

COMPLETE LEARNING SESSION

Social Change and Modernisation - Learner-v2 Refreshed

UPSC complete learning session | Foundation to advanced | Concepts, evidence, practice and answer writing

Original deterministic study visual; labels are explanatory, not textual quotations.

Source order: repository knowledge -> official current linkage -> clearly marked analysis. No fabricated PYQs or statistics.

CONTENTS / SESSION INDEX

Major learning parts and meaningful subtopics are listed in document order. Page numbers are generated from the final PDF layout; PDF bookmarks mirror the same hierarchy.

Social Change and Modernisation - Learner-v2 Complete Learning Session	6
SOURCE, PROGRESSION AND CURRENT-LINKAGE AUDIT	6
BASIC LEARNING SESSION	6
DEEP-REVIEW LEARNING CONTRACT	6
EVIDENCE, PYQ AND CURRENT-STATUS CONTROL	7
SESSION 1 - FOUNDATION - How a social-change question is framed	8
SESSION 2 - FOUNDATION - The two macro-theories side by side	9
SESSION 3 - FOUNDATION - Choosing the better-supported reading	11
SESSION 4 - CORE - Evolutionary, cyclical and diffusionist accounts	12
SESSION 5 - CORE - Sanskritisation as status claim	13
SESSION 6 - CORE - Westernisation as value import	15
SESSION 7 - CORE - Modernisation and the three axes	16
SESSION 8 - CORE - Status inconsistency as a change engine	17
SESSION 9 - CORE - Great Tradition and Little Tradition	18
SESSION 10 - CORE - Universalisation and parochialisation	19
SESSION 11 - CORE - Secularisation and its two neighbours	21
SESSION 12 - CORE - Continuity alongside change	22
SESSION 13 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Custom, reason and obscurantism	24
SESSION 14 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Technology as a social-change question	25
SESSION 15 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Question ownership and the answer spine	26
INDIAN SOCIETY DEEP-REVIEW CORE CONTROL	34
BASIC MCQS / REMEDIATION	34
Q1. Which statement correctly identifies Social change as a multi-theory question?	34
Q2. Which chronology card should be filed under Social change as a multi-theory question?	35
Q3. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Social change as a multi-theory question?	35
Q4. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Social change as a multi-theory question?	35
Q5. Which statement correctly identifies Structural-functionalism?	36
Q6. Which chronology card should be filed under Structural-functionalism?	36
Q7. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Structural-functionalism?	36

Q8. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Structural-functionalism?	37
Q9. Which statement correctly identifies Conflict theory?	37
Q10. Which chronology card should be filed under Conflict theory?	37
Q11. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Conflict theory?	38
Q12. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Conflict theory?	38
Q13. Which statement correctly identifies Choosing the better-supported reading?	38
Q14. Which chronology card should be filed under Choosing the better-supported reading?	39
Q15. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Choosing the better-supported reading?	39
Q16. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Choosing the better-supported reading?	39
Q17. Which statement correctly identifies Evolutionary and cyclical accounts?	40
Q18. Which chronology card should be filed under Evolutionary and cyclical accounts?	40
Q19. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Evolutionary and cyclical accounts?	40
Q20. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Evolutionary and cyclical accounts?	41
Q21. Which statement correctly identifies Diffusionist explanation?	41
Q22. Which chronology card should be filed under Diffusionist explanation?	41
Q23. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Diffusionist explanation?	42
Q24. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Diffusionist explanation?	42
Q25. Which statement correctly identifies Sanskritisation?	42
Q26. Which chronology card should be filed under Sanskritisation?	43
Q27. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Sanskritisation?	43
Q28. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Sanskritisation?	43
Q29. Which statement correctly identifies Westernisation?	44
Q30. Which chronology card should be filed under Westernisation?	44
Q31. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Westernisation?	44
Q32. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Westernisation?	45
Q33. Which statement correctly identifies Modernisation?	45
Q34. Which chronology card should be filed under Modernisation?	45
Q35. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Modernisation?	46
Q36. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Modernisation?	46
Q37. Which statement correctly identifies Three axes, not one scale?	46
Q38. Which chronology card should be filed under Three axes, not one scale?	47
Q39. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Three axes, not one scale?	47

Q40. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Three axes, not one scale?	47
Q41. Which statement correctly identifies Status inconsistency as a change engine?	48
Q42. Which chronology card should be filed under Status inconsistency as a change engine?	48
Q43. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Status inconsistency as a change engine?	48
Q44. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Status inconsistency as a change engine?	49
Q45. Which statement correctly identifies Great Tradition and Little Tradition?	49
Q46. Which chronology card should be filed under Great Tradition and Little Tradition?	49
Q47. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Great Tradition and Little Tradition?	50
Q48. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Great Tradition and Little Tradition?	50
Q49. Which statement correctly identifies Universalisation?	50
Q50. Which chronology card should be filed under Universalisation?	51
Q51. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Universalisation?	51
Q52. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Universalisation?	51
Q53. Which statement correctly identifies Parochialisation?	52
Q54. Which chronology card should be filed under Parochialisation?	52
Q55. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Parochialisation?	52
Q56. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Parochialisation?	53
Q57. Which statement correctly identifies Secularisation as a sociological process?	53
Q58. Which chronology card should be filed under Secularisation as a sociological process?	53
Q59. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Secularisation as a sociological process?	54
Q60. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Secularisation as a sociological process?	54
Q61. Which statement correctly identifies Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation?	54
Q62. Which chronology card should be filed under Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation?	55
Q63. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation?	55
Q64. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation?	56
Q65. Which statement correctly identifies Continuity alongside change?	56
Q66. Which chronology card should be filed under Continuity alongside change?	56
Q67. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Continuity alongside change?	57
Q68. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Continuity alongside change?	57
Q69. Which statement correctly identifies Custom, reason and obscurantism?	57
Q70. Which chronology card should be filed under Custom, reason and obscurantism?	58
Q71. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Custom, reason and obscurantism?	58

Q72. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Custom, reason and obscurantism?	59
Q73. Which statement correctly identifies Technology as a social-change question?	59
Q74. Which chronology card should be filed under Technology as a social-change question?	59
Q75. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Technology as a social-change question?	60
Q76. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Technology as a social-change question?	60
Q77. Which statement correctly identifies Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict?	60
Q78. Which chronology card should be filed under Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict?	61
Q79. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict?	61
Q80. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict?	62
PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE	62
VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT	62
OWNER PYQ LEDGER EXTRACTS	63
PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2020 GS-I Q19	65
PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2021 GS-I Q19	66
PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2021 GS-I Q20	68
PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2025 GS-I Q18	70
ORIGINAL MAINS 1 - 10 MARKS	71
ORIGINAL MAINS 2 - 10 MARKS	73
ORIGINAL MAINS 3 - 15 MARKS	74
ORIGINAL MAINS 4 - 15 MARKS	75
ORIGINAL MAINS 5 - 20 MARKS	77
ORIGINAL MAINS 6 - 20 MARKS	78
OPTIONAL ADVANCED DEPTH - NOT REQUIRED FOR A CORE ANSWER	80
CONSOLIDATED REGISTER NOTES	85
Social Change and Modernisation: RAPID CONCEPT AND EVIDENCE MAP	85
Social Change and Modernisation: CLOSE-OPTION AND CAUSAL TRAPS	86
Social Change and Modernisation: ANSWER-WRITING SPINE	87
Social Change and Modernisation: CURRENT-LINK AND DATA BOUNDARY	87
COMPLETE TOPIC ASCII MASTER FLOW DIAGRAM	87

Social Change and Modernisation - Learner-v2 Complete Learning Session

Authoring-only generation: 2026-09-02. No PDF was rendered and no tracker or index was mutated.

SOURCE, PROGRESSION AND CURRENT-LINKAGE AUDIT

- Generation date: 2026-09-02.
- Repository-first evidence: the Basic owner is taught first and preserved in full; the Advanced owner is retained only in the optional final teaching block.
- OCR evidence: Repository Markdown was primary. The OCR-searchable official General Studies Paper-I question papers held under books\mains and books\more_previous_papers were used only to confirm the wording of routed Mains PYQs. No official answer key, marking scheme, page precision or unsupported quotation was imported from them.
- Qdrant: not used; repository Markdown and available OCR context were sufficient.
- PYQ integrity: Four direct General Studies Paper-I Mains demands are routed to this topic and each is recorded with its exact routing status. The 2020 Q19 demand on whether customs and traditions suppress reason leading to obscurantism and the 2021 Q20 demand on the continuity of traditional social values amid social change are routed in the audited 2018-2023 Mains ledger to the Advanced owner, while the Core owner's own answer-architecture table records that Core routing supersedes those pointers, so both are answered here from the Basic spine. The 2021 Q19 cryptocurrency demand is recorded in the same ledger as cross-cutting: the instrument route terminates in the answer-complete Economy digital-economy owner while this owner is retained as the society-effect owner, so the answer below is written strictly on the society layer and asserts no price, legal status or adoption figure. The locally held official question papers for 2020 and 2021 are scanned images from which reliable English text cannot be extracted, so the audited ledger's neutral demand rendering is used for those two years and no verbatim wording is claimed. The 2025 Q18 demand on the growth of fast-food industries amid rising health concerns is routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner and its wording was confirmed in the locally held official 2025 General Studies Paper-I; the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims that demand, and this cross-owner conflict is stated openly rather than resolved by an unsupported analytical claim. No marking scheme, official key or model answer of the Union Public Service Commission is held locally, and none is reproduced or inferred.
- Live-link boundary: This is treated as a durable-theory topic, so no dated current-affairs anchor is forced onto it. The only dated official element used is the verbatim wording of the 2025 General Studies Paper-I demand routed to this owner, confirmed in the locally held official question paper. No scholar, village study, survey figure, date or adoption statistic is invented, no cryptocurrency price or legal status is asserted, and constitutional secularism doctrine and socio-religious reform chronology are cross-linked to Polity and Modern Indian History rather than restated.
- Fact/inference discipline: no current-affairs item, PYQ wording, figure or quotation is invented.

BASIC LEARNING SESSION

DEEP-REVIEW LEARNING CONTRACT

Control	Binding rule for this package
Syllabus boundary	Complete Indian Society Basic/Core is answer-complete before optional Advanced depth.
Concept method	Define and distinguish the institution, identity, process, legal category and measured indicator before analysis.
Sociological method	Structure/institution -> mechanism and agency -> differentiated group/region outcome -> feedback, resistance and qualification.
Evidence method	Claim -> named Indian community/region/institution/dataset -> analysis -> source-date-status or causal qualification.
Non-homogenisation	Caste, tribe, women, religion, region and rural/urban groups retain internal class, gender, locality and historical variation.
Boundary method	Constitutional right, statutory mandate, executive scheme, implementation and lived social outcome remain distinct.
Practice contract	Every solved item has demand decoding, a detailed examiner-grade model, executable timed/compression plan, marks rationale and answer-specific improvement.
Approval	This immutable successor remains approved: false pending explicit approval.

Canonical Basic/Core owner:

upsc-ai-kit\knowledge\Indian-Society\basic\12_Social-Change-and-Modernisation.md

Canonical topic owner:

upsc-ai-kit\knowledge\Indian-Society\basic\12_Social-Change-and-Modernisation.md

Optional Advanced owner:

upsc-ai-kit\knowledge\Indian-Society\advanced\12_Social-Change-and-Modernisation.md

Official syllabus mapping:

upsc-ai-kit\knowledge\Indian-Society\OFFICIAL-UPSC-SYLLABUS-MAPPING.md

EVIDENCE, PYQ AND CURRENT-STATUS CONTROL

- Definition discipline: close concepts and legal-administrative categories share a comparison axis and are never treated as synonyms.
- Mechanism discipline: correlation, temporal sequence and aggregate association do not establish causation; identify institutions, incentives, norms, power and agency.
- Historical discipline: colonial, constitutional, developmental, liberalisation and contemporary phases are separated without a linear tradition-to-modernity story.
- Intersectional discipline: overlapping caste, tribe, class, gender, religion, disability, region and life-course positions are analysed without creating a single homogeneous category.
- India discipline: use named communities, movements, institutions, cities, states and regional contrasts without stereotyping or treating one case as nationally representative.
- Data discipline: Census 2011, NFHS, PLFS, SRS, Agriculture Census, MPI and scheme claims retain source, reference period, release date, coverage and provisional/final status.
- PYQ discipline: repository routing ledgers and locally held papers control wording and metadata; reconstructed wording and unavailable official keys remain labelled.
- Current-status note, rechecked 2026-09-05: This is treated as a durable-theory topic, so no dated current-affairs anchor is forced onto it. The only dated official element used is the verbatim wording of the 2025 General Studies Paper-I demand routed to this owner, confirmed in the locally held official question paper. No scholar, village study, survey figure, date or adoption statistic is invented, no cryptocurrency price or legal status is asserted, and constitutional secularism doctrine and socio-religious reform chronology are cross-linked to Polity and Modern Indian History rather than restated.

Live/official context sources recorded by the predecessor generation:

- No volatile live claim is necessary for the static sociological core.

Refreshed teaching navigation

Distinct embedded teaching-navigation image. The separate continuous Cārvāka-style flowchart package remains an independent at-a-glance artifact.

SESSION 1 - FOUNDATION - How a social-change question is framed

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: How a social-change question is framed is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Social change as a multi-theory question fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, How a social-change question is framed denotes the source-bounded relationship among Social change as a multi-theory question, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

How a social-change question is framed should be analysed as a relation among Social change as a multi-theory question, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- social-change
- framed
- Social
- change
- multi-theory
- This

How to use them: Define social-change, framed, Social; cite change as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Reform-movement chronology belongs to Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism to Polity, so neither is re-derived here. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Open a social-change answer with the lens set rather than with a single master theory..

VISUAL FIRST

HOW A SOCIAL-CHANGE QUESTION IS FRAMED

01. Social change as a multi-theory question

BOUNDARY -> Reform-movement chronology belongs to Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism to Polity, so neither is re-derived here.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Reform-movement chronology belongs to Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism to Polity, so neither is re-derived here.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to How a social-change question is framed.
- Mains: Open a social-change answer with the lens set rather than with a single master theory.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Social change as a multi-theory question
- Qualified use: Open a social-change answer with the lens set rather than with a single master theory.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS social-change framed Social change multi-theory This	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Social change as a multi-theory question through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that open a social-change answer with the lens set rather than with a single master theory.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Reform-movement chronology belongs to Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism to Polity, so neither is re-derived here.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: How a social-change question is framed converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 2 - FOUNDATION - The two macro-theories side by side

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: The two macro-theories side by side is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Structural-functionalism and Conflict theory fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, The two macro-theories side by side denotes the source-bounded relationship among Structural-functionalism and Conflict theory, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

The two macro-theories side by side should be analysed as a relation among Structural-functionalism and Conflict theory, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- macro-theories
- side
- Structural-functionalism
- Conflict
- theory
- views

How to use them: Define macro-theories, side, Structural-functionalism; cite Conflict as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Neither lens is a description of how change always happens, and each carries its own causal claim. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: State both mechanisms precisely before applying either to an Indian case..

