- COMMON THERAPEUTIC CORE suffering (duḥkha) → origin (trṣṇā/avidyā) → cessation (nirvāṇa) → eightfold path three marks: anitya

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: Buddhist schools share dependent origination and no-self but disagree over external objects, consciousness and ultimate truth; comparison must therefore preserve both their common therapeutic framework and their distinct ontologies.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: No permanent self (nairātmyavāda) (no-self doctrine) denies an eternal enduring self (ātman) (self) and explains the person as a dependently ordered continuum of five aggregates (skandhas) (aggregates), preserving conventional identity without a permanent substance.

DOCTRINE / CLAIM

- OBJECTIONS: flux cannot explain continuity
- anātman weakens agency
- emptiness (śūnyatā) is nihilism
- REPLIES: causal series

OBJECTION / PRESSURE

- dependent responsibility
- emptiness denies self-nature, not function
- ANSWER RAIL common core → twelve links → momentariness → five-skandha no-self

REPLY / RESIDUAL

- objection/reply → qualified verdict
- CLOSE: Buddhism replaces substance with conditioned process
- its schools progressively debate whether external dharmas, cognition, or any intrinsic nature can be retained.

ANSWER-GRABBING LINE — WRITE/ADAPT IN THE EXAM: The central realist criticism is that momentariness and no-self cannot explain recognition, memory and moral responsibility; the Buddhist reply relocates continuity from substance to causally connected causal continuum (saṁtāna) (continuum).

- LAYER 3 - ADVANCED Advanced derivation and school divergence Dependent origination is not a search for the universe's first cause.

ADVANCED OBJECTION

- It diagnoses the structure of conditioned becoming here and now.
- This avoids eternalism because no unchanged self grounds the process, and avoids annihilationism because causal continuity remains.
- The doctrine supports different ontological conclusions.
- Mādhyamika argues that whatever depends on conditions lacks intrinsic nature (svabhāva) and is therefore empty.

COMPARATIVE NUANCE

- Vaibhāṣika and Sautrāntika instead emphasise that causally functioning conditioned events are real.
- Their disagreement concerns ultimate status, not whether dependent arising occurs.
- The strongest challenge is regress: if every event is conditioned, what explains the chain as a whole?
- The Buddhist reply is therapeutic and structural rather than foundational—the task is to identify and cease the conditions

OPTIONAL STATUS — This optional depth is unnecessary for a competent core answer; use it only for added nuance after the complete core has been written.
