the governance conditions that make anti-doping enforcement fair as well as...", replace the weakest catalogue-style point with one named duty-holder, legal or executive basis, delivery bottleneck, process and outcome indicator, grievance route and evidence-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 5 - 20 MARKS

Question: Assess how an objective demand about tournament eligibility should be analysed proposition by proposition. Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: Such an item combines an institutional claim, an eligibility claim and a discretionary-entry claim that are true or false independently, so the disciplined method separates ownership from cooperation, eligibility from acceptance and a draw-slot limit from a player cap before any judgement is offered.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.
- Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.
- A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.
- An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Qualified conclusion: Such an item combines an institutional claim, an eligibility claim and a discretionary-entry claim that are true or false independently, so the disciplined method separates ownership from cooperation, eligibility from acceptance and a draw-slot limit from a player cap before any judgement is offered.

Demand decoding: The directive assess requires a direct position on "Assess how an objective demand about tournament eligibility should be analysed proposition by...", every clause, exact authority and institutional boundary, an implementation chain, stakeholder/accountability map, Centre-state-local allocation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, safeguards and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Such an item combines an institutional claim, an eligibility claim and a discretionary-entry claim that are true or false independently, so the disciplined method separates ownership from cooperation, eligibility from acceptance and a draw-slot limit from a player cap before any judgement is offered.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
2. Claim and named evidence: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

3. Claim and named evidence: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
4. Claim and named evidence: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

Counter-position / limit: A constitutional value, commission recommendation, scheme catalogue, budget allocation, portal, disposal count or ranking cannot alone establish lawful authority, inclusive implementation, substantive remedy or attributable outcome; test capacity, federal competence, distribution, privacy, audit, appeal and current operative status.

Qualified conclusion: Such an item combines an institutional claim, an eligibility claim and a discretionary-entry claim that are true or false independently, so the disciplined method separates ownership from cooperation, eligibility from acceptance and a draw-slot limit from a player cap before any judgement is offered.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 20 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing authority -> institution -> delivery -> outcome -> remedy; define and state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for inclusion, privacy, federal, indicator, grievance and current-status limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains implementation rather than listing schemes, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves legal, federal, institutional, causal and outcome distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Assess how an objective demand about tournament eligibility should be analysed proposition by...", replace the weakest catalogue-style point with one named duty-holder, legal or executive basis, delivery bottleneck, process and outcome indicator, grievance route and evidence-status qualification.

ORIGINAL MAINS 6 - 20 MARKS

Question: Assess the governance of a self-regulating sector in which the regulated party cannot exit, using sport as the case. Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: Absence of exit removes the market discipline that ordinarily restrains a private association, so the governance answer must rebuild that discipline through published criteria, recorded reasons, independent dispute resolution, safeguarding independent of the coach and representation of the party with least bargaining power.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

- Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.
- The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.
- The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Qualified conclusion: Absence of exit removes the market discipline that ordinarily restrains a private association, so the governance answer must rebuild that discipline through published criteria, recorded reasons, independent dispute resolution, safeguarding independent of the coach and representation of the party with least bargaining power.

Demand decoding: The directive assess requires a direct position on "Assess the governance of a self-regulating sector in which the regulated party cannot exit,...", every clause, exact authority and institutional boundary, an implementation chain, stakeholder/accountability map, Centre-state-local allocation, named Indian evidence, trade-offs, safeguards and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Absence of exit removes the market discipline that ordinarily restrains a private association, so the governance answer must rebuild that discipline through published criteria, recorded reasons, independent dispute resolution, safeguarding independent of the coach and representation of the party with least bargaining power.

Analytical body:

- 1. Claim and named evidence: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
- 2. Claim and named evidence: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.
- 3. Claim and named evidence: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

4. Claim and named evidence: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. Analysis: Connect authority -> institution and stakeholder incentives -> frontline implementation -> process/output/outcome effect -> accountability or grievance response. Qualification: State the jurisdiction, legal/executive status, Centre-state-local boundary, inclusion/privacy safeguard, causal limit, indicator weakness or residual trade-off.

Counter-position / limit: A constitutional value, commission recommendation, scheme catalogue, budget allocation, portal, disposal count or ranking cannot alone establish lawful authority, inclusive implementation, substantive remedy or attributable outcome; test capacity, federal competence, distribution, privacy, audit, appeal and current operative status.