VISUAL FIRST

THE TWO MACRO-THEORIES SIDE BY SIDE

01. Structural-functionalism

|

v

02. Conflict theory

BOUNDARY -> Neither lens is a description of how change always happens, and each carries its own causal claim.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.
- Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Neither lens is a description of how change always happens, and each carries its own causal claim.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to The two macro-theories side by side.
- Mains: State both mechanisms precisely before applying either to an Indian case.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Structural-functionalism -> Conflict theory
- Qualified use: State both mechanisms precisely before applying either to an Indian case.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS macro-theories side Structural-functionalism Conflict theory views	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Structural-functionalism and Conflict theory through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that state both mechanisms precisely before applying either to an Indian case.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Neither lens is a description of how change always happens, and each carries its own causal claim.

SESSION 3 - FOUNDATION - Choosing the better-supported reading

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Choosing the better-supported reading is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Choosing the better-supported reading fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Choosing the better-supported reading denotes the source-bounded relationship among Choosing the better-supported reading, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Choosing the better-supported reading should be analysed as a relation among Choosing the better-supported reading, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Choosing
- better-supported
- reading
- ending
- untouchability
- practice

How to use them: Define Choosing, better-supported, reading; cite ending as named evidence; then apply this qualification: The same episode supports both readings, so the answer must argue from evidence rather than from theory preference. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Convert a theory comparison into a defensible verdict about one case..

VISUAL FIRST

CHOOSING THE BETTER-SUPPORTED READING

01. Choosing the better-supported reading

BOUNDARY -> The same episode supports both readings, so the answer must argue from evidence rather than from theory preference.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- The same episode supports both readings, so the answer must argue from evidence rather than from theory preference.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Choosing the better-supported reading.

- Mains: Convert a theory comparison into a defensible verdict about one case.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Choosing the better-supported reading
- Qualified use: Convert a theory comparison into a defensible verdict about one case.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Choosing better-supported reading ending untouchability practice	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Choosing the better-supported reading through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that convert a theory comparison into a defensible verdict about one case.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: The same episode supports both readings, so the answer must argue from evidence rather than from theory preference.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Choosing the better-supported reading converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 4 - CORE - Evolutionary, cyclical and diffusionist accounts

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Evolutionary, cyclical and diffusionist accounts is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Evolutionary and cyclical accounts and Diffusionist explanation fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Evolutionary, cyclical and diffusionist accounts denotes the source-bounded relationship among Evolutionary and cyclical accounts and Diffusionist explanation, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Evolutionary, cyclical and diffusionist accounts should be analysed as a relation among Evolutionary and cyclical accounts and Diffusionist explanation, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Evolutionary
- cyclical
- diffusionist
- accounts
- explanation
- theory

How to use them: Define Evolutionary, cyclical, diffusionist; cite accounts as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Modern sociology prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure evolutionary or pure diffusionist explanation. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Add the older theory families with their status attached instead of presenting them as settled..

VISUAL FIRST

EVOLUTIONARY, CYCLICAL AND DIFFUSIONIST ACCOUNTS

01. Evolutionary and cyclical accounts

|
v

02. Diffusionist explanation

BOUNDARY -> Modern sociology prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure evolutionary or pure diffusionist explanation.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form.
- A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Modern sociology prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure evolutionary or pure diffusionist explanation.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Evolutionary, cyclical and diffusionist accounts.
- Mains: Add the older theory families with their status attached instead of presenting them as settled.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Evolutionary and cyclical accounts -> Diffusionist explanation
- Qualified use: Add the older theory families with their status attached instead of presenting them as settled.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Evolutionary cyclical diffusionist accounts explanation theory	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Evolutionary and cyclical accounts and Diffusionist explanation through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that add the older theory families with their status attached instead of presenting them as settled.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Modern sociology prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure evolutionary or pure diffusionist explanation.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Evolutionary, cyclical and diffusionist accounts converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 5 - CORE - Sanskritisation as status claim

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Sanskritisation as status claim is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Sanskritisation fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Sanskritisation as status claim denotes the source-bounded relationship among Sanskritisation, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Sanskritisation as status claim should be analysed as a relation among Sanskritisation, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Sanskritisation
- Srinivas's
- formulation
- emulation
- locally
- dominant

How to use them: Define Sanskritisation, Srinivas's, formulation; cite emulation as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Sanskritisation changes position within a hierarchy whose logic is left intact. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Name the mobility concept precisely so it is not confused with structural change..

VISUAL FIRST

SANSKRITISATION AS STATUS CLAIM

01. Sanskritisation

BOUNDARY -> Sanskritisation changes position within a hierarchy whose logic is left intact.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Sanskritisation changes position within a hierarchy whose logic is left intact.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Sanskritisation as status claim.
- Mains: Name the mobility concept precisely so it is not confused with structural change.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Sanskritisation
- Qualified use: Name the mobility concept precisely so it is not confused with structural change.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Sanskritisation Srinivas's formulation emulation locally dominant	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Sanskritisation through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that name the mobility concept precisely so it is not confused with structural change.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Sanskritisation changes position within a hierarchy whose logic is left intact.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Sanskritisation as status claim converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 6 - CORE - Westernisation as value import

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Westernisation as value import is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Westernisation fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Westernisation as value import denotes the source-bounded relationship among Westernisation, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Westernisation as value import should be analysed as a relation among Westernisation, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Westernisation
- value
- import
- adoption
- values
- from

How to use them: Define Westernisation, value, import; cite adoption as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Value import can subvert a hierarchy rather than merely reposition a group inside it. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Separate the value axis from the status axis in one sentence..

VISUAL FIRST

WESTERNISATION AS VALUE IMPORT

01. Westernisation

BOUNDARY -> Value import can subvert a hierarchy rather than merely reposition a group inside it.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Value import can subvert a hierarchy rather than merely reposition a group inside it.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Westernisation as value import.
- Mains: Separate the value axis from the status axis in one sentence.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Westernisation
- Qualified use: Separate the value axis from the status axis in one sentence.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW | SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW

1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS

Westernisation | value | import | adoption | values | from

2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT

relate Westernisation through unit, boundary rule and direction of change

3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST

This relation supports the answer route that separate the value axis from the status axis in one sentence.

4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE

LIMIT: Value import can subvert a hierarchy rather than merely reposition a group inside it.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Westernisation as value import converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 7 - CORE - Modernisation and the three axes

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Modernisation and the three axes is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Modernisation and Three axes, not one scale fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Modernisation and the three axes denotes the source-bounded relationship among Modernisation and Three axes, not one scale, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Modernisation and the three axes should be analysed as a relation among Modernisation and Three axes, not one scale, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Modernisation
- three
- axes
- scale
- structural
- change

How to use them: Define Modernisation, three, axes; cite scale as named evidence; then apply this qualification: The three concepts are separate axes and never points on one scale of progress. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Answer a distinguish directive with axes rather than with a chronology..

VISUAL FIRST

MODERNISATION AND THE THREE AXES

01. Modernisation

|
v

02. Three axes, not one scale

BOUNDARY -> The three concepts are separate axes and never points on one scale of progress.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

- Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- The three concepts are separate axes and never points on one scale of progress.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Modernisation and the three axes.
- Mains: Answer a distinguish directive with axes rather than with a chronology.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Modernisation -> Three axes, not one scale
- Qualified use: Answer a distinguish directive with axes rather than with a chronology.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Modernisation three axes scale structural change	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Modernisation and Three axes, not one scale through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that answer a distinguish directive with axes rather than with a chronology.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: The three concepts are separate axes and never points on one scale of progress.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Modernisation and the three axes converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 8 - CORE - Status inconsistency as a change engine

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Status inconsistency as a change engine is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Status inconsistency as a change engine fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Status inconsistency as a change engine denotes the source-bounded relationship among Status inconsistency as a change engine, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Status inconsistency as a change engine should be analysed as a relation among Status inconsistency as a change engine, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- inconsistency
- change
- engine
- Westernisation
- modernisation
- advance

How to use them: Define inconsistency, change, engine; cite Westernisation as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Inconsistency between values, structure and recognised status is itself a source of further change. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Explain why change does not stop once a group has gained education and employment..

VISUAL FIRST

STATUS INCONSISTENCY AS A CHANGE ENGINE

01. Status inconsistency as a change engine

BOUNDARY -> Inconsistency between values, structure and recognised status is itself a source of further change.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Inconsistency between values, structure and recognised status is itself a source of further change.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Status inconsistency as a change engine.
- Mains: Explain why change does not stop once a group has gained education and employment.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Status inconsistency as a change engine
- Qualified use: Explain why change does not stop once a group has gained education and employment.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS inconsistency change engine Westernisation modernisation advance	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Status inconsistency as a change engine through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that explain why change does not stop once a group has gained education and employment.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Inconsistency between values, structure and recognised status is itself a source of further change.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Status inconsistency as a change engine converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 9 - CORE - Great Tradition and Little Tradition

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Great Tradition and Little Tradition is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Great Tradition and Little Tradition fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Great Tradition and Little Tradition denotes the source-bounded relationship among Great Tradition and Little Tradition, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Great Tradition and Little Tradition should be analysed as a relation among Great Tradition and Little Tradition, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Great
- Tradition

- Little
- Robert
- Redfield's
- developed

How to use them: Define Great, Tradition, Little; cite Robert as named evidence; then apply this qualification: The two streams interact continuously and neither exists in isolation from the other. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Introduce the framework with its authorship before illustrating it..

VISUAL FIRST

GREAT TRADITION AND LITTLE TRADITION

01. Great Tradition and Little Tradition

BOUNDARY -> The two streams interact continuously and neither exists in isolation from the other.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- The two streams interact continuously and neither exists in isolation from the other.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Great Tradition and Little Tradition.
- Mains: Introduce the framework with its authorship before illustrating it.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Great Tradition and Little Tradition
- Qualified use: Introduce the framework with its authorship before illustrating it.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Great Tradition Little Robert Redfield's developed	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Great Tradition and Little Tradition through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that introduce the framework with its authorship before illustrating it.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: The two streams interact continuously and neither exists in isolation from the other.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Great Tradition and Little Tradition converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 10 - CORE - Universalisation and parochialisation

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Universalisation and parochialisation is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Universalisation and Parochialisation fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Universalisation and parochialisation denotes the source-bounded relationship among Universalisation and Parochialisation, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Universalisation and parochialisation should be analysed as a relation among Universalisation and Parochialisation, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Universalisation
- parochialisation
- movement
- local
- folk
- deity

How to use them: Define Universalisation, parochialisation, movement; cite local as named evidence; then apply this qualification: The two processes run in opposite directions, so neither may be described as elite imposition. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Refute a top-down diffusion model with a named two-way mechanism..

VISUAL FIRST

UNIVERSALISATION AND PAROCHIALISATION

01. Universalisation

|
v

02. Parochialisation

BOUNDARY -> The two processes run in opposite directions, so neither may be described as elite imposition.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk.
- Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- The two processes run in opposite directions, so neither may be described as elite imposition.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Universalisation and parochialisation.
- Mains: Refute a top-down diffusion model with a named two-way mechanism.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Universalisation -> Parochialisation
- Qualified use: Refute a top-down diffusion model with a named two-way mechanism.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW | SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW

1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS

Universalisation | parochialisation | movement | local | folk | deity

2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT

relate Universalisation and Parochialisation through unit, boundary rule and direction of change

3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST

This relation supports the answer route that refute a top-down diffusion model with a named two-way mechanism.

4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE

LIMIT: The two processes run in opposite directions, so neither may be described as elite imposition.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Universalisation and parochialisation converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 11 - CORE - Secularisation and its two neighbours

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Secularisation and its two neighbours is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Secularisation as a sociological process and Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Secularisation and its two neighbours denotes the source-bounded relationship among Secularisation as a sociological process and Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Secularisation and its two neighbours should be analysed as a relation among Secularisation as a sociological process and Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Secularisation
- neighbours
- sociological
- process
- secularism
- desacralisation

How to use them: Define Secularisation, neighbours, sociological; cite process as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Institutional differentiation, constitutional doctrine and experiential desacralisation operate at three different levels. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Protect a secularisation answer from the commonest conflation in this module..

VISUAL FIRST

SECULARISATION AND ITS TWO NEIGHBOURS

01. Secularisation as a sociological process

|
v

02. Secularisation, secularism and desecralisation

BOUNDARY -> Institutional differentiation, constitutional doctrine and experiential desecralisation operate at three different levels.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desecralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism.
- Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desecralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Institutional differentiation, constitutional doctrine and experiential desecralisation operate at three different levels.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Secularisation and its two neighbours.
- Mains: Protect a secularisation answer from the commonest conflation in this module.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Secularisation as a sociological process -> Secularisation, secularism and desecralisation
- Qualified use: Protect a secularisation answer from the commonest conflation in this module.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Secularisation neighbours sociological process secularism desecralisation	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Secularisation as a sociological process and Secularisation, secularism and desecralisation through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that protect a secularisation answer from the commonest conflation in this module.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Institutional differentiation, constitutional doctrine and experiential desecralisation operate at three different levels.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Secularisation and its two neighbours converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 12 - CORE - Continuity alongside change

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Continuity alongside change is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Continuity alongside change fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Continuity alongside change denotes the source-bounded relationship among Continuity alongside change, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Continuity alongside change should be analysed as a relation among Continuity alongside change, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Continuity
- alongside
- change
- Traditional
- values
- persist

How to use them: Define Continuity, alongside, change; cite Traditional as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Every persistence mechanism must be paired with the change pressure it is resisting. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Structure an enumerate directive so continuity is shown as an active process..

