

SOLVED PRACTICE WORKBOOK

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments - Learner-v2 Refreshed

UPSC complete learning session | Foundation to advanced | Concepts, evidence, practice and answer writing

Original deterministic study visual; labels are explanatory, not textual quotations.

Source order: repository knowledge -> official current linkage -> clearly marked analysis. No fabricated PYQs or statistics.

CONTENTS / WORKBOOK INDEX

Major learning parts and meaningful subtopics are listed in document order. Page numbers are generated from the final PDF layout; PDF bookmarks mirror the same hierarchy.

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments - Solved Practice Workbook 6

BASIC MCQS / REMEDIATION 6

Q1. Which statement correctly identifies What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?	6
Q2. Which chronology card should be filed under What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?	6
Q3. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?	7
Q4. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?	8
Q5. Which statement correctly identifies The layered governance map of organised sport?	8
Q6. Which chronology card should be filed under The layered governance map of organised sport?	9
Q7. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The layered governance map of organised sport?	9
Q8. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The layered governance map of organised sport?	10
Q9. Which statement correctly identifies The distinct roles of the named institutions?	11
Q10. Which chronology card should be filed under The distinct roles of the named institutions?	11
Q11. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The distinct roles of the named institutions?	12
Q12. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The distinct roles of the named institutions?	12
Q13. Which statement correctly identifies Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?	13
Q14. Which chronology card should be filed under Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?	13
Q15. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?	14
Q16. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?	14
Q17. Which statement correctly identifies Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?	15
Q18. Which chronology card should be filed under Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?	15
Q19. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?	16
Q20. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?	17
Q21. Which statement correctly identifies Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?	17
Q22. Which chronology card should be filed under Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?	18
Q23. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?	18
Q24. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?	19
Q25. Which statement correctly identifies The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?	19

Q26. Which chronology card should be filed under The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?	20
Q27. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?	20
Q28. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?	21
Q29. Which statement correctly identifies The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?	21
Q30. Which chronology card should be filed under The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?	22
Q31. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?	22
Q32. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?	23
Q33. Which statement correctly identifies Wild-card precision?	23
Q34. Which chronology card should be filed under Wild-card precision?	24
Q35. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Wild-card precision?	24
Q36. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Wild-card precision?	25
Q37. Which statement correctly identifies Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?	25
Q38. Which chronology card should be filed under Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?	26
Q39. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?	26
Q40. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?	27
Q41. Which statement correctly identifies The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?	27
Q42. Which chronology card should be filed under The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?	28
Q43. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?	29
Q44. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?	29
Q45. Which statement correctly identifies The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?	30
Q46. Which chronology card should be filed under The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?	31
Q47. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?	31
Q48. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?	32
Q49. Which statement correctly identifies Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?	33
Q50. Which chronology card should be filed under Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?	33
Q51. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?	34
Q52. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?	35
Q53. Which statement correctly identifies What the Act creates as examinable governance content?	35
Q54. Which chronology card should be filed under What the Act creates as examinable governance content?	36
Q55. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What the Act creates as examinable governance content?	37

Q56. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What the Act creates as examinable governance content?	38
Q57. Which statement correctly identifies The status ladder that must appear in any answer?	39
Q58. Which chronology card should be filed under The status ladder that must appear in any answer?	40
Q59. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The status ladder that must appear in any answer?	40
Q60. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The status ladder that must appear in any answer?	42
Q61. Which statement correctly identifies The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?	43
Q62. Which chronology card should be filed under The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?	44
Q63. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?	45
Q64. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?	46
Q65. Which statement correctly identifies Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?	47
Q66. Which chronology card should be filed under Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?	48
Q67. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?	49
Q68. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?	50
Q69. Which statement correctly identifies Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?	51
Q70. Which chronology card should be filed under Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?	52
Q71. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?	53
Q72. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?	54
Q73. Which statement correctly identifies The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?	54
Q74. Which chronology card should be filed under The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?	55
Q75. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?	56
Q76. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?	57
Q77. Which statement correctly identifies Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?	58
Q78. Which chronology card should be filed under Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?	59
Q79. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?	60
Q80. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?	62
PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE	63
VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT	63
OWNER PYQ LEDGER EXTRACTS	63
PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2026 Preliminary Examination General Studies Paper-I	64
ORIGINAL MAINS 1 - 10 MARKS	64

ORIGINAL MAINS 2 - 10 MARKS 65

ORIGINAL MAINS 3 - 15 MARKS 66

ORIGINAL MAINS 4 - 15 MARKS 67

ORIGINAL MAINS 5 - 20 MARKS 68

ORIGINAL MAINS 6 - 20 MARKS 68

Sports Governance, Institutions and Major Tournaments - Solved Practice Workbook

BASIC MCQS / REMEDIATION

Q1. Which statement correctly identifies What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?

A. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: A. Explanation: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q2. Which chronology card should be filed under What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?

A. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: B. Explanation: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q3. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?

A. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. B. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

Answer: C. Explanation: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q4. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What this owner holds and the two ways it is examined?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

Answer: D. Explanation: This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q5. Which statement correctly identifies The layered governance map of organised sport?

A. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. D. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

Answer: A. Explanation: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q6. Which chronology card should be filed under The layered governance map of organised sport?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. C. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. D. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

Answer: B. Explanation: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q7. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The layered governance map of organised sport?

A. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. B. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

Answer: C. Explanation: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q8. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The layered governance map of organised sport?

A. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. B. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.

Answer: D. Explanation: Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q9. Which statement correctly identifies The distinct roles of the named institutions?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. D. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

Answer: A. Explanation: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q10. Which chronology card should be filed under The distinct roles of the named institutions?

A. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. B. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

Answer: B. Explanation: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q11. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The distinct roles of the named institutions?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. D. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

Answer: C. Explanation: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q12. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The distinct roles of the named institutions?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: D. Explanation: The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q13. Which statement correctly identifies Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?

A. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. B. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

Answer: A. Explanation: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q14. Which chronology card should be filed under Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?

A. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C.

The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: B. Explanation: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q15. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?

A. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. B. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. C. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: C. Explanation: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q16. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Recognition, selection and organisation are three different functions?

A. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. B. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. C. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. D. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority.

Answer: D. Explanation: Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q17. Which statement correctly identifies Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?

A. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

Answer: A. Explanation: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q18. Which chronology card should be filed under Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: B. Explanation: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q19. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance.

Answer: C. Explanation: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q20. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Autonomy is a functional protection and never a jurisdictional immunity?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. C. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. D. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.

Answer: D. Explanation: Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q21. Which statement correctly identifies Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. C. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: A. Explanation: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q22. Which chronology card should be filed under Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?

A. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. B. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. C. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: B. Explanation: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q23. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. C. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. D. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance.

Answer: C. Explanation: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q24. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Structural monopoly is the reason sport needs governing?

A. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. D. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.

Answer: D. Explanation: The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q25. Which statement correctly identifies The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?

A. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: A. Explanation: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q26. Which chronology card should be filed under The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?

A. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. B. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. C. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. D. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.

Answer: B. Explanation: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q27. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?

A. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: C. Explanation: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q28. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The Grand Slam architecture and the ownership distinction?

A. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. D. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.

Answer: D. Explanation: The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q29. Which statement correctly identifies The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?

A. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. D. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.

Answer: A. Explanation: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q30. Which chronology card should be filed under The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?

A. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. B. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. C. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: B. Explanation: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q31. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?

A. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: C. Explanation: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q32. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The four distinct entry routes and the eligibility distinction?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. D. Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.

Answer: D. Explanation: Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q33. Which statement correctly identifies Wild-card precision?

A. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: A. Explanation: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q34. Which chronology card should be filed under Wild-card precision?

A. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. B. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. C. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: B. Explanation: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q35. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Wild-card precision?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. D. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.

Answer: C. Explanation: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q36. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Wild-card precision?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.

Answer: D. Explanation: A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q37. Which statement correctly identifies Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?

A. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. B. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. C. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: A. Explanation: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q38. Which chronology card should be filed under Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. C. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: B. Explanation: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q39. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. D. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

Answer: C. Explanation: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q40. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Main draw, qualifying and the meaning of an age threshold?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance.

Answer: D. Explanation: The main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance into a draw, so an answer that reads an age rule as an entitlement to play has confused a condition of eligibility with an outcome of acceptance. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q41. Which statement correctly identifies The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?

A. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. B. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. C. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. D. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.

Answer: A. Explanation: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q42. Which chronology card should be filed under The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. C. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: B. Explanation: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q43. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?

A. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. B. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. C. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. D. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

Answer: C. Explanation: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q44. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The statement-by-statement method for objective demands?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. D. An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Answer: D. Explanation: An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q45. Which statement correctly identifies The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?

A. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. D. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

Answer: A. Explanation: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q46. Which chronology card should be filed under The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?

A. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. B. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: B. Explanation: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q47. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?

A. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. B. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. C. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: C. Explanation: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q48. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 and its legislative trail?

A. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. B. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. C. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. D. The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.

Answer: D. Explanation: The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q49. Which statement correctly identifies Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?

A. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. B. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: A. Explanation: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q50. Which chronology card should be filed under Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?

A. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. B. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. C. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: B. Explanation: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q51. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?

A. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. D. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

Answer: C. Explanation: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q52. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Phased commencement and the gazette-verified tranche?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. D. Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.

Answer: D. Explanation: Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q53. Which statement correctly identifies What the Act creates as examinable governance content?

A. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. D. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

Answer: A. Explanation: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q54. Which chronology card should be filed under What the Act creates as examinable governance content?

A. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. B. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. C. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: B. Explanation: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q55. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of What the Act creates as examinable governance content?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: C. Explanation: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. The remaining options belong to

Q56. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about What the Act creates as examinable governance content?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. C. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. D. The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.

Answer: D. Explanation: The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q57. Which statement correctly identifies The status ladder that must appear in any answer?

A. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. D. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

Answer: A. Explanation: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q58. Which chronology card should be filed under The status ladder that must appear in any answer?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. C. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: B. Explanation: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q59. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The status ladder that must appear in any answer?

A. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. B. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. C. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: C. Explanation: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q60. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The status ladder that must appear in any answer?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Answer: D. Explanation: The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q61. Which statement correctly identifies The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?

A. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. B. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. C. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: A. Explanation: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q62. Which chronology card should be filed under The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. C. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: B. Explanation: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q63. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: C. Explanation: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q64. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The anti-doping statutory layer and the amendment recorded as unverified?

A. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. B. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.

Answer: D. Explanation: The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q65. Which statement correctly identifies Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?

A. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. B. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. C. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: A. Explanation: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q66. Which chronology card should be filed under Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: B. Explanation: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q67. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?

A. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: C. Explanation: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q68. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Layered anti-doping jurisdiction and strict liability?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible.

Answer: D. Explanation: The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q69. Which statement correctly identifies Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?

A. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. D. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

Answer: A. Explanation: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q70. Which chronology card should be filed under Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?

A. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. B. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

Answer: B. Explanation: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q71. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. D. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.

Answer: C. Explanation: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q72. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Institutional legal character, the distinction most often got wrong?

A. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. B. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Answer: D. Explanation: The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q73. Which statement correctly identifies The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?

A. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. B. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. C. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. D. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

Answer: A. Explanation: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q74. Which chronology card should be filed under The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. C. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. D. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.

Answer: B. Explanation: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q75. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?

A. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. B. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. C. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. D. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority.

Answer: C. Explanation: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q76. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about The six-test checklist for any sports body or governance failure?

A. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. D. Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

Answer: D. Explanation: Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q77. Which statement correctly identifies Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?

A. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. B. This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests. C. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: A. Explanation: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q78. Which chronology card should be filed under Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?

A. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support. B. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. C. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. D. Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.

Answer: B. Explanation: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q79. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?

A. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. B. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. C. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. D. The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

Answer: C. Explanation: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q80. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Trade-offs, incidence and honest question ownership?

A. The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors. B. Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority. C. Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference. D. The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Answer: D. Explanation: The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE

VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT

One applied objective demand is routed to this topic across the audited ledgers and no direct General Studies Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here, so no Mains demand card is manufactured and no question is invented from the locally held OCR-searchable official papers. The audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes the objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, and the owner's own generated 2026 integration block records the same routing. The 2026 Set-A key held locally is provisional, so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred for it, and the demand card below supplies only the rule-architecture route by which each proposition in such an item is tested separately. The Indian statutory position was verified by the owners on 13 August 2026 and the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026, and the package applies the status ladder throughout, so no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the National Sports Board is asserted, no case decided by the National Sports Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

OWNER PYQ LEDGER EXTRACTS

8. PYQ application

2026 PYQ Integration

Status: 2026 question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-PRELIMS-2026.md. Answer-key rule: The 2026 Prelims and CSAT Set-A keys held locally are provisional; no option or answer is recorded or inferred in this integration.

