Question: Why did the League fail as a peace-enforcement body? Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: Its design lacked automatic force, but the decisive weakness was political: Britain and France would not accept the risks collective security required.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The League of Nations formally began on 10 January 1920 to preserve peace through collective security and promote economic and social cooperation.
- The Assembly, Council, Court, Secretariat and commissions supported genuine work on labour, refugees, health, mandates, minorities and disputed territories.
- The absent United States, late membership of Germany and the USSR, unanimity, no standing army and dependence on British-French will weakened enforcement.
- Japan's seizure of Manchuria was the first major successful defiance of the League and demonstrated that a great power could keep gains.
- Half-hearted sanctions during Italy's invasion of Abyssinia destroyed League credibility and advertised collective-security weakness.

Qualified conclusion: Its design lacked automatic force, but the decisive weakness was political: Britain and France would not accept the risks collective security required.

Demand decoding: The directive answer requires a direct position on "Why did the League fail as a peace-enforcement body? Answer in about 150 words.", every clause and time boundary, chronological-causal organisation, named evidence, a counter-position and a qualified global verdict.

Detailed examiner-grade model status: The solved content above is the executable answer base. Preserve its thesis, named chronology, spatial evidence, causal mechanism, counter-position and qualification rather than replacing it with a generic narrative.

Executable exam-length answer / compression plan: For a 10-mark answer, open with a two-sentence thesis and a spatial-temporal frame; organise three named events, treaties, actors, regions, institutions or attributed interpretations as claim -> evidence -> analysis -> qualification; reserve the final lines for a graded conclusion.

Why this earns marks: The answer obeys the directive, distinguishes structure, trigger and outcome, connects evidence to mechanism, includes non-European agency and avoids teleology, presentism and monocausal explanation.

How to improve this answer: For "Why did the League fail as a peace-enforcement body? Answer in about 150 words.", replace the weakest generalisation with one additional named treaty, regional case, primary record or attributed scholarly position and state what that evidence cannot prove.

Detailed examiner-grade model answer:

Introduction and thesis: Its design lacked automatic force, but the decisive weakness was political: Britain and France would not accept the risks collective security required.

Analytical body:

1. Claim and named evidence: The League of Nations formally began on 10 January 1920 to preserve peace through collective security and promote economic and social cooperation. Analysis: Use this evidence to establish the mechanism asked in the directive, not merely to narrate the event. Qualification: Keep its chronological, regional and interpretive boundary explicit.

2. Claim and named evidence: The Assembly, Council, Court, Secretariat and commissions supported genuine work on labour, refugees, health, mandates, minorities and disputed territories. Analysis: Use this evidence to establish the mechanism asked in the directive, not merely to narrate the event. Qualification: Keep its chronological, regional and interpretive boundary explicit.

Question: Assess the Locarno phase. Answer in about 150 words.

Model thesis: Dawes credit, western guarantees and German membership produced real easing, but dependence on prosperity and unguaranteed eastern frontiers made it conditional.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The Dawes Plan used American credit to make reparations manageable and enabled French withdrawal from the Ruhr.
- Locarno guaranteed Germany's western frontiers but left its eastern frontiers unguaranteed, making reconciliation geographically incomplete.
- Germany entered the League in 1926 during the brief phase of conditional reconciliation.
- Withdrawal of American credit, unemployment and radicalisation after 1929 destroyed the prosperity on which the Locarno spirit depended.

Qualified conclusion: Dawes credit, western guarantees and German membership produced real easing, but dependence on prosperity and unguaranteed eastern frontiers made it conditional.

Question: How did the Depression transform interwar international relations? Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: Credit withdrawal and unemployment weakened cooperation, empowered revisionist regimes and converted institutional weakness into successful aggression.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The Dawes Plan used American credit to make reparations manageable and enabled French withdrawal from the Ruhr.
- The Young Plan reduced reparations to two thousand million pounds but arrived as the economic foundation of cooperation began to collapse.
- Withdrawal of American credit, unemployment and radicalisation after 1929 destroyed the prosperity on which the Locarno spirit depended.
- Japan's seizure of Manchuria was the first major successful defiance of the League and demonstrated that a great power could keep gains.

Question: Why did appeasement appear reasonable, and why did it fail? Answer in about 250 words.

Model thesis: War memory, genuine grievances and weak readiness made concession defensible, but Munich excluded allies and Prague proved Hitler's aims were not finite.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- Britain's separate naval agreement with Germany broke the Stresa Front and weakened coordinated resistance.
- German remilitarisation of the Rhineland met protest without force and taught Hitler that further risks might go unopposed.
- The Sudetenland was conceded at Munich without Czechoslovak or Soviet participation, strategically crippling Czechoslovakia.
- Hitler's seizure of non-German Prague in March 1939 destroyed the argument that his aims were limited to national self-determination.
- Appeasement addressed grievances that sometimes looked finite, but repeated concessions removed deterrence while aggressors learned that enforcement would not follow protest.

Qualified conclusion: War memory, genuine grievances and weak readiness made concession defensible, but Munich excluded allies and Prague proved Hitler's aims were not finite.

Question: Was the interwar order doomed by institutional design or state choices? Answer in about 300 words.

Model thesis: The League's structure mattered, but member-state choices repeatedly withheld enforcement; political will converted remediable weaknesses into systemic collapse.

Claim -> named evidence -> analysis -> qualification:

- The Assembly, Council, Court, Secretariat and commissions supported genuine work on labour, refugees, health, mandates, minorities and disputed territories.
- The absent United States, late membership of Germany and the USSR, unanimity, no standing army and dependence on British-French will weakened enforcement.

- Locarno guaranteed Germany's western frontiers but left its eastern frontiers unguaranteed, making reconciliation geographically incomplete.
- The Kellogg-Briand Pact renounced war but lacked sanctions or an enforcement mechanism.
- Japan's seizure of Manchuria was the first major successful defiance of the League and demonstrated that a great power could keep gains.