VISUAL FIRST

CONTINUITY ALONGSIDE CHANGE

01. Continuity alongside change

BOUNDARY -> Every persistence mechanism must be paired with the change pressure it is resisting.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Every persistence mechanism must be paired with the change pressure it is resisting.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Continuity alongside change.
- Mains: Structure an enumerate directive so continuity is shown as an active process.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Continuity alongside change
- Qualified use: Structure an enumerate directive so continuity is shown as an active process.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Continuity alongside change Traditional values persist	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Continuity alongside change through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that structure an enumerate directive so continuity is shown as an active process.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Every persistence mechanism must be paired with the change pressure it is resisting.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Continuity alongside change converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 13 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Custom, reason and obscurantism

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Custom, reason and obscurantism is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Custom, reason and obscurantism fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Custom, reason and obscurantism denotes the source-bounded relationship among Custom, reason and obscurantism, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Custom, reason and obscurantism should be analysed as a relation among Custom, reason and obscurantism, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Custom
- reason
- obscurantism
- automatically
- irrational
- examinable

How to use them: Define Custom, reason, obscurantism; cite automatically as named evidence; then apply this qualification: A practice is examined for its effect on inquiry and agency, never a community for its supposed rationality. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Answer a critical-evaluation directive without turning it into a civilisational verdict..

VISUAL FIRST

CUSTOM, REASON AND OBSCURANTISM

01. Custom, reason and obscurantism

BOUNDARY -> A practice is examined for its effect on inquiry and agency, never a community for its supposed rationality.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- A practice is examined for its effect on inquiry and agency, never a community for its supposed rationality.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Custom, reason and obscurantism.
- Mains: Answer a critical-evaluation directive without turning it into a civilisational verdict.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Custom, reason and obscurantism

- Qualified use: Answer a critical-evaluation directive without turning it into a civilisational verdict.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Custom reason obscurantism automatically irrational examinable	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Custom, reason and obscurantism through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that answer a critical-evaluation directive without turning it into a civilisational verdict.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: A practice is examined for its effect on inquiry and agency, never a community for its supposed rationality.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Custom, reason and obscurantism converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 14 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Technology as a social-change question

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Technology as a social-change question is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Technology as a social-change question fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Technology as a social-change question denotes the source-bounded relationship among Technology as a social-change question, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Technology as a social-change question should be analysed as a relation among Technology as a social-change question, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- Technology
- social-change
- technology's
- societal
- effect
- depends

How to use them: Define Technology, social-change, technology's; cite societal as named evidence; then apply this qualification: Instrument facts, prices, legal status and adoption figures belong to other owners and are not asserted here. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Deliver a technology answer entirely from the society layer..

VISUAL FIRST

TECHNOLOGY AS A SOCIAL-CHANGE QUESTION

01. Technology as a social-change question

BOUNDARY -> Instrument facts, prices, legal status and adoption figures belong to other owners and are not asserted here.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- Instrument facts, prices, legal status and adoption figures belong to other owners and are not asserted here.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Technology as a social-change question.
- Mains: Deliver a technology answer entirely from the society layer.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Technology as a social-change question
- Qualified use: Deliver a technology answer entirely from the society layer.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW
1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS Technology social-change technology's societal effect depends	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Technology as a social-change question through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that deliver a technology answer entirely from the society layer.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: Instrument facts, prices, legal status and adoption figures belong to other owners and are not asserted here.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Technology as a social-change question converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

SESSION 15 - CORE SYNTHESIS - Question ownership and the answer spine

DEFINITION / WHAT THIS IS CALLED

Plain-language definition: Question ownership and the answer spine is the part of Social Change and Modernisation that explains how Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict fit into one examinable social relationship.

Technical definition: In sociological analysis, Question ownership and the answer spine denotes the source-bounded relationship among Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict, described by unit of analysis, boundary rule, mechanism of reproduction, direction of change and the evidence that may legitimately be claimed for it.

ANSWER-GRABBING OPENING - WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM

Question ownership and the answer spine should be analysed as a relation among Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict, not as a list of adjectives about Indian society.

MUST-WRITE KEYWORDS

- ownership
- spine
- direct
- Mains
- demands
- conflict

How to use them: Define ownership, spine, direct; cite Mains as named evidence; then apply this qualification: One demand routed to this owner is also claimed by the Globalisation owner, and the conflict is recorded rather than hidden. Conclude by showing how the distinction supports this answer route: Assemble the social-change answer spine with honest question ownership..

VISUAL FIRST

QUESTION OWNERSHIP AND THE ANSWER SPINE

01. Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict

BOUNDARY -> One demand routed to this owner is also claimed by the Globalisation owner, and the conflict is recorded rather than hidden.

This topic-specific rail fixes the evidence sequence and its exam boundary before analysis.

CORE EXPLANATION

Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion.

NAMED EVIDENCE AND MECHANISM

- Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion.

EXAMINER CAUTION

- One demand routed to this owner is also claimed by the Globalisation owner, and the conflict is recorded rather than hidden.

EXAM LINK

- Prelims: Retain the exact unit, named scholar, official category, dated statistic or legal boundary attached to Question ownership and the answer spine.
- Mains: Assemble the social-change answer spine with honest question ownership.

MINI RECAP

- Evidence chain: Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict
- Qualified use: Assemble the social-change answer spine with honest question ownership.

CLOSING RECALL FLOW

SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW | SUBTOPIC CLOSURE FLOW

1. KEY TERMS / DEFINITIONS ownership spine direct Mains demands conflict	2. MECHANISM / ARGUMENT relate Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict through unit, boundary rule and direction of change	3. CONSEQUENCE / CONTRAST This relation supports the answer route that assemble the social-change answer spine with honest question ownership.	4. UPSC TRAP / ANSWER-USE LIMIT: One demand routed to this owner is also claimed by the Globalisation owner, and the conflict is recorded rather than hidden.
ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Question ownership and the answer spine converts named social evidence into a qualified argument

COMPLETE BASIC OWNER EVIDENCE BANK

Subject: Indian Society | Tier: Must-Do (foundation) | GS Paper: GS-I. Core area: Theories of social change, the Sanskritisation-Westernisation-Modernisation triad, Great Tradition-Little Tradition, and secularisation as a sociological process. Grounded in: M.N. Srinivas (Sanskritisation/Westernisation); Robert Redfield and McKim Marriott (Great Tradition-Little Tradition); no dated current-affairs anchor required for this durable-theory topic. FACT: = source-grounded | ANALYSIS: = analytical inference | CURRENT: = current anchor (not applicable here). Companion: advanced/12_Social-Change-and-Modernisation.md.

1. Visual foundation

Core proposition: ANALYSIS: Indian social change is best explained not by a single theory but by several complementary lenses - structural-functional, conflict and evolutionary - and by India-specific vocabulary (Sanskritisation, Westernisation, Modernisation) that captures how mobility and value-change can proceed together or independently; the Great Tradition-Little Tradition framework and the sociological (not constitutional) concept of secularisation further show change operating at both textual/elite and local/folk levels simultaneously.

2. Essential definitions

Concept	Exam-ready meaning
FACT: Structural-functionalism	A theory viewing society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption. It is one lens, not a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.
ANALYSIS: Conflict theory	A theory (Marxian-influenced) viewing social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests, rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation.
FACT: Sanskritisation, Westernisation, Modernisation	Sanskritisation: emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual status; Westernisation: adoption of new values from Western contact; Modernisation: structural, rational-institutional change (bureaucratic, technological, scientific) not tied to caste-hierarchy emulation - the three can occur together, separately or in tension.
FACT: Great Tradition and Little Tradition (Robert Redfield, developed for India by McKim Marriott)	Great Tradition: the pan-Indian, textual, reflective, often Brahmanical cultural stream; Little Tradition: the local, oral, folk-level cultural stream - the two continuously interact through "universalisation" (local elements gaining pan-Indian recognition) and "parochialisation" (pan-Indian elements adapted to local form).
ANALYSIS: Secularisation (sociological process)	Differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains. It is not a universal linear disappearance of religion and is distinct from constitutional secularism.

3. How social-change theories and processes work

- Structural-functional view: FACT: change can be analysed as institutions adapting and renegotiating functions - for example, family residence changing while support and socialisation continue. It should not be assumed that every adjustment restores consensus.
- Conflict view: ANALYSIS: change instead arises from unresolved structural contradictions - caste or class conflict driving reform or upheaval rather than smooth institutional adaptation.
- Sanskritisation as status-emulation change: FACT: a jati adopts a dominant caste's rituals to claim higher local status without altering the underlying hierarchy's logic - change in position, not necessarily in structure.
- Westernisation as value-import change: FACT: exposure to Western education, law and institutions introduces values (equality, individual rights, rationality) that can subvert, not merely reposition within, existing hierarchy.
- Modernisation as structural-rational change: FACT: modernisation implies structural shift toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated social roles, analytically distinct from either Sanskritisation or Westernisation, though all three often occur together in practice.
- Great Tradition-Little Tradition interaction: FACT: universalisation carries a local folk deity or practice into pan-Indian recognition; parochialisation adapts a pan-Indian textual practice into local, folk form - showing cultural change flows in both directions, not only top-down from elite to folk.
- Secularisation as sociological process: ANALYSIS: education, markets and state institutions can differentiate economic and civic life from religious authority in some domains, even while religious identity and practice remain significant or intensify in others. This is distinct from constitutional secularism (Topic 15/Polity).

4. Institutions and concepts

- FACT: Sanskritisation/Westernisation/dominant caste (cross-linked): fully treated as caste-mobility concepts in 02_Caste-System-Structure-and-Contemporary-Dynamics.md; here they are placed within the general theory of social change.

- FACT: Great Tradition-Little Tradition: the standard framework for analysing how elite/textual and folk/local culture interact and change together.
- ANALYSIS: Socio-religious reform-movement legacy (cross-linked): the chronological history of reform movements that catalysed much of India's 19th-20th century social change belongs to Modern-Indian-History/basic/10_Socio-Religious-Reform-Movements.md.
- ANALYSIS: Constitutional secularism doctrine (cross-linked): Article 25-28 doctrine and the 42nd Amendment are Polity's territory, not elaborated here.

5. Indian applications and examples

- ANALYSIS: A local folk deity gradually becoming identified with a pan-Indian deity and gaining a temple recognised across regions illustrates universalisation; a pan-Indian textual ritual practised in a simplified, locally adapted form in a village illustrates parochialisation.
- ANALYSIS: A community that Sanskritises its rituals while also adopting Western-origin ideas of individual equality shows Sanskritisation and Westernisation operating together, though analytically distinct.
- ANALYSIS: No direct 2024/2025 GS-I Mains PYQ specifically targets social-change theory or the Sanskritisation-Westernisation-Modernisation triad as a standalone question; this is a recurring, older-pattern examination theme, stated honestly rather than inventing a fabricated recent question.

6. Must-Know Facts for Prelims

- FACT: M.N. Srinivas distinguished Sanskritisation (status emulation within existing hierarchy) from Westernisation (new value import) and from modernisation (structural-rational change).
- FACT: Robert Redfield's Great Tradition-Little Tradition framework was applied to Indian village society by McKim Marriott through the universalisation-parochialisation concepts.
- ANALYSIS: Structural-functionalism and conflict theory are the two most commonly contrasted macro-theories of social change in the UPSC syllabus context.
- ANALYSIS: Secularisation as institutional differentiation (which need not mean declining belief) is distinct from constitutional secularism as a legal-political doctrine.
- ANALYSIS: This topic carries no fixed dated current-affairs anchor; it is treated as a durable conceptual theme rather than a current-events-linked one.

7. UPSC traps

- WRONG: Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation are three names for the same process.
-> They are analytically distinct: status emulation within hierarchy, value import from Western contact, and structural-rational institutional change respectively.
- WRONG: Universalisation and parochialisation both describe elite culture imposing itself on folk culture. -> Universalisation moves local elements upward into pan-Indian recognition; parochialisation moves pan-Indian elements downward into local, adapted form - the flow runs in both directions.
- WRONG: Secularisation (sociological) and secularism (constitutional) are the same concept. -> Secularisation describes institutional differentiation and may coexist with strong religious identity; secularism is a constitutional/political doctrine. Conflating them is a frequent Mains error (see Topic 15 for the constitutional side).
- WRONG: Structural-functionalism and conflict theory always produce the same explanation for a given social change. -> They offer competing accounts - equilibrium-restoration versus contradiction-driven struggle - and a good answer distinguishes which is more applicable to a given case.

8. CURRENT: Current anchor

- CURRENT: This is treated as a durable-theory topic with no dated current-affairs anchor required; do not force a current-events citation onto a purely conceptual answer on social-change theory.

9. PYQ application

- ANALYSIS: No direct 2024/2025 GS-I Mains PYQ targets this topic specifically; when a social-change-theory question does appear, anchor the answer in the Sanskritisation-Westernisation-Modernisation triad and the Great Tradition-Little Tradition framework, which remain the syllabus's core testable content here.

10. Mains angles

- ANALYSIS: Always keep Sanskritisation/Westernisation/Modernisation analytically separate even when illustrating them together in one example.

- ANALYSIS: Use universalisation/parochialisation whenever a question involves the elite-folk cultural relationship.

- ANALYSIS: Keep constitutional secularism doctrine cross-linked to Polity, not restated here.

Answer thesis: Indian social change is best explained through complementary theories (structural-functional and conflict) and through India-specific concepts - Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation - that separate status emulation, value import and structural-rational change; the Great Tradition-Little Tradition framework further shows that cultural change moves both from folk to pan-Indian and from pan-Indian to folk levels, while secularisation as a sociological process should never be conflated with constitutional secularism.

11. Probable questions

- ANALYSIS: Prelims: Who developed the concepts of universalisation and parochialisation for Indian village society?

- ANALYSIS: Mains (10 marks): Distinguish between Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation with examples.

- ANALYSIS: Mains (15 marks): Explain the Great Tradition-Little Tradition framework and illustrate universalisation and parochialisation with Indian examples.

- ANALYSIS: Mains (10 marks): Distinguish between secularisation as a sociological process and secularism as a constitutional doctrine.

12. Study links

- FACT: Advanced companion: advanced/12_Social-Change-and-Modernisation.md.

- FACT: 02_Caste-System-Structure-and-Contemporary-Dynamics.md - Sanskritisation and Westernisation as caste-mobility concepts.

- FACT: Modern-Indian-History/basic/10_Socio-Religious-Reform-Movements.md - chronological reform-movement narrative.

- FACT: 15_Secularism.md - secularism as social practice and current debate.

- FACT: Philosophy/paper-2/socio-political/Humanism-Secularism-Multiculturalism.md - secularism as political philosophy (thinker-based treatment).

13. Answer architecture (10/15/20-mark support)

Core-only. Theory is valuable only when it changes the answer's causal logic. This Core now owns the older demand families that were previously stranded in advanced/12.