- Year represented: 2026
- Paper(s): Prelims GS-I
- Routed question demands: 1

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2026	Prelims GS-I	82	Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility, and wild-card participation rules	Objective question; provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally, answer not inferred	Provisional 2026 Set-A key present locally (Ans-2026-GS1-Provisional); key is provisional - no answer letter recorded or inferred here	Cover the named fact/concept and its likely statement-level distinctions.

What this owner must now support

- Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility, and wild-card participation rules

This block integrates the 2026 examinable demand and paper metadata. It is kept separate from the 2018-2023 and 2024-2025 blocks and does not convert a provisionally-keyed, answer-free objective question into a solved answer.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2026 Preliminary Examination General Studies Paper-I

Demand: Objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules, routed to this Basic owner by the audited 2026 Prelims ledger and by the owner's own 2026 integration block.

Status: The 2026 Set-A key held locally is provisional, so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no tournament result, player or draw outcome is asserted. The tournament-rule position underlying this route was verified by the owners on 2 August 2026.

Model solution: An item of this family combines three propositions that are true or false independently, so the method is to separate them before judging any of them. Take the institutional proposition first. The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, each with its own organiser and its own operation, and they cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book; cooperation in rule-making is therefore compatible with four separate owners, and any statement that shared governance means a single owner operates all four is false on that ground alone. Take the eligibility proposition second. Entry into a competition arises through four distinct routes, namely direct ranking acceptance, qualifying, a wild card and a protected or special entry, and eligibility is a condition that a player must satisfy while acceptance into a draw is a separate outcome produced by one of those routes, so a statement that an internationally ranked player of a stated age is thereby entitled to enter confuses a condition with an outcome. Add the stage precision that supports it: the main draw and the qualifying competition are separate stages with separate draw sizes and separate entry routes, and an age threshold in a rule book is an eligibility condition rather than proof of acceptance. Take the wild-card proposition third, and read it with the greatest care because it is where such items usually turn. A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and it does not exempt the recipient from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules; further, a limit on the number of wild-card slots available within a draw is a rule about the event, while a cap on how many wild cards a single player may receive is a rule about the player, and the two must not be inferred from each other. Now state the general discipline that the item is testing. A broadly accurate description of elite tennis is not evidence of a specific entry rule, so each statement must be checked against the named rule book on its own terms rather than accepted because the overall picture sounds right. Close on the honest boundary: because the locally held 2026 key is provisional, no option may be selected here, no answer letter is inferred, and no distractor is reconstructed; what the routing establishes is the obligation to hold the rule architecture precisely, not an entitlement to state an answer.

ORIGINAL MAINS 1 - 10 MARKS

Question: Distinguish the roles of the Olympic body, an international federation, a national federation and a tournament organiser in the governance of sport. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: Each layer makes a different kind of rule and a governance answer must place the disputed decision in the correct layer, because a complaint about entry belongs to the organiser, a complaint about sport rules to the international federation and a complaint about recognition to the national framework.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Organised sport is governed in layers, with the International Olympic Committee governing the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games, an international federation governing the common rules and recognition of its own sport, continental and national federations governing and representing the sport in their territory, and the tournament organiser or league governing entry conditions for its own event, above which sits the athlete's eligibility, entry, discipline and safeguarding; running parallel to that chain are an integrity layer built on the World Anti-Doping Code and implemented by a national anti-doping organisation, and a dispute layer running from internal appeal to a sport tribunal or to arbitration where applicable.
- The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.