Qualified conclusion: Absence of exit removes the market discipline that ordinarily restrains a private association, so the governance answer must rebuild that discipline through published criteria, recorded reasons, independent dispute resolution, safeguarding independent of the coach and representation of the party with least bargaining power.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For 20 marks, spend one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing authority -> institution -> delivery -> outcome -> remedy; define and state a thesis; write four to seven claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification points; reserve the final minute for inclusion, privacy, federal, indicator, grievance and current-status limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains implementation rather than listing schemes, uses named India-centric evidence and preserves legal, federal, institutional, causal and outcome distinctions.

How to improve this answer: For "Assess the governance of a self-regulating sector in which the regulated party cannot exit,...", replace the weakest catalogue-style point with one named duty-holder, legal or executive basis, delivery bottleneck, process and outcome indicator, grievance route and evidence-status qualification.

OPTIONAL ADVANCED DEPTH - NOT REQUIRED FOR A CORE ANSWER

Subject: Governance | Tier: Advanced | GS Paper: GS-II. Purpose: Federation autonomy, athlete rights, integrity systems and tournament-governance trade-offs beyond the Core rule distinctions. Companion: basic/16_Sports-Governance-Institutions-and-Major-Tournaments.md.

1. Central tension

sporting autonomy and expertise vs
public accountability, athlete rights and integrity

ANALYSIS: Sports bodies need technical autonomy to frame competition rules, yet monopoly control over recognition, selection and entry creates risks of opacity, conflict of interest and weak remedies.

2. Analytical matrix

Governance issue	Risk	Reform principle
Federation elections	Entrenchment and conflict of interest	Transparent constitution, terms and independent scrutiny
Athlete selection	Unreasoned exclusion	Published criteria, recorded decisions and appeal
Event entry/wild cards	Discretion or favouritism	Rule-bound discretion and conflict disclosure
Anti-doping	Rights error or uneven enforcement	Due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management
Safeguarding	Power imbalance and abuse	Independent reporting and athlete-centred protection
Commercial rights	Revenue concentration	Transparent contracting and reinvestment in sport development

3. Mains framework

1. Identify the rule-making body and its legal/institutional character.
2. Separate technical autonomy from public accountability.
3. Locate athlete rights: notice, reasons, hearing, appeal, privacy and safeguarding.
4. Identify the integrity layer: anti-doping, match manipulation and conflict of interest.
5. Recommend transparent rules and independent review without judicialising every sporting decision.

CONSOLIDATED REGISTER NOTES

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments: RAPID INSTITUTION, INSTRUMENT AND EVIDENCE MAP

1. What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.
2. The layered governance map of organised sport: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.
3. The distinct roles of the named institutions: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.
4. Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority.

5. Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.
6. Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.
7. The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.
8. The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.
9. Wild-card precision: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.
10. Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance.
11. The statement-by-statement method for objective demands: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.
12. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.
13. Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.
14. What the Act creates as examinable governance content: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

15. The status ladder that must appear in any answer: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.
16. The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.
17. Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible.
18. Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.
19. The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.
20. Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments: CLOSE-OPTION AND CAUSAL TRAPS

- Do not state that the International Olympic Committee makes the ordinary competition rules of every sport, because international federations do.
- Do not treat sporting autonomy as immunity from national law, anti-doping rules, financial accountability or judicial review.
- Do not merge recognition of a federation, selection of athletes and organisation of an event into one function.
- Do not claim that shared Grand Slam governance means a single owner operates all four tournaments.
- Do not treat international ranking as conferring unlimited automatic entry, because eligibility and acceptance are different questions.
- Do not convert a limit on wild-card slots in a draw into a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive.
- Do not suggest that a wild card exempts a player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules.
- Do not read an age threshold as proof of acceptance into a draw, because it is an eligibility condition.
- Do not evaluate a set of objective statements as a block, because each proposition must be tested separately against the applicable rule book.
- Do not describe Indian sports governance as having no national governance statute, because the National Sports Governance Act, 2025 is enacted.
- Do not treat enactment as commencement, commencement as rules, rules as constitution of an institution, or constitution as operational jurisdiction.
- Do not present the National Sports Board as already exercising its recognition power or the National Sports Tribunal as having replaced ordinary litigation.
- Do not assert any unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act.
- Do not assert any decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board, any case decided by the Tribunal, or any federation's recognition status.
- Do not state section numbers or commencement dates for the National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025, which is recorded only from secondary reporting.