13.1 Directive-to-structure map

Demand family	What is tested	Structure that scores
Do you agree customs suppress reason	Critical evaluation, not a civilisational verdict	identify practice -> power/knowledge mechanism -> reform/agency -> qualification
What is and how does cryptocurrency affect society	Social effects distinct from instrument	define/cross-link instrument -> access/trust/risk/inequality -> factual boundary
Enumerate continuity amid change	Mechanisms of persistence	family/kinship, ritual, language/local culture, institutions -> change interaction
Illustrate fast-food growth	Social change mechanism	urban time/market/delivery/aspiration -> health tension -> qualification
Distinguish Sanskritisation, Westernisation, modernisation	Three axes	status -> values -> structure -> mixed case

13.2 Thesis bank

- T1: ANALYSIS: Social change is multi-axial: a practice can change institutionally while retaining cultural meaning, or persist culturally while its power relation is contested.
- T2: ANALYSIS: Reasoned reform must distinguish a custom's lived meaning from the hierarchy or harm that a particular application can reproduce.
- T3: ANALYSIS: A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and risk-not the technology's label.

13.3 Mark-scaled spines

10 marks - customs, reason and obscurantism (2020 GS-I). State that custom is not automatically irrational. Identify when a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice; use reform/education and internal dissent as change mechanisms. Qualify with pluralism and avoid naming a community as inherently irrational.

15 marks - continuity of traditional values amid social change (2021 GS-I). Enumerate four mechanisms: family/kin socialisation, ritual/festival and local culture, language/ regional identity, and adaptation through universalisation/parochialisation. For each, state the parallel change pressure (education, migration, media, law). Conclude with T1.

20 marks - technology and social change. Use a two-layer answer: instrument facts and regulation are cross-linked to Economy/Science; Society analyses access, trust, work, identity and unequal risk. Apply this to cryptocurrency without asserting a price, legal status or adoption figure. Add a fast-food/urban-time example and a critical conclusion.

13.4 Evidence bank - claim -> named evidence/example -> significance -> limitation

- E1 - Three axes. Claim: change cannot be read on one scale. Evidence: M.N. Srinivas's Sanskritisation and Westernisation, contrasted with modernisation. Significance: separates status emulation, value change and structural rationalisation. Limitation: processes can coexist and their pace varies.

- E2 - Two-way culture. Claim: continuity is adaptive, not static. Evidence: Robert Redfield/McKim Marriott's Great Tradition-Little Tradition and universalisation/parochialisation. Significance: supplies a mechanism for the 2021 continuity demand. Limitation: use a specific case cautiously; not every local practice follows the pattern.

- E3 - Social boundary. Claim: cryptocurrency has a social as well as financial effect. Evidence: the ledger's 2021 cross-cut with Economy/basic/24_Services-Digital-Economy-Fintech-and-Platform-Markets. Significance: permits access/trust/fraud/inequality analysis. Limitation: do not supply an exchange rate, legal claim, environmental estimate or adoption statistic from memory.

- E4 - Consumption change. Claim: food practices respond to time and market systems.

Evidence: 2025 fast-food demand, read through urban time constraints, delivery, aspiration and health concern. Significance: connects an unfamiliar lifestyle question to social-change mechanisms. Limitation: Topic 11 owns globalisation-specific detail.

13.5 Balance bank and verdict scaffolds

- ANALYSIS: Reject both "all tradition is oppressive" and "all inherited practice is beyond reasoned criticism."
- ANALYSIS: Keep secularisation (sociological process) distinct from secularism (doctrine).
- ANALYSIS: Do not let a cross-owner instrument become a source of fabricated technical facts.
- Verdict: "Indian social change is most intelligible as selective adaptation: inherited forms persist, are contested and are repurposed through distinct status, value and institutional processes."

13.6 Direct Mains demands this Core file must answer alone

Year · Paper · Q	Demand	Core route
2020 · GS-I · Q19	Customs/traditions, reason and obscurantism	Section 13.1-13.3, T2
2021 · GS-I · Q19	Cryptocurrency and society	Section 13.1, T3/E3
2021 · GS-I · Q20	Continuity amid social change	Section 13.3, T1/E1-E2
2025 · GS-I · Q18	Fast-food growth amid health concerns	Section 13.1, E4

Routing correction: Core routing supersedes old advanced/12 pointers; the Economy owner remains mandatory only for financial-instrument facts, not social analysis.

Recent PYQ Integration (2024-2025)

Status: 2024-2025 question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-MAINS-GS1-GS2-ESSAY-2024-2025.md.

- Years represented: 2025
- Paper(s): GS-I
- Routed question demands: 1

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2025	GS-I	18	Growth of fast-food industries amid rising health concerns	Illustrate · 15 marks · 250 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.

What this owner must now support

- Growth of fast-food industries amid rising health concerns

This block integrates the 2024-2025 examinable demand and paper metadata. It is kept separate from the 2018-2023 block and does not convert an unkeyed/answer-free objective question into a solved answer.

Semantic-completeness ownership and PYQ control

- Official syllabus/index and owned core: social change concerns alteration in institutions, relations, norms, roles and identities; modernisation is one structural process within it. Sanskritisation, Westernisation, secularisation, democratisation, education, migration, technology, law, markets and movements operate at different levels and speeds.
- Indispensable sociology: M.N. Srinivas's Sanskritisation and Westernisation, Yogendra Singh's modernisation of Indian tradition, structural-functional and conflict explanations, Redfield's Great/Little Tradition and Marriott's universalisation/parochialisation are bounded lenses, not a unilinear tradition-to-modernity ladder.

- Conceptual distinctions: modernisation is not westernisation;

Sanskritisation can change status claims without abolishing hierarchy; secularisation as institutional differentiation is not constitutional secularism or necessary decline of belief; mobility is not structural transformation; enactment is not normative or behavioural change.

- Mechanism, continuity and intersectionality: education, urban work, communications, law and movements redistribute resources and expectations, but kinship, ritual, language and local institutions adapt and reproduce continuity. Effects differ by caste, class, gender, tribe, religion, region, generation and rural-urban location; resistance and unintended effects are part of change, not evidence of social stasis.

- Data/source control: NEP 2020 remains an official policy context for education and institutional change, but policy text proves neither equal access nor social mobility. No cryptocurrency price/legal status, village prevalence, adoption rate or causal outcome is asserted from a technology label.

- Four-ledger hostile audit: literal syllabus, prerequisites, textbook taxonomy and PYQs were checked for theories, levels, chronology, continuity, feedback, regional pathways, anti-teleology controls and evidence limits.

- Verified PYQ ownership, 2018-2026: direct routes cover customs and obscurantism in 2020, traditional-value continuity in 2021 and fast-food growth amid health concern in 2025; the 2021 cryptocurrency demand is cross-owned with Economy/Science and Technology. No unavailable 2026 demand or unsupported modernization indicator is invented.

INDIAN SOCIETY DEEP-REVIEW CORE CONTROL

- Must remember: Social change alters institutions, relations, norms and identities through Sanskritisation, westernisation, secularisation, modernisation, democratisation, education, technology, migration, social movements and state action; continuity and change coexist at different speeds.
- Close distinction: Modernisation is not westernisation, secularisation is not necessarily declining belief, Sanskritisation is not structural equality, mobility is not transformation of the hierarchy, and legal reform is not identical to normative or behavioural change.
- Evidence / interpretation limit: Use M.N. Srinivas and Yogendra Singh as bounded analytical frameworks, alongside education, media, urban and movement examples; avoid linear tradition-to-modernity teleology and identify feedback, resistance, regional paths and unintended effects.

BASIC MCQS / REMEDIATION

Q1. Which statement correctly identifies Social change as a multi-theory question?

A. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. B. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. C. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. D. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.

Answer: A. Explanation: This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q2. Which chronology card should be filed under Social change as a multi-theory question?

A. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. B. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. C. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. D. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.

Answer: B. Explanation: This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q3. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Social change as a multi-theory question?

A. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. B. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. C. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. D. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.

Answer: C. Explanation: This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q4. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Social change as a multi-theory question?

A. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. B. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. C. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. D. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.

Answer: D. Explanation: This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q5. Which statement correctly identifies Structural-functionalism?

A. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. B. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. C. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. D. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.

Answer: A. Explanation: Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q6. Which chronology card should be filed under Structural-functionalism?

A. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. B. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. C. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. D. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form.

Answer: B. Explanation: Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q7. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Structural-functionalism?

A. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. B. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. C. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. D. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic.

Answer: C. Explanation: Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. The remaining options belong to different

Q8. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Structural-functionalism?

A. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. B. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. C. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. D. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.

Answer: D. Explanation: Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q9. Which statement correctly identifies Conflict theory?

A. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. B. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. C. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. D. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies.

Answer: A. Explanation: Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q10. Which chronology card should be filed under Conflict theory?

A. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. B. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. C. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. D. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form.

Answer: B. Explanation: Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q11. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Conflict theory?

A. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. B. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. C. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. D. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.

Answer: C. Explanation: Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q12. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Conflict theory?

A. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. B. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. C. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. D. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.

Answer: D. Explanation: Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q13. Which statement correctly identifies Choosing the better-supported reading?

A. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. B. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. C. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. D. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.

Answer: A. Explanation: The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q14. Which chronology card should be filed under Choosing the better-supported reading?

A. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. B. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. C. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. D. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.

Answer: B. Explanation: The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q15. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Choosing the better-supported reading?

A. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. B. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. C. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. D. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy.

Answer: C. Explanation: The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q16. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Choosing the better-supported reading?

A. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. B. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. C. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. D. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies.

Answer: D. Explanation: The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q17. Which statement correctly identifies Evolutionary and cyclical accounts?

A. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. B. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. C. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. D. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic.

Answer: A. Explanation: Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q18. Which chronology card should be filed under Evolutionary and cyclical accounts?

A. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. B. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. C. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. D. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

Answer: B. Explanation: Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q19. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Evolutionary and cyclical accounts?

A. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. B. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. C. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. D. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error.

Answer: C. Explanation: Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q20. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Evolutionary and cyclical accounts?

A. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. B. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. C. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. D. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form.

Answer: D. Explanation: Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q21. Which statement correctly identifies Diffusionist explanation?

A. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. B. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. C. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. D. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

Answer: A. Explanation: A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q22. Which chronology card should be filed under Diffusionist explanation?

A. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. B. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. C. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. D. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

Answer: B. Explanation: A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q23. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Diffusionist explanation?

A. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. B. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. C. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. D. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

Answer: C. Explanation: A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q24. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Diffusionist explanation?

A. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. B. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. C. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. D. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.

Answer: D. Explanation: A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q25. Which statement correctly identifies Sanskritisation?

A. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. B. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. C. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. D. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

Answer: A. Explanation: Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q26. Which chronology card should be filed under Sanskritisation?

A. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. B. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. C. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. D. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change.

Answer: B. Explanation: Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q27. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Sanskritisation?

A. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. B. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. C. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. D. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.

Answer: C. Explanation: Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q28. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Sanskritisation?

A. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. B. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. C. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. D. Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic.

Answer: D. Explanation: Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q29. Which statement correctly identifies Westernisation?

A. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. B. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. C. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. D. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

Answer: A. Explanation: Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q30. Which chronology card should be filed under Westernisation?

A. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. B. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. C. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. D. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error.

Answer: B. Explanation: Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q31. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Westernisation?

A. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. B. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. C. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. D. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change.

Answer: C. Explanation: Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q32. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Westernisation?

A. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. B. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. C. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. D. Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy.

Answer: D. Explanation: Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q33. Which statement correctly identifies Modernisation?

A. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. B. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. C. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. D. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.

Answer: A. Explanation: Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q34. Which chronology card should be filed under Modernisation?

A. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. B. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. C. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. D. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.

Answer: B. Explanation: Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q35. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Modernisation?

A. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. B. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. C. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. D. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.

Answer: C. Explanation: Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q36. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Modernisation?

A. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. B. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. C. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. D. Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

Answer: D. Explanation: Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q37. Which statement correctly identifies Three axes, not one scale?

A. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. B. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. C. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. D. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change.

Answer: A. Explanation: Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q38. Which chronology card should be filed under Three axes, not one scale?

A. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. B. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. C. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. D. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk.

Answer: B. Explanation: Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q39. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Three axes, not one scale?

A. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. B. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. C. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. D. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism.

Answer: C. Explanation: Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q40. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Three axes, not one scale?

A. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. B. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. C. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. D. Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error.

Answer: D. Explanation: Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q41. Which statement correctly identifies Status inconsistency as a change engine?

A. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. B. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. C. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. D. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.

Answer: A. Explanation: Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q42. Which chronology card should be filed under Status inconsistency as a change engine?

A. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. B. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. C. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. D. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk.

Answer: B. Explanation: Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q43. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Status inconsistency as a change engine?

A. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. B. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. C. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. D. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.

Answer: C. Explanation: Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q44. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Status inconsistency as a change engine?

A. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. B. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. C. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. D. Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change.

Answer: D. Explanation: Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q45. Which statement correctly identifies Great Tradition and Little Tradition?

A. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. B. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. C. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. D. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.

Answer: A. Explanation: Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q46. Which chronology card should be filed under Great Tradition and Little Tradition?

A. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. B. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. C. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. D. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.

Answer: B. Explanation: Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q47. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Great Tradition and Little Tradition?

A. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. B. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. C. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. D. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.

Answer: C. Explanation: Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q48. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Great Tradition and Little Tradition?

A. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. B. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. C. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. D. Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.

Answer: D. Explanation: Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q49. Which statement correctly identifies Universalisation?

A. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. B. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. C. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. D. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.

Answer: A. Explanation: Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q50. Which chronology card should be filed under Universalisation?

A. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. B. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. C. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. D. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism.

Answer: B. Explanation: Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q51. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Universalisation?

A. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. B. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. C. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. D. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.

Answer: C. Explanation: Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q52. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Universalisation?

A. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. B. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. C. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. D. Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk.

Answer: D. Explanation: Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q53. Which statement correctly identifies Parochialisation?

A. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. B. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. C. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. D. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism.

Answer: A. Explanation: Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q54. Which chronology card should be filed under Parochialisation?

A. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. B. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. C. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. D. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.

Answer: B. Explanation: Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q55. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Parochialisation?

A. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. B. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. C. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. D. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law.

Answer: C. Explanation: Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q56. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Parochialisation?

A. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. B. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. C. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. D. Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.

Answer: D. Explanation: Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q57. Which statement correctly identifies Secularisation as a sociological process?

A. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. B. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. C. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. D. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational.

Answer: A. Explanation: Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q58. Which chronology card should be filed under Secularisation as a sociological process?

A. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. B. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. C. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. D. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational.

Answer: B. Explanation: Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q59. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Secularisation as a sociological process?

A. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. B. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. C. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. D. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational.

Answer: C. Explanation: Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q60. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Secularisation as a sociological process?

A. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. B. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. C. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. D. Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism.

