MECHANISM	Chronology fixes what each named work actually changed, so the argument cannot slide into a vague rise-and-fall story.
TRAP / LIMIT	Rawls wants identical outcomes for all -> Rawls permits inequality after liberty and fair opportunity, provided it benefits the least advantaged. (PDF p.448)
ANSWER LINE	Gauba opens the chapter by treating justice as a field of many rival perspectives rather than one settled formula. (PDF p.446)

2	CORE DEFINITIONS THE EXAMINER EXPECTS VERBATIM
Term	Exam-ready meaning
Primary goods	Rawls's distributive object; rights, liberties, powers, opportunities, income, wealth and the social bases of self-respect. (PDF p.447)
Original position	Rawls's hypothetical starting point where rational persons choose principles of justice without knowing their actual social place. (PDF p.447)
Veil of ignorance	The condition in which parties lack knowledge of their particular wants, talents, class position and other discriminatory markers. (PDF p.447)
Equal basic liberties	Rawls's first principle: each person has an equal claim to the most extensive compatible liberty. (PDF p.448)
Fair equality of opportunity	Rawls's second-stage rule that offices and positions should be open on genuinely fair terms, not merely formal legal equality. (PDF p.448)
Difference principle	Rawls's rule that inequality is just only if it brings the greatest benefit to the least advantaged. (PDF p.448)
Entitlement theory	Nozick's view that holdings are just if they arise from just acquisition, voluntary transfer and, where needed, rectification. (PDF pp.450-452)
Subaltern	Groups kept in subordinate, exploited or marginalized positions by structural inequalities and hegemonic domination. (PDF pp.467-469)
Situated / embedded self	Communitarian idea that persons discover themselves within social roles, traditions and shared ends, not in abstraction from them. (PDF pp.469-472)
MECHANISM	Definition control is the cheapest mark in this topic: the stem is usually built from one of these exact terms.
TRAP / LIMIT	The difference principle alone is enough to justify an inequality -> Equal basic liberties and fair equality of opportunity have lexical priority
ANSWER LINE	Gauba begins with the liberal perspective and presents Rawls as the major attempt to reconcile liberty with equality and fraternity within a broader liberal frame. (PDF p.446)

3	CHAPTER SPINE, STEP BY STEP
●	Gauba begins with the liberal perspective and presents Rawls as the major attempt to reconcile liberty with equality and fraternity within a broader liberal frame. (PDF p.446)
●	Rawls rejects utilitarian sacrifice of some for aggregate happiness and instead asks what principles free and rational agents would choose under fairness conditions. (PDF pp.447-448)
●	Gauba then shifts to the libertarian perspective, where Nozick opposes redistributive welfare and treats justice historically through titles and transfers, not patterned end-states. (PDF pp.450-452)
●	The Marxist discussion rejects repair of capitalism through mere fairer shares and locates injustice in exploitation, surplus value and private ownership of major means of production. (PDF pp.452-459)
●	Democratic socialism softens the revolutionary route, combines socialism with democratic freedoms, and seeks welfare plus civil liberties through constitutional politics. (PDF pp.459-461)
●	Anarchism radicalizes suspicion of coercive authority by arguing that justice needs the shrinking or abolition of state power and domination. (PDF pp.461-464)
●	Feminist justice makes gender hierarchy a central political problem and presses for rights, opportunities, representation and compensatory measures. (PDF pp.464-468)
●	Subaltern justice reframes distribution around structurally subordinated groups whose labour and contribution are undervalued under elite hegemony. (PDF pp.467-469)
●	Communitarian justice criticizes liberal neutrality and insists that right cannot be understood apart from shared conceptions of the good and community life. (PDF pp.469-473)
MECHANISM	The spine is the order in which the source itself develops the argument; reproducing it keeps the answer sequenced rather than listed.
TRAP / LIMIT	Nozick is anti-justice -> Nozick proposes a full theory of justice, but one centred on entitlement rather than redistribution. (PDF pp.451-452)
ANSWER LINE	Rawlsian justice is not flat equality; liberty comes first, opportunity next, and only then may inequalities be permitted if they help the least advantaged. (PDF p.448)