- Do not describe the Sports Authority of India as a statutory corporation, because it is a society registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860.
- Do not describe the Court of Arbitration for Sport as a court of any state or as a rule-maker for any sport.
- Do not assert any doping case, athlete name or sanction, any medal tally, funding figure or tournament result.
- Do not claim that sports has been placed in the Concurrent List, because the policy text records only that the question will be pursued.

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments: ANSWER-WRITING SPINE

NAME THE NORM OR PROBLEM -> IDENTIFY THE DUTY-HOLDER AND THE BINDING FORM
 -> GROUP NAMED EVIDENCE BY MECHANISM: STATUTE, RULE, SCHEME OR EXECUTIVE POLICY
 -> LOCATE THE STAGE AT WHICH THE MECHANISM STOPS AND STATE THE REMEDY GAP
 -> SEPARATE MEASURED OUTPUT FROM REALISED OUTCOME AND SCOPE FROM TERRITORIAL EXTENT
 -> CLOSE WITH A GRADED VERDICT AND AN EXPLICIT STATUS OR DATA CAVEAT

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments: CURRENT-STATUS AND DATA BOUNDARY

One live official page was verified for this topic on 2026-09-02. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page on the official yas.gov.in domain was read successfully on that date and returned the text of the National Sports Policy, which states that the Central Government, in conjunction with the State Governments, the Indian Olympic Association and the National Sports Federations, will pursue the twin objectives of broad-basing of sports and achieving excellence in sports at the national and international levels, that broad-basing will primarily remain a responsibility of the State Governments while the Union Government actively supplements their efforts including for tapping latent talent in rural and tribal areas, that the Union Government and the Sports Authority of India in association with the Indian Olympic Association and the National Sports Federations will focus on achieving excellence, that a Resolution on the National Sports Policy was laid in both Houses of Parliament in August 1984, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution of India and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued; that last item is recorded strictly as a stated policy intention and is not treated as a claim about the present position of sports in the constitutional lists, and nothing further is inferred from the page. Seven further official checks were attempted on the same date and yielded no usable official text, namely the Sports Authority of India website, which returned a server error, the national anti-doping organisation's about page, which redirected away from any content, the Court of Arbitration for Sport's information pages, which returned not-found errors, the international tennis federation's rules and regulations page, which was blocked by a bot-protection interstitial, the world anti-doping agency's code page, which returned no extractable content, the international Olympic body's governance information page, which timed out, and the Press Information Bureau release page, which was refused with an access error; no content from any of them was read or used and no secondary summary has been treated as an official source. Every substantive statutory and tournament element in this package therefore rests on the repository owners with their own status checks, namely the National Sports Governance Act, 2025 introduced on 23 July 2025, passed on 11 and 12 August 2025, assented on 18 August 2025 as Act No. 25 of 2025, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E) commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, sections 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29, rules framed during 2026 whose individual contents remain secondary-reported, the National Sports Board and National Sports Tribunal as statutory creations whose recognition and jurisdiction provisions were not located in a commenced tranche, the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 as the still-operative administrative recognition instrument read with the Act's deeming continuity, the National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 giving the national anti-doping organisation statutory status, the National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 recorded only from secondary reporting and therefore cited without section numbers or commencement dates, the Sports Authority of India as a society registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport as an international arbitral institution at Lausanne established in 1984, all as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, together with the Grand Slam tournament and entry-route architecture verified by the owners on 2 August 2026. The controlling discipline applied throughout is that enactment is not commencement, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution and constitution is not operational jurisdiction. No unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the National Sports Board is asserted, no case decided by the National Sports Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, no tournament date, host, draw outcome or result is asserted, no medal tally is asserted, and no funding figure is asserted. Decorative match trivia is excluded by design, because the examinable content of this topic is institutional and legal rather than sporting.

COMPLETE TOPIC ASCII MASTER FLOW DIAGRAM

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 1/12: Governance layer map

OLYMPIC BODY -> the Olympic Movement and the Games; not the rule-maker for each sport
INTERNATIONAL FEDERATION -> common sport rules and international recognition
CONTINENTAL AND NATIONAL FEDERATION -> governs and represents the sport in territory
ORGANISER OR LEAGUE -> entry conditions and conduct of its own event
ATHLETE -> eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding sit at the end of the chain
MUST REMEMBER: Sports governance allocates policy, recognition, funding, selection,...