Answer: D. Explanation: Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q61. Which statement correctly identifies Secularisation, secularism and desecralisation?

A. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desecralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. B. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. C. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. D. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law.

Answer: A. Explanation: Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q62. Which chronology card should be filed under Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation?

A. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. B. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. C. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. D. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion.

Answer: B. Explanation: Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q63. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation?

A. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. B. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. C. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. D. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.

Answer: C. Explanation: Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q64. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation?

A. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. B. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. C. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. D. Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.

Answer: D. Explanation: Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q65. Which statement correctly identifies Continuity alongside change?

A. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. B. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. C. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. D. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion.

Answer: A. Explanation: Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q66. Which chronology card should be filed under Continuity alongside change?

A. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. B. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. C. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. D. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology.

Answer: B. Explanation: Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q67. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Continuity alongside change?

A. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. B. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. C. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. D. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion.

Answer: C. Explanation: Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q68. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Continuity alongside change?

A. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. B. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. C. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. D. Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law.

Answer: D. Explanation: Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q69. Which statement correctly identifies Custom, reason and obscurantism?

A. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. B. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. C. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. D. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology.

Answer: A. Explanation: A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q70. Which chronology card should be filed under Custom, reason and obscurantism?

A. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. B. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. C. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. D. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.

Answer: B. Explanation: A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q71. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Custom, reason and obscurantism?

A. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. B. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. C. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. D. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.

Answer: C. Explanation: A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q72. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Custom, reason and obscurantism?

A. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. B. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. C. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. D. A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational.

Answer: D. Explanation: A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q73. Which statement correctly identifies Technology as a social-change question?

A. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. B. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. C. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. D. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.

Answer: A. Explanation: A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q74. Which chronology card should be filed under Technology as a social-change question?

A. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. B. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. C. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. D. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.

Answer: B. Explanation: A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q75. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Technology as a social-change question?

A. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. B. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. C. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. D. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.

Answer: C. Explanation: A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q76. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Technology as a social-change question?

A. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. B. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. C. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. D. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology.

Answer: D. Explanation: A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q77. Which statement correctly identifies Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict?

A. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. B. This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. C. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. D. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.

Answer: A. Explanation: Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q78. Which chronology card should be filed under Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict?

A. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. B. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. C. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. D. Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.

Answer: B. Explanation: Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q79. Which option preserves the source-bounded meaning of Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict?

A. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. B. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. C. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. D. Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.

Answer: C. Explanation: Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

Q80. Which statement avoids a close-option trap about Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict?

A. Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. B. A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. C. The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. D. Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion.

Answer: D. Explanation: Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. The remaining options belong to different chronology, actor or analytical categories.

PYQS AND ANSWER PRACTICE

VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT

Four direct General Studies Paper-I Mains demands are routed to this topic and each is recorded with its exact routing status. The 2020 Q19 demand on whether customs and traditions suppress reason leading to obscurantism and the 2021 Q20 demand on the continuity of traditional social values amid social change are routed in the audited 2018-2023 Mains ledger to the Advanced owner, while the Core owner's own answer-architecture table records that Core routing supersedes those pointers, so both are answered here from the Basic spine. The 2021 Q19 cryptocurrency demand is recorded in the same ledger as cross-cutting: the instrument route terminates in the answer-complete Economy digital-economy owner while this owner is retained as the society-effect owner, so the answer below is written strictly on the society layer and asserts no price, legal status or adoption figure. The locally held official question papers for 2020 and 2021 are scanned images from which reliable English text cannot be extracted, so the audited ledger's neutral demand rendering is used for those two years and no verbatim wording is claimed. The 2025 Q18 demand on the growth of fast-food industries amid rising health concerns is routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner and its wording was confirmed in the locally held official 2025 General Studies Paper-I; the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims that demand, and this cross-owner conflict is stated openly rather than resolved by an unsupported analytical claim. No marking scheme, official key or model answer of the Union Public Service Commission is held locally, and none is reproduced or inferred.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: The answer must resolve the sociological demand in "VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT".

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Define the central concept and separate it from the nearest social or legal category. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

2. Claim and named evidence: Trace the historical and institutional setting instead of assuming a timeless practice. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
3. Claim and named evidence: Explain the norm, incentive, network, power or agency mechanism producing the outcome. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
4. Claim and named evidence: Use one named Indian community, movement, region, institution or source-dated dataset. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
5. Claim and named evidence: Qualify the pattern through intersectionality, regional variation, causation and implementation limits. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: The answer must resolve the sociological demand in "VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT".

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 15-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise five points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "VERIFIED PYQ OWNERSHIP AUDIT", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

OWNER PYQ LEDGER EXTRACTS

9. PYQ application

- ANALYSIS: No direct 2024/2025 GS-I Mains PYQ targets this topic specifically; when a social-change-theory question does appear, anchor the answer in the Sanskritisation-Westernisation-Modernisation triad and the Great Tradition-Little Tradition framework, which remain the syllabus's core testable content here.

Recent PYQ Integration (2024-2025)

Status: 2024-2025 question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-MAINS-GS1-GS2-ESSAY-2024-2025.md.

- Years represented: 2025
- Paper(s): GS-I
- Routed question demands: 1

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2025	GS-I	18	Growth of fast-food industries amid rising health concerns	Illustrate · 15 marks · 250 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.

What this owner must now support

- Growth of fast-food industries amid rising health concerns

This block integrates the 2024-2025 examinable demand and paper metadata. It is kept separate from the 2018-2023 block and does not convert an unkeyed/answer-free objective question into a solved answer.

10. PYQ-based analytical application

- ANALYSIS: No direct 2024/2025 GS-I Mains PYQ targets social-change theory as a standalone question; this is stated honestly. When such a question does appear (a recurring older-pattern theme), the expected analytical route is: select the appropriate macro- theory (structural-functional or conflict) for the specific change episode cited, apply the Sanskritisation-Westernisation-Modernisation triad with axis-specific precision, and, where cultural transmission is at issue, apply universalisation/parochialisation rather than a simple elite-imposition model.

Historical PYQ Integration (2018-2023)

Status: Question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-MAINS-GS1-GS2-ESSAY-2018-2023.md.

- Years represented: 2020, 2021
- Paper(s): GS-I
- Routed question demands: 3

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2020	GS-I	19	Customs and traditions suppressing reason and obscurantism	Do you agree · 15 marks · 250 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2021	GS-I	19	Cryptocurrency and its effect on global and Indian society	What is and How does it affect · 15 marks · 250 words	Cross-cutting; Economy instrument route terminates in answer-complete Core; society-effect owner retained	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2021	GS-I	20	Continuity of traditional social values amid social change	Enumerate · 15 marks · 250 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.

What this owner must now support

- Customs and traditions suppressing reason and obscurantism
- Cryptocurrency and its effect on global and Indian society
- Continuity of traditional social values amid social change

The table integrates the examinable demand and paper metadata. It does not turn an unkeyed objective question into a solved answer, and it does not claim that lexical presence alone proves full conceptual sufficiency.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2020 GS-I Q19

Demand: Audited ledger demand rendering: customs and traditions suppressing reason and leading to obscurantism. Do you agree, 15 marks, 250 words.

Status: Routed in the audited 2018-2023 Mains ledger to the Advanced owner, with the Core owner recording that Core routing supersedes. The locally held official 2020 paper is a scanned image without reliable English text extraction, so the ledger rendering is used and no verbatim wording is claimed.

Model solution: Refuse the blanket proposition and replace it with a test, because a do-you-agree directive on this subject is lost either by wholesale defence of custom or by wholesale condemnation of it. State the premise correction first: a custom is not irrational merely because it is old, since custom also transmits socialisation, memory and belonging, and this is exactly the persistence mechanism the continuity literature identifies. Then supply the test that earns the marks. A practice becomes obscurantist in its effect when a particular application blocks inquiry, blocks equal agency or blocks evidence-based choice, so the analysis attaches to the application and the mechanism, never to a community. Show the mechanism working through the vocabulary this owner owns. Sanskritisation demonstrates that ritual practice can be adopted to claim status within an unchanged hierarchy, which is precisely how a practice can be reproduced for reasons that have nothing to do with belief in its content; Westernisation demonstrates that contact with education, law and institutions introduces equality, individual rights and rationality as competing values; and modernisation demonstrates that rational-legal institutions and differentiated occupational roles change the structure in which the practice sits. Name the change mechanisms the directive expects. Formal education and codified law are the institutional channels through which structural modernisation is transmitted across generations, and internal dissent within a community is the mechanism that distinguishes reform from external imposition. Add the two-way cultural qualification so the answer is not a modernisation sermon. Universalisation carries local practice upward into pan-Indian recognition and parochialisation adapts pan-Indian practice to local form, so cultural change in India is negotiated rather than replaced, and reform that ignores this is usually rejected. Conclude that customs neither uniformly suppress reason nor are immune from it, that the defensible position is application-specific and evidence-led, and that no community may be characterised as inherently irrational in an answer of this kind.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2020 GS-I Q19", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Refuse the blanket proposition and replace it with a test, because a do-you-agree directive on this subject is lost either by wholesale defence of custom or by wholesale condemnation of it. State the premise correction first: a custom is not irrational merely because it is old, since custom also transmits socialisation, memory and belonging, and this is exactly the persistence mechanism the continuity literature identifies. Then supply the test that earns the marks. A practice becomes obscurantist in its effect when a particular application blocks inquiry, blocks equal agency or blocks evidence-based choice, so the analysis attaches to the application and the mechanism, never to a community. Show the mechanism working through the vocabulary this owner owns. Sanskritisation demonstrates that ritual practice can be adopted to claim status within an unchanged hierarchy, which is precisely how a practice can be reproduced for reasons that have nothing to do with belief in its content; Westernisation demonstrates that contact with education, law and institutions introduces equality, individual rights and rationality as competing values; and modernisation demonstrates that rational-legal institutions and differentiated occupational roles change the structure in which the practice sits. Name the change mechanisms the directive expects. Formal education and codified law are the institutional channels through which structural modernisation is transmitted across generations, and internal dissent within a community is the mechanism that distinguishes reform from external imposition. Add the two-way cultural qualification so the answer is not a modernisation sermon. Universalisation carries local practice upward into pan-Indian recognition and parochialisation adapts pan-Indian practice to local form, so cultural change in India is negotiated rather than replaced, and reform that ignores this is usually rejected. Conclude that customs neither uniformly suppress reason nor are immune from it, that the defensible position is application-specific and evidence-led, and that no community may be characterised as inherently irrational in an answer of this kind.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Demand: Audited ledger demand rendering: customs and traditions suppressing reason and leading to obscurantism. Do you agree, 15 marks, 250 words. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Refuse the blanket proposition and replace it with a test, because a do-you-agree directive on this subject is lost either by wholesale defence of custom or by wholesale condemnation of it. State the premise correction first: a custom is not irrational merely because it is old, since custom also transmits socialisation, memory and belonging, and this is exactly the persistence mechanism the continuity literature identifies. Then supply the test that earns the marks. A practice becomes obscurantist in its effect when a particular application blocks inquiry, blocks equal agency or blocks evidence-based choice, so the analysis attaches to the application and the mechanism, never to a community. Show the mechanism working through the vocabulary this owner owns. Sanskritisation demonstrates that ritual practice can be adopted to claim status within an unchanged hierarchy, which is precisely how a practice can be reproduced for reasons that have nothing to do with belief in its content; Westernisation demonstrates that contact with education, law and institutions introduces equality, individual rights and rationality as competing values; and modernisation demonstrates that rational-legal institutions and differentiated occupational roles change the structure in which the practice sits. Name the change mechanisms the directive expects. Formal education and codified law are the institutional channels through which structural modernisation is transmitted across generations, and internal dissent within a community is the mechanism that distinguishes reform from external imposition. Add the two-way cultural qualification so the answer is not a modernisation sermon. Universalisation carries local practice upward into pan-Indian recognition and parochialisation adapts pan-Indian practice to local form, so cultural change in India is negotiated rather than replaced, and reform that ignores this is usually rejected. Conclude that customs neither uniformly suppress reason nor are immune from it, that the defensible position is application-specific and evidence-led, and that no community may be characterised as inherently irrational in an answer of this kind.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 15-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise five points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 1 - 2020 GS-I Q19", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2021 GS-I Q19

Demand: Audited ledger demand rendering: cryptocurrency and its effect on global and Indian society. What is it and how does it affect society, 15 marks, 250 words.

Status: Recorded in the audited 2018-2023 Mains ledger as cross-cutting. The instrument route terminates in the answer-complete Economy digital-economy owner while this owner is retained as the society-effect owner, so the answer is written only on the society layer. The locally held official 2021 paper is a scanned image without reliable English text extraction, so the ledger rendering is used and no verbatim wording is claimed.