4	THINKERS, NAMED WORKS AND THE PROPOSITIONS THEY FIX
John Rawls	Robert Nozick
Justice as fairness through two lexically ordered principles: equal basic liberties; then fair opportunity plus the difference principle, chosen in the original position. Gauba explains the second principle's two parts as separate steps (PDF pp.447-450)	Justice as entitlement grounded jointly in self-ownership, just initial acquisition, voluntary transfer and rectification under a minimal protective state (PDF pp.450-452)
Marx and Engels	Harold Laski / E.F.M. Durbin
Capitalist injustice lies in exploitation of labour, surplus value and private ownership of major means of production; communist society aims to end class domination. (PDF pp.452-459)	Democratic socialism combines socialist justice with democratic method, civil liberties and public services. (PDF pp.459-461)
Godwin / Proudhon / Bakunin / Kropotkin / Tolstoy / Gandhi / Bookchin	Mary Wollstonecraft / J.S. Mill
Anarchist family members differ, but all distrust coercive authority and seek justice through decentralized, voluntary or morally regenerated association. (PDF pp.461-464)	Early feminist demand for equal rights, education, property and political citizenship for women. (PDF pp.465-466)
Book-period gender indicators	Antonio Gramsci
Gauba uses development and empowerment indicators to show that gender justice includes health, education and power, not merely formal rights. (PDF pp.466-468)	Subaltern justice exposes hegemony, elite-centred history and exploitation masked as consent. (PDF pp.467-469)
MacIntyre / Sandel / Taylor / Walzer
Communitarian thinkers stress virtue, embeddedness, social context and sphere-specific meanings of goods against abstract liberal universalism. (PDF pp.470-473)
MECHANISM	A named proposition earns marks only when it is tied to the analytical use the question demands.
TRAP / LIMIT	Any voluntary market transfer is just for Nozick -> The transfer must rest on just title; acquisition, transfer and rectification form a connected historical test
ANSWER LINE	Thinker / stream - Position in this topic

Rawls's anti-utilitarian point is illustrated by the possibility that aggregate happiness could rise even while a minority is enslaved; he rejects such trade-offs. (PDF p.447)	Nozick's Wilt Chamberlain example shows why voluntary exchange may generate inequality without, in his view, making the outcome unjust. (PDF p.451)

Nozick's water-source example shows that initial acquisition is not unlimited; control over an indispensable natural resource cannot rightfully make others worse off. (PDF p.451)	Marxist surplus-value analysis illustrates injustice when labour creates more value than the worker receives back as wages. (PDF pp.453-455)

Feminist justice is illustrated through historically denied rights to women's education, property, vote and occupations, followed by claims for compensatory measures. (PDF pp.465-468)	Subaltern justice is illustrated through the contrast between elite theory, which naturalizes rule, and Gramsci's view that hegemony makes subordination look consensual. (PDF pp.468-469)
Walzer's example of keeping money from corrupting politics,	In answer writing, treat these as timeless conceptual
Walzer's example of keeping money from corrupting politics, health and education illustrates communitarian "complex equality." (PDF p.473)	In answer writing, treat these as timeless conceptual illustrations or clearly historical book-period examples, not present-day statistics
MECHANISM	Examples are evidence only when the answer states what they prove and where they stop proving it.
TRAP / LIMIT	Marxism has nothing to do with justice -> Gauba says that would be too strong, because Marx condemns exploitation and endorses superior distributive principles in a classless order. (PDF p.453)
ANSWER LINE	Rawls's anti-utilitarian point is illustrated by the possibility that aggregate happiness could rise even while a minority is enslaved; he rejects such trade-offs. (PDF p.447)