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 2/12: Parallel integrity and dispute layers

INTEGRITY LAYER -> global anti-doping code, then the national anti-doping organisation
DISPUTE LAYER -> internal appeal, then a sport tribunal or arbitration where applicable
SEPARATION -> the code writer does not organise events; the arbitral forum makes no rules
STRICT LIABILITY -> the athlete answers for what is in the body, irrespective of intent

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 3/12: Three functions kept apart

RECOGNITION -> who is entitled to represent the sport, on published criteria
SELECTION -> who is chosen to compete, on criteria published before the cycle
ORGANISATION -> who may enter this event, on the organiser's own entry rules
USE -> locate the complaint in one function before proposing a remedy

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 4/12: Autonomy against accountability

AUTONOMY PROTECTS -> technical rules and selection judgement from political direction
-> MONOPOLY: one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete
-> PUBLIC POWER IN SUBSTANCE: livelihood and career depend on the body's decision
-> OVERSIGHT OF GOVERNANCE, FINANCE AND RIGHTS is not interference in selection RISK IF CROSSED -> interference in selection can expose a body to charter consequences

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 5/12: Grand Slam architecture card

THE FOUR -> Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open OWNERSHIP -> each event has its own organiser and its own operation
COOPERATION -> a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book
FALSE PROPOSITION -> shared governance means one owner operates all four

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 6/12: Four entry routes

DIRECT RANKING ACCEPTANCE -> entry earned by position on the applicable ranking
QUALIFYING -> a separate stage with its own draw size and its own entry route
WILD CARD -> discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking acceptance
PROTECTED OR SPECIAL ENTRY -> a defined exception route under the rule book
RULE -> eligibility is a condition; acceptance into a draw is an outcome
CLOSE DISTINCTION: The Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports is an executive ministry,...

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 7/12: Wild-card proposition test

WHAT IT IS -> discretionary entry bypassing ordinary ranking acceptance
WHAT IT IS NOT -> an exemption from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules
SLOT LIMIT -> a cap on wild-card places available within a given draw
PLAYER CAP -> a separate proposition about one player over a career; test it alone

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 8/12: Statutory trail of the 2025 Act

23 JULY 2025 -> introduced in the Lok Sabha
11 AND 12 AUGUST 2025 -> passed by the Lok Sabha and the Rajya Sabha
18 AUGUST 2025 -> assent; the National Sports Governance Act, 2025, Act No. 25 of 2025
1 JANUARY 2026 -> first tranche of select provisions in force
12 MAY 2026 -> second tranche under S.O. 2406(E); rules framed during 2026

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 9/12: Status ladder discipline

ENACTED -> the Act has received assent and carries a number
-> PROVISION COMMENCED: only the notified tranches are in force
-> RULES FRAMED: existence recorded; individual contents need verification
-> INSTITUTION CONSTITUTED: creation in law is not the exercise of a power
-> JURISDICTION OPERATIONAL: not asserted, so the 2011 Code still governs recognition

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 10/12: Institutional legal character

SPORTS AUTHORITY OF INDIA -> society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860
NATIONAL ANTI-DOPING ORGANISATION -> statutory under the 2022 Act; a real 2022 change
BOARD AND TRIBUNAL -> statutory creations under the 2025 Act; powers not all commenced NATIONAL FEDERATIONS -> private associations that require recognition to represent ARBITRAL FORUM -> an international arbitral institution at Lausanne, established 1984

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 11/12: Six-test checklist for a sports body

1 BASIS OF AUTHORITY -> statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book
2 RECOGNITION -> published criteria, and withdrawal with recorded reasons
3 INTERNAL GOVERNANCE -> elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation
4 SELECTION -> criteria published before the cycle and reasons given for exclusion
5 DISPUTE -> independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal
6 ATHLETE PROTECTION -> safeguarding independent of coach, and no retaliation

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 12/12: Answer spine for a sports-governance demand

OPEN -> name the layer and the legal character of the body actually in dispute
BUILD -> autonomy as protection for sporting judgement, bounded by law and rights
CORRECT -> apply the status ladder and never treat enactment as operation
CLOSE -> graded verdict on basis of authority against practice, with no result cited EVIDENCE LIMIT: AUTHORITY / IMPLEMENTATION: Qualify the National Sports Development Code,...