Model solution: Declare the division of labour in the opening line, because this demand is failed by borrowing facts that this owner does not hold. The instrument's definition in technical and monetary terms, its regulatory position and any market data belong to the Economy digital-economy owner and to Science and Technology, and this answer therefore asserts no price, no legal status and no adoption figure. Establish the society-layer principle. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, which means the same instrument can widen capability for one group and concentrate risk on another. Work the four society channels in order. Access first: participation in any platform-mediated instrument is stratified by the digital divide across income, gender, region and generation, so an apparently open technology reaches the already better positioned first. Trust second: where an instrument is not intermediated by familiar institutions, social trust is transferred to informal networks and intermediaries, which changes who bears the cost of a failure. Work and identity third: platform-mediated activity reorganises occupational roles and self-description, which is the differentiation that modernisation as structural change describes. Unequal risk fourth: households with thin buffers absorb a loss differently from households with deep ones, so the same nominal exposure is not the same social exposure. Locate the whole discussion in the theory this owner owns. Diffusionist explanation accounts for how such an instrument spreads across societies, while modernisation accounts for the structural shift it interacts with, and neither licenses a claim that the technology itself causes a social outcome. Conclude that the honest society-layer verdict is conditional: the social effect follows access, regulation and use, and any stronger claim requires the instrument evidence that this owner deliberately does not hold.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2021 GS-I Q19", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Declare the division of labour in the opening line, because this demand is failed by borrowing facts that this owner does not hold. The instrument's definition in technical and monetary terms, its regulatory position and any market data belong to the Economy digital-economy owner and to Science and Technology, and this answer therefore asserts no price, no legal status and no adoption figure. Establish the society-layer principle. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, which means the same instrument can widen capability for one group and concentrate risk on another. Work the four society channels in order. Access first: participation in any platform-mediated instrument is stratified by the digital divide across income, gender, region and generation, so an apparently open technology reaches the already better positioned first. Trust second: where an instrument is not intermediated by familiar institutions, social trust is transferred to informal networks and intermediaries, which changes who bears the cost of a failure. Work and identity third: platform-mediated activity reorganises occupational roles and self-description, which is the differentiation that modernisation as structural change describes. Unequal risk fourth: households with thin buffers absorb a loss differently from households with deep ones, so the same nominal exposure is not the same social exposure. Locate the whole discussion in the theory this owner owns. Diffusionist explanation accounts for how such an instrument spreads across societies, while modernisation accounts for the structural shift it interacts with, and neither licenses a claim that the technology itself causes a social outcome. Conclude that the honest society-layer verdict is conditional: the social effect follows access, regulation and use, and any stronger claim requires the instrument evidence that this owner deliberately does not hold.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Demand: Audited ledger demand rendering: cryptocurrency and its effect on global and Indian society. What is it and how does it affect society, 15 marks, 250 words. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Declare the division of labour in the opening line, because this demand is failed by borrowing facts that this owner does not hold. The instrument's definition in technical and monetary terms, its regulatory position and any market data belong to the Economy digital-economy owner and to Science and Technology, and this answer therefore asserts no price, no legal status and no adoption figure. Establish the society-layer principle. A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, which means the same instrument can widen capability for one group and concentrate risk on another. Work the four society channels in order. Access first: participation in any platform-mediated instrument is stratified by the digital divide across income, gender, region and generation, so an apparently open technology reaches the already better positioned first. Trust second: where an instrument is not intermediated by familiar institutions, social trust is transferred to informal networks and intermediaries, which changes who bears the cost of a failure. Work and identity third: platform-mediated activity reorganises occupational roles and self-description, which is the differentiation that modernisation as structural change describes. Unequal risk fourth: households with thin buffers absorb a loss differently from households with deep ones, so the same nominal exposure is not the same social exposure. Locate the whole discussion in the theory this owner owns. Diffusionist explanation accounts for how such an instrument spreads across societies, while modernisation accounts for the structural shift it interacts with, and neither licenses a claim that the technology itself causes a social outcome. Conclude that the honest society-layer verdict is conditional: the social effect follows access, regulation and use, and any stronger claim requires the instrument evidence that this owner deliberately does not hold.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 15-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise five points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 2 - 2021 GS-I Q19", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2021 GS-I Q20

Demand: Audited ledger demand rendering: continuity of traditional social values amid social change. Enumerate, 15 marks, 250 words.

Status: Routed in the audited 2018-2023 Mains ledger to the Advanced owner, with the Core owner recording that Core routing supersedes. The locally held official 2021 paper is a scanned image without reliable English text extraction, so the ledger rendering is used and no verbatim wording is claimed.

Model solution: Treat the enumerate directive literally and give the examiner a numbered mechanism list, but pair each mechanism with the change pressure it is resisting, because a list of unchanged customs without that pairing is the standard low-scoring answer. Mechanism one is family and kin socialisation, which transmits value, obligation and role expectation across generations; the parallel pressure is migration and education, which move members out of daily supervision and into new normative environments. Mechanism two is ritual and festival life, which renews shared meaning at fixed intervals and keeps practice collective rather than private; the parallel pressure is media and market, which commercialise and standardise some of that practice. Mechanism three is language and regional culture, which carry idiom, memory and local identity; the parallel pressure is standardisation through schooling, administration and national media. Mechanism four is adaptation itself, described in this owner as universalisation, by which a local deity, festival or practice rises into pan-Indian recognition, and parochialisation, by which a pan-Indian textual practice is adapted, simplified or reinterpreted into local form; the parallel pressure is codified law, which converts some customary expectations into formal entitlement. Add the analytical point that lifts the list into an argument. Continuity in India is not the absence of change but a negotiated outcome, because the same institutions that transmit tradition are also the institutions through which Westernisation and modernisation arrive, and a group can accordingly modernise structurally through education and salaried employment while retaining ritual practice. Attach the theory qualification. Structural-functionalism reads this persistence as institutions renegotiating function, while conflict theory reads it as contested ground in which subordinate groups also use tradition to press claims, and the evidence in a given case decides between them. Conclude that traditional values persist because they are actively reproduced and adapted, so continuity and change are simultaneous rather than sequential.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2021 GS-I Q20", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Treat the enumerate directive literally and give the examiner a numbered mechanism list, but pair each mechanism with the change pressure it is resisting, because a list of unchanged customs without that pairing is the standard low-scoring answer. Mechanism one is family and kin socialisation, which transmits value, obligation and role expectation across generations; the parallel pressure is migration and education, which move members out of daily supervision and into new normative environments. Mechanism two is ritual and festival life, which renews shared meaning at fixed intervals and keeps practice collective rather than private; the parallel pressure is media and market, which commercialise and standardise some of that practice. Mechanism three is language and regional culture, which carry idiom, memory and local identity; the parallel pressure is standardisation through schooling, administration and national media. Mechanism four is adaptation itself, described in this owner as universalisation, by which a local deity, festival or practice rises into pan-Indian recognition, and parochialisation, by which a pan-Indian textual practice is adapted, simplified or reinterpreted into local form; the parallel pressure is codified law, which converts some customary expectations into formal entitlement. Add the analytical point that lifts the list into an argument. Continuity in India is not the absence of change but a negotiated outcome, because the same institutions that transmit tradition are also the institutions through which Westernisation and modernisation arrive, and a group can accordingly modernise structurally through education and salaried employment while retaining ritual practice. Attach the theory qualification. Structural-functionalism reads this persistence as institutions renegotiating function, while conflict theory reads it as contested ground in which subordinate groups also use tradition to press claims, and the evidence in a given case decides between them. Conclude that traditional values persist because they are actively reproduced and adapted, so continuity and change are simultaneous rather than sequential.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Demand: Audited ledger demand rendering: continuity of traditional social values amid social change. Enumerate, 15 marks, 250 words. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication.

Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Treat the enumerate directive literally and give the examiner a numbered mechanism list, but pair each mechanism with the change pressure it is resisting, because a list of unchanged customs without that pairing is the standard low-scoring answer. Mechanism one is family and kin socialisation, which transmits value, obligation and role expectation across generations; the parallel pressure is migration and education, which move members out of daily supervision and into new normative environments. Mechanism two is ritual and festival life, which renews shared meaning at fixed intervals and keeps practice collective rather than private; the parallel pressure is media and market, which commercialise and standardise some of that practice. Mechanism three is language and regional culture, which carry idiom, memory and local identity; the parallel pressure is standardisation through schooling, administration and national media. Mechanism four is adaptation itself, described in this owner as universalisation, by which a local deity, festival or practice rises into pan-Indian recognition, and parochialisation, by which a pan-Indian textual practice is adapted, simplified or reinterpreted into local form; the parallel pressure is codified law, which converts some customary expectations into formal entitlement. Add the analytical point that lifts the list into an argument. Continuity in India is not the absence of change but a negotiated outcome, because the same institutions that transmit tradition are also the institutions through which Westernisation and modernisation arrive, and a group can accordingly modernise structurally through education and salaried employment while retaining ritual practice. Attach the theory qualification. Structural-functionalism reads this persistence as institutions renegotiating function, while conflict theory reads it as contested ground in which subordinate groups also use tradition to press claims, and the evidence in a given case decides between them. Conclude that traditional values persist because they are actively reproduced and adapted, so continuity and change are simultaneous rather than sequential.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 15-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise five points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 3 - 2021 GS-I Q20", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2025 GS-I Q18

Demand: How do you account for the growing fast food industries given that there are increased health concerns in modern society? Illustrate your answer with the Indian experience. (Answer in 250 words) 15 marks.

Status: Wording confirmed in the locally held official 2025 General Studies Paper-I. Routed in the audited 2024-2025 Mains ledger to this Basic owner. The Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims this demand, and that cross-owner conflict is stated openly here rather than resolved by assertion.

Model solution: Name the paradox exactly before explaining it, because the demand supplies the tension and expects it to be taken seriously rather than dissolved: health concern is genuinely rising and the fast-food industry is genuinely growing, and an answer that denies either half has not begun. Account for the growth through mechanisms rather than through a single cause. The first mechanism is time. Dual-income urban households face real constraints on home cooking, so convenience acquires a practical value that has nothing to do with a view about nutrition. The second mechanism is price and delivery. Platform logistics lower the effective cost of convenience and extend it beyond the household's immediate neighbourhood, which converts an occasional choice into a routine one. The third mechanism is aspiration. Branded consumption operates as a marker of urban modern identity, and this is cultural consumerism, the symbolic status meaning attached to consumption, working independently of the structural expansion of purchasing capacity. The fourth mechanism is adaptation. Glocalisation, the adaptation of global products to local tastes and norms, lowers the cultural barrier to adoption through locally customised menus, which widens the addressable market beyond what an unmodified global menu could reach. Illustrate with the Indian experience honestly. The Indian case is not only a story about global chains, because domestic chains and food-delivery ecosystems carry much of the growth, so attributing the whole trend to globalisation misreads the market. Offer one behavioural lens and bound it. Bounded rationality explains how convenience, present-oriented choice and status motives can outweigh long-run health considerations in an actual purchase, but it is a lens rather than proof that one motive dominates every purchase. Conclude that the paradox is a structural trade-off between time-poverty-driven convenience and long-run public-health outcomes, not an awareness gap that better messaging alone would close, and quote no consumption or market figure that this owner does not hold.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2025 GS-I Q18", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Name the paradox exactly before explaining it, because the demand supplies the tension and expects it to be taken seriously rather than dissolved: health concern is genuinely rising and the fast-food industry is genuinely growing, and an answer that denies either half has not begun. Account for the growth through mechanisms rather than through a single cause. The first mechanism is time. Dual-income urban households face real constraints on home cooking, so convenience acquires a practical value that has nothing to do with a view about nutrition. The second mechanism is price and delivery. Platform logistics lower the effective cost of convenience and extend it beyond the household's immediate neighbourhood, which converts an occasional choice into a routine one. The third mechanism is aspiration. Branded consumption operates as a marker of urban modern identity, and this is cultural consumerism, the symbolic status meaning attached to consumption, working independently of the structural expansion of purchasing capacity. The fourth mechanism is adaptation. Glocalisation, the adaptation of global products to local tastes and norms, lowers the cultural barrier to adoption through locally customised menus, which widens the addressable market beyond what an unmodified global menu could reach. Illustrate with the Indian experience honestly. The Indian case is not only a story about global chains, because domestic chains and food-delivery ecosystems carry much of the growth, so attributing the whole trend to globalisation misreads the market. Offer one behavioural lens and bound it. Bounded rationality explains how convenience, present-oriented choice and status motives can outweigh long-run health considerations in an actual purchase, but it is a lens rather than proof that one motive dominates every purchase. Conclude that the paradox is a structural trade-off between time-poverty-driven convenience and long-run public-health outcomes, not an awareness gap that better messaging alone would close, and quote no consumption or market figure that this owner does not hold.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Demand: How do you account for the growing fast food industries given that there are increased health concerns in modern society? Illustrate your answer with the Indian experience. (Answer in 250 words) 15 marks. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Name the paradox exactly before explaining it, because the demand supplies the tension and expects it to be taken seriously rather than dissolved: health concern is genuinely rising and the fast-food industry is genuinely growing, and an answer that denies either half has not begun. Account for the growth through mechanisms rather than through a single cause. The first mechanism is time. Dual-income urban households face real constraints on home cooking, so convenience acquires a practical value that has nothing to do with a view about nutrition. The second mechanism is price and delivery. Platform logistics lower the effective cost of convenience and extend it beyond the household's immediate neighbourhood, which converts an occasional choice into a routine one. The third mechanism is aspiration. Branded consumption operates as a marker of urban modern identity, and this is cultural consumerism, the symbolic status meaning attached to consumption, working independently of the structural expansion of purchasing capacity. The fourth mechanism is adaptation. Glocalisation, the adaptation of global products to local tastes and norms, lowers the cultural barrier to adoption through locally customised menus, which widens the addressable market beyond what an unmodified global menu could reach. Illustrate with the Indian experience honestly. The Indian case is not only a story about global chains, because domestic chains and food-delivery ecosystems carry much of the growth, so attributing the whole trend to globalisation misreads the market. Offer one behavioural lens and bound it. Bounded rationality explains how convenience, present-oriented choice and status motives can outweigh long-run health considerations in an actual purchase, but it is a lens rather than proof that one motive dominates every purchase. Conclude that the paradox is a structural trade-off between time-poverty-driven convenience and long-run public-health outcomes, not an awareness gap that better messaging alone would close, and quote no consumption or market figure that this owner does not hold.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 15-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise five points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "PYQ DEMAND CARD 4 - 2025 GS-I Q18", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

ORIGINAL MAINS 1 - 10 MARKS

Question: Distinguish Sanskritisation, Westernisation and modernisation as three axes of social change. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: The three concepts move on the separate axes of status, values and structure, so they can advance at different speeds inside the same community and may never be arranged as stages of one ladder.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic.
- Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy.
- Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.

- Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error.

Qualified conclusion: The three concepts move on the separate axes of status, values and structure, so they can advance at different speeds inside the same community and may never be arranged as stages of one ladder.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "Distinguish Sanskritisation, Westernisation and modernisation as three axes of social change....", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: The three concepts move on the separate axes of status, values and structure, so they can advance at different speeds inside the same community and may never be arranged as stages of one ladder.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
2. Claim and named evidence: Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
3. Claim and named evidence: Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
4. Claim and named evidence: Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: The three concepts move on the separate axes of status, values and structure, so they can advance at different speeds inside the same community and may never be arranged as stages of one ladder.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 10-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise three points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "Distinguish Sanskritisation, Westernisation and modernisation as three axes of social change....", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

ORIGINAL MAINS 2 - 10 MARKS

Question: Distinguish secularisation as a sociological process from secularism as a constitutional doctrine. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: Secularisation is an institutional description that can coexist with intense religious identity while secularism is a normative doctrine about the state, and only the first belongs to a society answer.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism.
- Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.
- This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.

Qualified conclusion: Secularisation is an institutional description that can coexist with intense religious identity while secularism is a normative doctrine about the state, and only the first belongs to a society answer.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "Distinguish secularisation as a sociological process from secularism as a constitutional...", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Secularisation is an institutional description that can coexist with intense religious identity while secularism is a normative doctrine about the state, and only the first belongs to a society answer.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
2. Claim and named evidence: Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
3. Claim and named evidence: This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Secularisation is an institutional description that can coexist with intense religious identity while secularism is a normative doctrine about the state, and only the first belongs to a society answer.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 10-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise three points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "Distinguish secularisation as a sociological process from secularism as a constitutional...", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

ORIGINAL MAINS 3 - 15 MARKS

Question: Examine the claim that structural-functional and conflict readings of the same social change are interchangeable. Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: The two lenses attribute the same outcome to different mechanisms, so an answer earns its marks by naming which mechanism the evidence supports rather than by reciting both and choosing neither.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.
- Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.
- The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies.
- Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form.