- Recognising a federation, selecting athletes and organising an event are distinct functions that are routinely merged in weak answers, and keeping them apart is what allows a governance analysis to locate the failure, because a complaint about a selection decision is not a complaint about recognition policy and a complaint about entry into an event is a matter for the organiser's rules rather than for the recognising authority.
- This topic is examined in two very different ways, namely as objective precision about tournament and institutional rules and as a General Studies Paper-II governance case study on autonomy, accountability and rights in a self-regulating sector, and both are held in this owner; the analysis is confined to governance, statutory status, eligibility architecture, integrity systems and dispute routes, and it deliberately carries no match result, no medal tally, no athlete name, no doping case and no federation's current recognition status, because those are volatile or unverifiable and are not what either paper tests.

Qualified conclusion: Each layer makes a different kind of rule and a governance answer must place the disputed decision in the correct layer, because a complaint about entry belongs to the organiser, a complaint about sport rules to the international federation and a complaint about recognition to the national framework.

ORIGINAL MAINS 2 - 10 MARKS

Question: Explain why autonomy of sports federations cannot be treated as immunity from public accountability. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: Autonomy protects technical and selection judgement while monopoly control over a person's livelihood makes the power public in substance, so oversight of governance, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in selection and is therefore defensible.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Sporting autonomy is a functional protection for technical and selection decisions and it does not confer immunity from national law, from anti-doping rules, from financial accountability or from judicial review, because a body exercising monopoly power over a person's livelihood and career is exercising public power in substance whatever its legal form; the defensible line is that oversight directed at governance standards, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in team selection or technical rules, and it is that distinction which makes statutory regulation defensible against the charge of interference.
- The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.
- Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.
- The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.

Qualified conclusion: Autonomy protects technical and selection judgement while monopoly control over a person's livelihood makes the power public in substance, so oversight of governance, finance and rights is categorically different from interference in selection and is therefore defensible.

ORIGINAL MAINS 3 - 15 MARKS

Question: Examine the shift in Indian sports governance from an executive code to a statutory framework. Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: The change is real because the source of authority has moved from funding-linked administrative conditions to a statute with a regulator and a tribunal, but the change in practice is unproven because commencement is phased and the recognition jurisdiction was not located in a commenced tranche on the verified record.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The National Sports Governance Act, 2025 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 23 July 2025, passed by the Lok Sabha on 11 August 2025 and by the Rajya Sabha on 12 August 2025, received assent on 18 August 2025 and is Act No. 25 of 2025, as verified by the owners on 13 August 2026, and its enactment means that any answer written on the earlier code-only framework, which described Indian sports governance without a national governance statute, is now wrong.
- Commencement of the Act is phased rather than immediate, with select provisions in force from 1 January 2026 and a second tranche from 12 May 2026 under S.O. 2406(E), which the owners record as commencing sections 5(3) to 5(5), section 7, section 17(8) to 17(9) and sections 18, 19, 21, 28 and 29; rules under the Act were framed during 2026 and their existence is recorded while individual rule contents remain secondary-reported and must be verified before detailed citation, and the specific list of provisions commenced on 1 January 2026 is likewise recorded as secondary-reported.
- The Act creates a National Sports Board as a statutory body whose recognition and regulatory jurisdiction it designs, a National Sports Tribunal as a statutory forum designed for sports disputes, and a structured statutory category of national sports bodies covering the Olympic and Paralympic bodies, National Sports Federations and regional federations with compliance conditions attached to recognition, and its stated purposes include alignment with international charter standards, athlete welfare and representation, ethics arrangements, gender representation and transparency, with bodies receiving public funding brought within the ambit of the Right to Information Act.
- The controlling discipline is the status ladder that enactment is not commencement of a provision, commencement is not the framing of rules, rules are not the constitution of an institution, and constitution is not operational jurisdiction, and applying that ladder to the verified record means that the principal recognition-power provision was not located in a commenced tranche as of 13 August 2026, that the Tribunal's jurisdiction and appeal provisions were likewise not located in the commenced tranches, and that the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011 therefore remains the operative recognition framework read with the Act's deeming continuity for previously recognised bodies until the recognition jurisdiction is commenced and operationalised.

Qualified conclusion: The change is real because the source of authority has moved from funding-linked administrative conditions to a statute with a regulator and a tribunal, but the change in practice is unproven because commencement is phased and the recognition jurisdiction was not located in a commenced tranche on the verified record.