Perspective	Distribution rule	State	Property	Equality	Community	Critique
Rawlsian liberal	Equal liberties first; the second principle then requires fair opportunity before inequalities can be tested by the difference principle (PDF p.448)	Active state may pursue distributive justice and regulate inequalities. (PDF pp.448-450)	Retains capitalism conditionally, but only in a more humane, regulated form. (PDF p.450)	Equal liberty plus justified inequality, not simple leveling. (PDF pp.448-449)	Gauba's "chain connection" is his explanatory presentation of social interdependence, not a substitute for Rawls's ordered principles	Criticized by collectivists, Marxists, libertarians and communitarians from different angles. (PDF pp.448-449)
Libertarian (Nozick)	Historical entitlement through just acquisition, voluntary transfer and rectification. All three matter (PDF pp.450-452)	Minimal protective state plus rectification, not patterned welfare redistribution. (PDF pp.451-452)	Strong private property and self-ownership are central to liberty, qualified by just title and the acquisition proviso	Equality of outcome is irrelevant only where holdings arose justly	Community does not automatically ground coercive redistribution; voluntary aid remains possible	Criticized for underestimating structural injustice and the indeterminacy of rectification
Marxist	Ultimately distribution by need in communist society; under capitalism, justice cannot be reduced to fair shares inside an exploitative system. (PDF pp.453, 458-459)	Socialist state is transitional, then expected to wither away with class abolition. (PDF pp.455-459)	Abolishes private ownership of major means of production while distinguishing personal property. (PDF pp.458-459)	Seeks abolition of exploitative class inequality. (PDF pp.453-459)	Envisions classless association where free development of each supports all. (PDF pp.458-459)	Criticized because new domination may reappear through political or bureaucratic power. (PDF p.459)
Democratic-socialist	Social justice through partial socialization, welfare, public services and democratic rights. (PDF pp.459-461)	Strong welfare-democratic state, but not dictatorship. (PDF pp.460-461)	Mixed regime: some essential sectors under state ownership, not wholesale abolition. (PDF p.459)	Combines socio-economic justice with civil liberties and personality development. (PDF pp.459-460)	Public opinion, work culture and democratic institutions are needed to sustain it. (PDF p.461)	Criticized as hard to fund and politically difficult to sustain without coercion or incentive loss. (PDF p.461)
Anarchist	Equitable sharing through voluntary cooperation, mutualism or communal association, not imposed hierarchy. (PDF pp.461-464)	State is coercive evil to be abolished or progressively diluted. (PDF pp.461-464)	Often hostile to property as domination, though strains differ. (PDF pp.462-464)	Equality means release from domination by state, hierarchy and exploitative ownership. (PDF pp.462-464)	Small associations, federations and mutual aid are preferred to centralized rule. (PDF pp.462-464)	Criticized as politically impracticable, overly optimistic about human nature, and weak on regulation. (PDF p.464)
Feminist	Justice requires equal rights plus corrective support against gendered disadvantage. (PDF pp.465-468)	State may need to secure education, representation, reservations and protective benefits. (PDF pp.466-468)	Challenges women's historic exclusion from property ownership and economic power. (PDF pp.465-468)	Equality includes effective status, empowerment, participation and share in power. (PDF pp.466-468)	Community arrangements are suspect when they naturalize patriarchal roles. (PDF pp.465-467)	Critiques social arrangements that turn biological difference into unwarranted subordination. (PDF pp.465-468)
Subaltern	Justice means restoring equitable shares, rights, dignity and protection to structurally subordinated groups. (PDF pp.467-469)	State and history-writing must stop privileging elites and must protect marginalized groups. (PDF pp.468-469)	Property/class matters, but subordination extends beyond ownership into caste, culture, gender and hegemony. (PDF pp.467-469)	Equality means ending undeserved subordination and rewarding contribution fairly. (PDF pp.468-469)	Community is divided by ruling-class hegemony unless subaltern agency can organize and speak. (PDF pp.467-469)	Critiques elite theory for naturalizing rule and legitimizing subordinate agency. (PDF pp.468-469)
Communitarian	Distribution should reflect community meanings, virtue and sphere-specific reasons, not one abstract universal metric. (PDF pp.469-473)	State is not neutral umpire alone; it may legitimately sustain common goods and proper boundaries between spheres. (PDF pp.470-473)	Property is not the sole key to social worth; money must not dominate every sphere. (PDF pp.472-473)	Rejects simple equality; Walzer prefers complex equality across distinct social spheres. (PDF pp.472-473)	Persons are situated selves whose good is discovered through shared practices and deeper commonality. (PDF pp.470-472)	Critiques liberal neutrality and the abstract or unencumbered self; is itself criticized for weak political mechanism. (PDF pp.469-473)
MECHANISM	Running the comparison on shared axes converts a description into an adjudication.
TRAP / LIMIT	Democratic socialism is just Marxism without elections -> It explicitly insists on freedom of thought, multi-party competition and opposition rights. (PDF pp.460-461)
ANSWER LINE	Perspective - Distribution rule - State - Property - Equality - Community - Critique

9	REVISION CAPSULE AND ANSWER SPINE
●	Rawls: two principles - equal basic liberties; then fair opportunity plus the difference principle in lexical order. Gauba presents the second principle's two parts as separate steps (PDF pp.447-450)
●	Nozick: justice in holdings = acquisition + transfer + rectification under minimal state. (PDF pp.450-452)
●	Marxist: injustice lies in exploitation and private ownership of major means of production; communist justice points to need-based distribution. (PDF pp.453-459)
●	Democratic-socialist: welfare and social ownership must coexist with civil liberties and democratic competition. (PDF pp.459-461)
●	Anarchist: justice seeks release from coercive authority and domination through voluntary association. (PDF pp.461-464)
●	Feminist, subaltern and communitarian critiques widen justice beyond market shares to gendered power, structural subordination and embedded community meanings. (PDF pp.464-473)
●	Walzer adds the important reminder that equality can mean keeping money from colonizing every other sphere of life. (PDF pp.472-473)
●	One-line synthesis: Gauba's chapter moves from fair procedure, to valid title, to structural exploitation, structured subordination and finally to shared meanings of goods; recognition is a later analytical extension
●	Best answer move: compare each theory on rule of distribution, role of state, treatment of property, idea of equality, view of community, and strongest criticism
●	Verified PYQ (2023): What is justice as fairness? Explain Rawls's theory of justice
●	PYQ trap: do not write only the difference principle; define original position and veil of ignorance, state the two principles and their priority, then add objections
MECHANISM	The capsule is the last-minute recall rail; it should be reproducible in under two minutes.
ANSWER LINE	Rawls, reconstructed for answer-writing (synthesis of PDF pp.447-450, not a direct quotation): P1: rational agents choose principles behind a veil of ignorance, unaware of their own place

QUALIFIED VERDICT

Rawls, reconstructed for answer-writing (synthesis of PDF pp.447-450, not a direct quotation): P1: rational agents choose principles behind a veil of ignorance, unaware of their own place Gauba begins with the liberal perspective and presents Rawls as the major attempt to reconcile liberty with equality and fraternity within a broader liberal frame.