Qualified conclusion: The two lenses attribute the same outcome to different mechanisms, so an answer earns its marks by naming which mechanism the evidence supports rather than by reciting both and choosing neither.

Demand decoding: The directive examine requires a direct position on "Examine the claim that structural-functional and conflict readings of the same social change...", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: The two lenses attribute the same outcome to different mechanisms, so an answer earns its marks by naming which mechanism the evidence supports rather than by reciting both and choosing neither.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication.

Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

2. Claim and named evidence: Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
3. Claim and named evidence: The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
4. Claim and named evidence: Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: The two lenses attribute the same outcome to different mechanisms, so an answer earns its marks by naming which mechanism the evidence supports rather than by reciting both and choosing neither.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 15-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise five points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "Examine the claim that structural-functional and conflict readings of the same social change...", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

ORIGINAL MAINS 4 - 15 MARKS

Question: Examine the Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework as an account of two-way cultural change in India. Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: Universalisation and parochialisation run in opposite directions, which is why the framework refutes a purely top-down diffusion model of Indian cultural change.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.
- Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk.
- Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.

- A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.

Qualified conclusion: Universalisation and parochialisation run in opposite directions, which is why the framework refutes a purely top-down diffusion model of Indian cultural change.

Demand decoding: The directive examine requires a direct position on "Examine the Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework as an account of two-way cultural...", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Universalisation and parochialisation run in opposite directions, which is why the framework refutes a purely top-down diffusion model of Indian cultural change.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
2. Claim and named evidence: Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
3. Claim and named evidence: Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
4. Claim and named evidence: A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Universalisation and parochialisation run in opposite directions, which is why the framework refutes a purely top-down diffusion model of Indian cultural change.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 15-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise five points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "Examine the Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework as an account of two-way cultural...", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

ORIGINAL MAINS 5 - 20 MARKS

Question: Assess the mechanisms through which traditional values persist while Indian society changes. Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: Persistence is produced by identifiable mechanisms of socialisation, ritual, language and adaptation, each of which meets a named change pressure, so continuity is an active process rather than the absence of change.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law.
- Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change.
- Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error.
- A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational.

Qualified conclusion: Persistence is produced by identifiable mechanisms of socialisation, ritual, language and adaptation, each of which meets a named change pressure, so continuity is an active process rather than the absence of change.

Demand decoding: The directive assess requires a direct position on "Assess the mechanisms through which traditional values persist while Indian society changes....", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Persistence is produced by identifiable mechanisms of socialisation, ritual, language and adaptation, each of which meets a named change pressure, so continuity is an active process rather than the absence of change.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
2. Claim and named evidence: Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
3. Claim and named evidence: Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error. Analysis:

Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

4. Claim and named evidence: A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: Persistence is produced by identifiable mechanisms of socialisation, ritual, language and adaptation, each of which meets a named change pressure, so continuity is an active process rather than the absence of change.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 20-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise six to eight points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "Assess the mechanisms through which traditional values persist while Indian society changes....", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

ORIGINAL MAINS 6 - 20 MARKS

Question: Assess how a society answer should analyse a new technology's social effect without borrowing another owner's facts. Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: The society layer of access, trust, work, identity and unequal risk is fully answerable without asserting a price, a legal status or an adoption figure, and stating that boundary is itself part of the answer's quality.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology.
- This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.
- Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion.
- Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desecralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.

Qualified conclusion: The society layer of access, trust, work, identity and unequal risk is fully answerable without asserting a price, a legal status or an adoption figure, and stating that boundary is itself part of the answer's quality.

Demand decoding: The directive assess requires a direct position on "Assess how a society answer should analyse a new technology's social effect without borrowing...", all clauses, a sociological mechanism, historical trajectory, intersectional and regional variation, named Indian evidence, constitutional/institutional boundaries and a qualified conclusion.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: The society layer of access, trust, work, identity and unequal risk is fully answerable without asserting a price, a legal status or an adoption figure, and stating that boundary is itself part of the answer's quality.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
2. Claim and named evidence: This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
3. Claim and named evidence: Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.
4. Claim and named evidence: Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desecralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error. Analysis: Connect structure or institution -> norm/incentive/power/agency mechanism -> differentiated social outcome -> feedback or policy implication. Qualification: State internal group variation, regional/historical scope, correlation-versus-causation or legal-norm-versus-lived-outcome boundary.

Counter-position / limit: Neither a constitutional provision, one scheme, aggregate correlation nor a single community example establishes uniform implementation, causation or national experience; test institutions, power, agency, intersectionality, region, period and evidence status.

Qualified conclusion: The society layer of access, trust, work, identity and unequal risk is fully answerable without asserting a price, a legal status or an adoption figure, and stating that boundary is itself part of the answer's quality.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 20-mark answer, spend about one-sixth of the time decoding the directive and drawing the mechanism; define and state a thesis; organise six to eight points as claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification; compress examples before mechanisms and reserve the final minute for causation, group variation and legal-outcome limits.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, explains rather than lists, integrates India-centric evidence and avoids homogenisation, legalism and causal overclaim.

How to improve this answer: For "Assess how a society answer should analyse a new technology's social effect without borrowing...", replace the weakest generalisation with one named community, region, institution, movement or source-dated dataset and state what that evidence cannot establish.

OPTIONAL ADVANCED DEPTH - NOT REQUIRED FOR A CORE ANSWER

Subject: Indian Society | Tier: Advanced | GS Paper: GS-I. Core area: Theoretical comparison of social-change models, the causal architecture of universalisation-parochialisation, and the secularisation-versus-secularism boundary in depth. Grounded in: M.N. Srinivas; Robert Redfield and McKim Marriott; no dated current-affairs anchor required for this durable-theory topic. FACT: = source-grounded | ANALYSIS: = inference/analysis | CURRENT: = current anchor (not applicable here). Companion: basic/12_Social-Change-and-Modernisation.md.

1. Architecture

Analytical claim: ANALYSIS: A sophisticated answer on Indian social change must hold three distinctions simultaneously without collapsing them: (a) structural-functional and conflict theories offer genuinely different causal accounts of the same change episode, not interchangeable descriptions; (b) Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation operate on different axes (status, values, structure) and can proceed at different speeds within the same community; (c) universalisation and parochialisation are bidirectional, so elite culture does not simply flow downward onto folk culture unchanged.

2. Concepts and distinctions

Concept	Precise meaning
FACT: Structural-functionalism vs conflict theory applied to the same episode	The abolition of untouchability practices in a village could be read functionally (the system adapting to reduce disruptive tension and restore cohesion) or through conflict theory (the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation against entrenched upper-caste interests) - the same empirical change supports both readings, and a sophisticated answer states which mechanism the evidence better supports rather than asserting only one theory applies universally.
FACT: Sanskritisation vs Modernisation as distinct axes	Sanskritisation changes a group's position within an unchanged hierarchical logic; Modernisation changes the structure itself (bureaucratic-rational institutions, technology, differentiated occupational roles) - a group can modernise structurally (adopt formal education, salaried employment) without Sanskritising ritually, and vice versa, so the two must not be treated as points on a single scale.
ANALYSIS: Universalisation vs parochialisation as a two-way exchange, not elite imposition	A purely elite-imposition model would predict only downward (Great to Little Tradition) cultural flow; universalisation demonstrates the opposite direction is equally real - local deities, festivals and practices have historically been absorbed upward into pan-Indian textual recognition, making Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange, not one-directional diffusion.
FACT: Secularisation (social process) vs secularism (doctrine) vs desecralisation	Secularisation describes differentiation of religious authority from economic/political/social institutions, which can coexist with resilient or revived religious identity; secularism is the constitutional-political doctrine of state neutrality toward religion; desecralisation describes declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces. The three operate at institutional, legal-political and experiential-symbolic levels.
ANALYSIS: Evolutionary theory vs diffusionist explanation of change	Evolutionary theory (unilinear stages of progress) explains change as internally generated development; diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society/region to another (relevant to explaining, for instance, how Western-origin institutions entered Indian society) - modern sociology generally favours multi-linear, context-specific accounts over either pure theory alone.

3. Detailed causal chain

Sanskritisation-Westernisation-Modernisation interaction chain

1. A group gains new resources (education, migration income, market access).
2. ANALYSIS: It may respond by Sanskritising (adopting dominant-caste ritual to gain local status), by Westernising (adopting new values around individual rights and rationality), by modernising structurally (entering rational-legal institutions and technology-linked occupations), or by some combination - the response is not determined mechanically by the resource gain alone but by the group's specific social context and aspiration.
3. ANALYSIS: Where Westernisation and Modernisation advance while Sanskritisation lags, a group may gain new values and structural position without corresponding local ritual-status recognition - a source of status inconsistency that can itself generate further social change pressure.

Universalisation-parochialisation chain

1. A local, Little Tradition practice (a village deity, a folk ritual) gains wider recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or political patronage, becoming absorbed into the Great Tradition (universalisation).
2. Conversely, a pan-Indian, textually prescribed Great Tradition ritual is adapted, simplified or reinterpreted at the local level to fit regional resources, language and social structure (parochialisation).

3. ANALYSIS: Over successive cycles, this bidirectional exchange produces India's characteristically layered, regionally variable religious and cultural practice, rather than either a uniform pan-Indian culture or wholly separate local traditions.

Secularisation chain

1. Expansion of state education, salaried employment and formal legal institutions can differentiate contract enforcement, schooling and workplace rules from direct religious authority.

2. ANALYSIS: Religious identity and practice can remain, or even intensify, in personal and communal life while such institutional differentiation proceeds; neither direction is automatic or uniform.

3. ANALYSIS: This sociological secularisation process interacts with, but is analytically distinct from, the constitutional secularism doctrine that governs state-religion relations (Topic 15/Polity) - a frequent point of confusion in Mains answers.

4. Institutional and reform architecture

- ANALYSIS: Socio-religious reform movements as change catalysts (cross-linked): 19th-20th century reform movements accelerated Westernisation and, in some respects, modernisation by challenging ritual practices through new, often law-linked, institutional channels; full chronological treatment is Modern-Indian-History/basic/10's territory.

- ANALYSIS: Educational and legal institutions as modernisation engines: formal schooling and codified law are the primary institutional channels through which structural modernisation (as distinct from Sanskritisation or Westernisation) is transmitted across generations.

5. Indian applications and boundary cases

- ANALYSIS: Boundary case 1 - Modernisation without Sanskritisation: a family that gains formal education and salaried urban employment without adopting any new ritual practice illustrates structural modernisation proceeding independently of status emulation.

- ANALYSIS: Boundary case 2 - Sanskritisation without Modernisation: a jati adopting vegetarianism and dowry-marriage practice while remaining economically and occupationally unchanged illustrates ritual-status emulation without structural change.

- ANALYSIS: Boundary case 3 - universalisation and secularisation together: a regional folk deity's shrine becoming a recognised pilgrimage site drawing devotees nationally illustrates local practice absorbed into the Great Tradition, while an urban professional relying entirely on formal contract law and secular workplace rules at work, yet maintaining strong personal religious practice at home, illustrates institutional secularisation coexisting with undiminished religious identity.

6. Limitations and trade-offs

- ANALYSIS: Single-theory-overreach limitation: applying only structural-functionalism or only conflict theory to every case of Indian social change risks forcing a uniform explanation onto genuinely different empirical mechanisms; the better practice is case-specific theory selection.

- ANALYSIS: Status-inconsistency trade-off: differential pace across Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation within the same group can generate status inconsistency (structurally modern but ritually low-status, or vice versa), itself a source of further social tension rather than a resolved end-state.

- ANALYSIS: Secularisation-secularism conflation risk: treating institutional secularisation as automatically producing or requiring a particular constitutional secularism model overstates the connection between the sociological and doctrinal levels.

7. Must-Know Facts for Advanced Prelims

- FACT: Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation operate on distinct axes - status, values and structure respectively - and can proceed at different speeds within the same community.

- FACT: Universalisation and parochialisation are bidirectional processes linking Great and Little Traditions, developed by McKim Marriott building on Robert Redfield's framework.
- ANALYSIS: Secularisation (institutional differentiation), secularism (constitutional doctrine) and desacralisation (experiential-symbolic decline of the sacred) are three analytically distinct concepts.
- ANALYSIS: Status inconsistency (differential pace across change axes) is a recognised source of ongoing, not resolved, social tension.
- ANALYSIS: This topic is treated as a durable conceptual theme without a fixed dated current-affairs anchor.

8. Advanced Prelims traps

- WRONG: Structural-functionalism and conflict theory are mutually exclusive and only one can ever apply to Indian society. -> Both are valid lenses for different change episodes; sophisticated analysis selects the better-fitting theory per case rather than applying one universally.
- WRONG: Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation always move at the same pace within a group. -> They operate on different axes and frequently proceed at different speeds, producing status inconsistency.
- WRONG: Universalisation and parochialisation both describe the same downward, elite-to-folk direction of cultural flow. -> They describe opposite directions - universalisation is local-to-pan-Indian, parochialisation is pan-Indian-to-local.
- WRONG: Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation are interchangeable terms. -> They operate at institutional, legal-political and experiential-symbolic levels respectively; secularisation does not necessarily imply declining personal belief.

9. CURRENT: Current-anchor note

- CURRENT: No dated current-affairs anchor is asserted for this topic; it is treated explicitly as a durable, theory-focused file, consistent with this module's discipline of not forcing fabricated current-events citations onto purely conceptual content.

10. PYQ-based analytical application

- ANALYSIS: No direct 2024/2025 GS-I Mains PYQ targets social-change theory as a standalone question; this is stated honestly. When such a question does appear (a recurring older-pattern theme), the expected analytical route is: select the appropriate macro- theory (structural-functional or conflict) for the specific change episode cited, apply the Sanskritisation-Westernisation-Modernisation triad with axis-specific precision, and, where cultural transmission is at issue, apply universalisation/parochialisation rather than a simple elite-imposition model.

11. Mains-ready framework

Central thesis: Indian social change is multi-axial and bidirectional, not a single uniform process: structural-functional and conflict theories offer complementary, not interchangeable, causal accounts; Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation track status, values and structure independently; and Great-Little Tradition exchange runs both upward and downward - while secularisation as a social process must be kept distinct from constitutional secularism as a legal-political doctrine.