ORIGINAL MAINS 4 - 15 MARKS

Question: Examine the governance conditions that make anti-doping enforcement fair as well as effective. Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: Strict liability is necessary because intent is unprovable and harsh because contamination and negligent support staff fall on the athlete, so fairness depends on accredited testing, reasoned results management, an independent appeal route and an authority whose leadership is insulated from the bodies it regulates.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The National Anti-Doping Act, 2022 made the national anti-doping organisation a statutory body in place of its earlier society-registered form and supplies the statutory framework for anti-doping rule violations and results management in India, which is a genuine change of legal status in 2022; a National Anti-Doping (Amendment) Act, 2025 has been enacted and its reported thrust is to strengthen the operational independence of that body's leadership from sports federations and government agencies, to relocate the power to constitute the appeal panel and to clarify appeal routes to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, but this item is recorded from secondary reporting rather than from a gazette text obtained during the audit, so it must be described as an enacted amendment whose detailed provisions require verification and its section numbers and commencement dates must not be stated.
- The anti-doping chain runs from the World Anti-Doping Code, which the global agency writes, through the national statute and the national organisation that conducts testing and results management, to an appeal that may lie to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, and the single most examinable concept in it is strict liability, under which an athlete is responsible for what is found in their body irrespective of intent; strict liability is necessary because intent is generally unprovable and it is genuinely harsh on an athlete affected by contamination or by negligent support staff, which is why due process, accredited testing and reasoned results management are the conditions that keep it defensible.
- The International Olympic Committee is distinct from each sport's international federation, a national sports federation governs and represents its sport nationally subject to the applicable recognition and legal framework, the World Anti-Doping Agency writes the global code and standards and does not organise tournaments, the national anti-doping organisation implements testing and results management within its jurisdiction, the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an independent sports-dispute forum and not the ordinary rule-maker for any sport, the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports holds the Union policy and recognition framework, and the Sports Authority of India implements training, infrastructure and athlete support.
- Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

Qualified conclusion: Strict liability is necessary because intent is unprovable and harsh because contamination and negligent support staff fall on the athlete, so fairness depends on accredited testing, reasoned results management, an independent appeal route and an authority whose leadership is insulated from the bodies it regulates.

ORIGINAL MAINS 5 - 20 MARKS

Question: Assess how an objective demand about tournament eligibility should be analysed proposition by proposition. Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: Such an item combines an institutional claim, an eligibility claim and a discretionary-entry claim that are true or false independently, so the disciplined method separates ownership from cooperation, eligibility from acceptance and a draw-slot limit from a player cap before any judgement is offered.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The four Grand Slam tournaments are the Australian Open, Roland-Garros, Wimbledon and the US Open, and each event has its own organiser and ownership while the four cooperate through a shared governance structure and a common Grand Slam Rule Book, so a shared partnership in rule-making does not erase separate ownership and operation and the proposition that one owner operates all four is false; the owners verified the tournament-rule position on 2 August 2026.
- Entry into a competition can arise through direct ranking acceptance, through qualifying, through a wild card or through a protected or special entry, and these routes are not interchangeable, so eligibility is a separate question from acceptance into a draw and a player who is internationally ranked does not thereby hold unlimited automatic entry; treating a broadly true description of elite sport as proof of a specific entry rule is the standard trap in this area.
- A wild card is a discretionary entry outside ordinary ranking-based acceptance, and two precisions decide objective statements about it, namely that it does not exempt the player from eligibility, conduct or anti-doping rules and that a limit on the number of wild-card slots available in a draw is not the same thing as a cap on how many wild cards a player may receive over a career; a statement that converts a slot limit into a lifetime player cap is therefore a distinct proposition that must be tested on its own.
- An objective demand in this area typically combines an institutional proposition about shared governance, an eligibility proposition about age and ranking, and a wild-card proposition about caps, and the disciplined method is to evaluate each proposition separately against the applicable rule book rather than accepting or rejecting the set as a whole; a broadly accurate description of elite competition is not evidence of a specific entry rule, and this is precisely the confusion such items exploit.

Qualified conclusion: Such an item combines an institutional claim, an eligibility claim and a discretionary-entry claim that are true or false independently, so the disciplined method separates ownership from cooperation, eligibility from acceptance and a draw-slot limit from a player cap before any judgement is offered.