1. Select the better-fitting macro-theory (structural-functional or conflict) for the cited change episode, rather than asserting one theory universally.
2. Apply Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation as three separate axes with a concrete example for each.
3. Use universalisation and parochialisation to explain any elite-folk cultural interaction, emphasising the bidirectional flow.
4. Distinguish secularisation from secularism and from desacralisation explicitly.
5. Give one boundary case of axis-mismatch (status-inconsistency) within a single community.

6. Flag the single-theory-overreach and secularisation-secularism-conflation limitations.
7. Cross-link reform-movement chronology and constitutional-secularism doctrine without restating them.
8. Conclude with a multi-axial, bidirectional framing of Indian social change.

12. Probable questions

- ANALYSIS: Prelims: Which two processes describe the bidirectional exchange between Great and Little Traditions in Indian village society?
- ANALYSIS: Mains (15 marks): Distinguish between Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation as three separate axes of social change, with examples.
- ANALYSIS: Mains (10 marks): Explain the concept of "status inconsistency" arising from differential pace of Sanskritisation, Westernisation and Modernisation.
- ANALYSIS: Mains (10 marks): Distinguish between secularisation as a sociological process and secularism as a constitutional doctrine.

13. Study links

- FACT: Foundation companion: basic/12_Social-Change-and-Modernisation.md.
- FACT: advanced/02_Caste-System-Structure-and-Contemporary-Dynamics.md - Sanskritisation and Westernisation as caste-mobility concepts.
- FACT: Modern-Indian-History/basic/10_Socio-Religious-Reform-Movements.md - chronological reform-movement narrative.
- FACT: advanced/15_Secularism.md - secularism as social practice and current debate.
- FACT: Philosophy/paper-2/socio-political/Humanism-Secularism-Multiculturalism.md - secularism as political philosophy.

Historical PYQ Integration (2018-2023)

Status: Question-level PYQ demand is integrated into this owner. Provenance: Audited local official-paper routing ledgers: _PYQ-ROUTING-MAINS-GS1-GS2-ESSAY-2018-2023.md.

- Years represented: 2020, 2021
- Paper(s): GS-I
- Routed question demands: 3

Year	Paper	Q	PYQ demand (neutral rendering)	Directive / format	Source status	Owner requirement
2020	GS-I	19	Customs and traditions suppressing reason and obscurantism	Do you agree · 15 marks · 250 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2021	GS-I	19	Cryptocurrency and its effect on global and Indian society	What is and How does it affect · 15 marks · 250 words	Cross-cutting; Economy instrument route terminates in answer-complete Core; society-effect owner retained	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.
2021	GS-I	20	Continuity of traditional social values amid social change	Enumerate · 15 marks · 250 words	Routed to owning topic	Prepare context, core dimensions, evidence/examples, counterpoint and a concise conclusion.

What this owner must now support

- Customs and traditions suppressing reason and obscurantism
- Cryptocurrency and its effect on global and Indian society
- Continuity of traditional social values amid social change

The table integrates the examinable demand and paper metadata. It does not turn an unkeyed objective question into a solved answer, and it does not claim that lexical presence alone proves full conceptual sufficiency.

CONSOLIDATED REGISTER NOTES

Social Change and Modernisation: RAPID CONCEPT AND EVIDENCE MAP

1. Social change as a multi-theory question: This owner treats social change as a question answered with several complementary lenses rather than one master theory, combining evolutionary, cyclical, structural-functional and conflict accounts with an India-specific vocabulary, while socio-religious reform chronology remains with Modern Indian History and constitutional secularism remains with Polity.
2. Structural-functionalism: Structural-functionalism views society as an interconnected system of institutions whose adaptations can restore or renegotiate equilibrium after disruption, and it is one analytical lens rather than a claim that all change is smooth or consensus-led.
3. Conflict theory: Conflict theory, Marxian in influence, views social change as arising from structural contradictions and struggle between groups with opposed interests rather than from consensus-seeking adaptation, and it offers a genuinely different causal account of the same episode.
4. Choosing the better-supported reading: The ending of an untouchability practice in a village can be read functionally as a system reducing disruptive tension and through conflict theory as the outcome of sustained lower-caste mobilisation, so a strong answer states which mechanism the available evidence better supports instead of asserting that only one theory ever applies.
5. Evolutionary and cyclical accounts: Evolutionary theory explains change as internally generated unilinear development while cyclical theory describes civilisational rise and fall, and modern sociology generally prefers multi-linear, context-specific accounts to either pure form.
6. Diffusionist explanation: A diffusionist explanation attributes change to the spread of practices, technology or ideas from one society or region to another, which is how Western-origin institutions are usually said to have entered Indian society, and it complements rather than replaces internal-development accounts.
7. Sanskritisation: Sanskritisation, in M. N. Srinivas's formulation, is the emulation of a locally dominant caste's ritual practice by another jati in order to claim higher local status, and it changes a group's position within the hierarchy without altering the hierarchy's own logic.
8. Westernisation: Westernisation is the adoption of new values from contact with Western education, law and institutions, including equality, individual rights and rationality, and unlike Sanskritisation it can subvert rather than merely reposition a group within the existing hierarchy.
9. Modernisation: Modernisation is structural change toward rational-legal institutions, technology and differentiated occupational roles, and it is analytically distinct from both Sanskritisation and Westernisation even though all three often occur together in one community.
10. Three axes, not one scale: Sanskritisation operates on status, Westernisation on values and modernisation on structure, so a group can modernise structurally through formal education and salaried employment without Sanskritising ritually, and treating the three as points on a single scale of progress is the standard error.
11. Status inconsistency as a change engine: Where Westernisation and modernisation advance while local ritual-status recognition lags, a group can hold new values and a new structural position without matching status, and that inconsistency itself generates further pressure for social change.
12. Great Tradition and Little Tradition: Robert Redfield's Great Tradition and Little Tradition framework, developed for Indian village society by McKim Marriott, distinguishes the pan-Indian, textual and reflective cultural stream from the local, oral and folk stream, and the two interact continuously rather than existing in isolation.

13. Universalisation: Universalisation is the movement of a local folk deity, festival or practice upward into pan-Indian recognition through pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation or patronage, and it demonstrates that cultural flow in India is not only downward from elite to folk.
14. Parochialisation: Parochialisation is the adaptation, simplification or reinterpretation of a pan-Indian textual practice into local folk form to fit regional resources, language and social structure, and together with universalisation it makes Indian cultural change a genuine two-way exchange.
15. Secularisation as a sociological process: Secularisation describes the differentiation of religious authority from economic, political and other institutions, sometimes accompanied by declining religious control in particular domains, and it is neither a universal linear disappearance of religion nor the constitutional doctrine of secularism.
16. Secularisation, secularism and desacralisation: Secularisation operates at the institutional level, secularism at the legal and political level as state neutrality toward religion, and desacralisation at the experiential level as a declining sense of the sacred in particular practices or spaces, and conflating any two of the three is a frequent Mains error.
17. Continuity alongside change: Traditional values persist through family and kin socialisation, ritual and festival life, language and regional culture, and adaptation through universalisation and parochialisation, and each of these mechanisms operates against a parallel change pressure from education, migration, media and law.
18. Custom, reason and obscurantism: A custom is not automatically irrational, so the examinable question is when a particular application of a practice blocks inquiry, equal agency or evidence-based choice, and the answer must name reform, education and internal dissent as change mechanisms without describing any community as inherently irrational.
19. Technology as a social-change question: A technology's societal effect depends on access, regulation, use and unequal risk rather than on the technology's label, so a cryptocurrency or platform demand is answered on the society layer of access, trust, work, identity and risk while the instrument's macroeconomic and technical facts are cross-linked to Economy and to Science and Technology.
20. Verified direct Mains demands and one ownership conflict: Four General Studies Paper-I demands are routed to this topic, with the 2020 obscurantism demand, the 2021 traditional-values demand and the society half of the 2021 cryptocurrency demand routed in the audited 2018-2023 ledger to the Advanced owner, and the 2025 fast-food demand routed in the audited 2024-2025 ledger to this Basic owner even though the Globalisation owner's own answer-architecture table also claims it, and that conflict is recorded openly rather than resolved by assertion.

Social Change and Modernisation: CLOSE-OPTION AND CAUSAL TRAPS

- Do not treat Sanskritisation, Westernisation and modernisation as three names for one process.
- Do not place the three India-specific concepts on a single scale of progress.
- Do not describe universalisation and parochialisation as the same downward flow from elite to folk culture.
- Do not conflate secularisation as a sociological process with secularism as a constitutional doctrine.
- Do not merge desacralisation into either secularisation or secularism.
- Do not assume that structural-functionalism and conflict theory must yield the same explanation of one episode.
- Do not present evolutionary theory as an established account of Indian social change.
- Do not answer a continuity demand with a list of unchanged customs and no parallel change pressure.
- Do not call a custom irrational merely because it is old, or a community irrational because of a custom.
- Do not answer a technology demand with the instrument's price, legal status or adoption figure.
- Do not restate socio-religious reform-movement chronology owned by Modern Indian History.
- Do not restate Article 25 to Article 28 doctrine or the Forty-second Amendment owned by Polity.
- Do not invent a scholar, a village study, a date or a survey figure for this durable-theory topic.
- Do not force a dated current-affairs citation onto a purely conceptual social-change answer.

Social Change and Modernisation: ANSWER-WRITING SPINE

DEFINE THE SOCIAL UNIT -> STATE THE BOUNDARY RULE AND WHO IS INCLUDED
-> GROUP NAMED EVIDENCE BY MECHANISM OF REPRODUCTION OR CHANGE
-> TEST COUNTER-CASES, REGIONAL VARIATION AND CATEGORY LIMITS
-> SEPARATE CORRELATION FROM CAUSATION AND LAW FROM SOCIAL ACCEPTANCE
-> CLOSE WITH A GRADED, POLICY-AWARE VERDICT AND A DATA CAVEAT

Social Change and Modernisation: CURRENT-LINK AND DATA BOUNDARY

This is treated as a durable-theory topic, so no dated current-affairs anchor is forced onto it. The only dated official element used is the verbatim wording of the 2025 General Studies Paper-I demand routed to this owner, confirmed in the locally held official question paper. No scholar, village study, survey figure, date or adoption statistic is invented, no cryptocurrency price or legal status is asserted, and constitutional secularism doctrine and socio-religious reform chronology are cross-linked to Polity and Modern Indian History rather than restated.

COMPLETE TOPIC ASCII MASTER FLOW DIAGRAM

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 1/12: Lens set for social change

MACRO -> structural-functional equilibrium against conflict-driven contradiction
OLDER FAMILIES -> evolutionary unilinear development and cyclical rise and fall
TRANSMISSION -> diffusionist spread of practices, technology and ideas
EXCLUDED -> reform chronology owned by Modern Indian History
MUST REMEMBER: Social change alters institutions, relations, norms and identities through Sanskritisation, westernisation, secularisation, modernisation, democratisation, education, technology, migration, social movements and state action; continuity and change coexist at different speeds.

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 2/12: One episode, two readings

EPISODE -> an untouchability practice ends in a village
FUNCTIONAL READING -> the system reduces disruptive tension and renegotiates roles
CONFLICT READING -> sustained lower-caste mobilisation defeats entrenched interest
ANSWER RULE -> state which mechanism the evidence better supports

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 3/12: Three axes card

SANSKRITISATION -> status axis, position changes inside an unchanged hierarchy
WESTERNISATION -> value axis, equality, individual rights and rationality
MODERNISATION -> structural axis, rational-legal institutions and role differentiation
PROHIBITION -> the three are not stages of one ladder

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 4/12: Status inconsistency chain

INPUT -> new resources through education, migration income or market access RESPONSE -> Sanskritise, Westernise, modernise or combine, by social context
MISMATCH -> new values and structural position without matching local status
OUTPUT -> the inconsistency generates further pressure for change

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 5/12: Two cultural streams

GREAT TRADITION -> pan-Indian, textual, reflective stream
LITTLE TRADITION -> local, oral, folk stream
AUTHORSHIP -> Robert Redfield, applied to Indian villages by McKim Marriott RELATION -> continuous interaction, never isolation

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 6/12: Two-way exchange

UNIVERSALISATION -> local deity or festival rises into pan-Indian recognition
CARRIERS -> pilgrimage networks, textual incorporation, patronage
PAROCHIALISATION -> pan-Indian ritual adapted to local resources and language
RESULT -> layered, regionally variable practice rather than uniform culture
CLOSE DISTINCTION: Modernisation is not westernisation, secularisation is not necessarily declining belief, Sanskritisation is not structural equality, mobility is not transformation of the hierarchy, and legal reform is not identical to normative or behavioural change.

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 7/12: Three levels of the religious question

SECULARISATION -> institutional differentiation of religious authority
SECULARISM -> legal and political doctrine of state neutrality
DESACRALISATION -> experiential decline of the sacred in particular practices
ERROR -> collapsing any two of the three into one term

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 8/12: Continuity mechanisms

FAMILY AND KIN -> socialisation against migration and education pressure
RITUAL AND FESTIVAL -> shared practice against media and market pressure
LANGUAGE AND REGION -> regional culture against standardisation pressure
ADAPTATION -> universalisation and parochialisation absorb the pressure

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 9/12: Custom and reason test

STEP ONE -> identify the practice and its lived meaning
STEP TWO -> ask whether an application blocks inquiry, agency or evidence
STEP THREE -> name reform, education and internal dissent as mechanisms LIMIT -> never move from a practice to a verdict about a community

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 10/12: Technology on the society layer

SOCIETY LAYER -> access, trust, work, identity and unequal risk
CROSS-LINKED -> instrument mechanics owned by Economy and Science and Technology
PROHIBITION -> no price, legal status or adoption figure is asserted
OUTPUT -> a social effect argued from access and use, not from a label

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 11/12: Evidence-status card

NAMED SCHOLARS -> M. N. Srinivas, Robert Redfield, McKim Marriott
DATED ANCHOR -> none is required for this durable-theory topic
RECENT DEMANDS -> one routed 2025 demand, three routed 2018 to 2021 demands
PROHIBITION -> no village study, survey figure or date is invented

ASCII MASTER FLOW - PANEL 12/12: Social-change answer spine

OPEN -> name the lens and the axis the question is testing

BODY -> apply the India-specific vocabulary with one worked example

TEST -> continuity mechanisms against their parallel change pressures

CLOSE -> graded verdict with the cross-owner boundary stated

EVIDENCE LIMIT: Use M.N. Srinivas and Yogendra Singh as bounded analytical frameworks, alongside education, media, urban and movement examples; avoid linear tradition-to-modernity teleology and identify feedback, resistance, regional paths and unintended effects.