ORIGINAL MAINS 6 - 20 MARKS

Question: Assess the governance of a self-regulating sector in which the regulated party cannot exit, using sport as the case. Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: Absence of exit removes the market discipline that ordinarily restrains a private association, so the governance answer must rebuild that discipline through published criteria, recorded reasons, independent dispute resolution, safeguarding independent of the coach and representation of the party with least bargaining power.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The governance problem in sport is structural monopoly, because there is ordinarily one federation per sport and no exit for the athlete, so the contractual and market disciplines that constrain an ordinary association do not operate and the athlete cannot take custom elsewhere; that absence of exit, rather than any assumption of bad faith, is what makes published criteria, recorded reasons and an independent appeal more important in sport than in most regulated sectors.
- Any sports body or governance failure, including an unfamiliar federation dispute or eligibility controversy, can be assessed on six tests, namely the basis of authority and whether it rests on statute, recognition, contract or a private rule book, recognition and its conditions including who recognises on what published criteria and whether recognition can be withdrawn with reasons, internal governance covering elections, tenure limits, athlete and gender representation, conflict-of-interest rules and published audited accounts, selection and eligibility covering whether criteria are published before the selection cycle, applied consistently and supported by reasons for exclusion, dispute resolution covering an independent forum with notice, hearing, reasons and appeal and whether the athlete is required to waive access to courts, and athlete protection covering safeguarding against abuse and harassment, grievance channels independent of the coach and federation, health and injury support and protection from retaliation for complaining.

- The honest trade-offs are that international charters protect sports bodies from government interference so that excessive interference can risk international suspension of a national body while oversight of governance, finance and rights remains categorically different, that a specialist tribunal brings speed and domain knowledge which matter when a selection dispute must be settled before a competition while raising the same appointment-independence questions as tribunals generally, that governance attention and funding follow medals so broad-base and school sport have weaker constituencies, that event and broadcast revenue concentrates at federation and organiser level so athlete representation in governance is the mechanism that addresses it, and that a national statute does not by itself reform State-level associations; incidence is uneven because the athlete has the shortest career horizon, the least bargaining power and a real fear of retaliation, the coach and support staff hold day-to-day power which is why safeguarding channels must be independent of them, and the national federation holds monopoly recognition while depending on public funding. A Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports page read on 2 September 2026 carries the National Sports Policy text stating that broad-basing of sports remains primarily a responsibility of the State Governments with the Union Government supplementing their efforts, and that the question of inclusion of sports in the Concurrent List of the Constitution and the introduction of appropriate legislation for guiding all matters involving national and inter-State jurisdiction will be pursued, which is recorded as a stated policy intention and not as a claim about the present entry-list position. On ownership, the audited 2026 Prelims ledger routes one objective demand on Grand Slam tennis governance, eligibility and wild-card participation rules to this Basic owner, the locally held 2026 Set-A key is provisional so no option, answer letter or distractor is recorded or inferred, and no direct Mains demand in the audited 2018-2023 or 2024-2025 ledgers is routed here; no unverified substantive-power section number, member count, tenure, age limit, quorum or penalty under the 2025 Act is asserted, no decision, inquiry or derecognition by the Board is asserted, no case decided by the Tribunal is asserted, no doping case, athlete name or sanction is asserted, no federation's recognition status is asserted, and no medal tally, funding figure or tournament result is asserted anywhere.
- The Sports Authority of India is an autonomous body registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 under the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and is not a statutory corporation created by its own Act, and the 2025 statute brings sports bodies within a statutory regulatory framework without converting that organisational form; the national anti-doping organisation is statutory under the 2022 Act, the National Sports Board and the National Sports Tribunal are statutory creations under the 2025 Act, National Sports Federations remain private associations that require recognition, the Indian Olympic Association is the National Olympic Committee and a private body within the Olympic Movement whose charter autonomy coexists with national law, and the Court of Arbitration for Sport is an international arbitral institution based in Lausanne and established in 1984 rather than a court of any state or a rule-maker for any sport.

Qualified conclusion: Absence of exit removes the market discipline that ordinarily restrains a private association, so the governance answer must rebuild that discipline through published criteria, recorded reasons, independent dispute resolution, safeguarding independent of the coach and representation of the party with least bargaining power.