STATIC THEORY

- □ Old NCERT describes the 18th century in Europe as the Age of Reason or the Age of Enlightenment.
- □ Britannica defines the Enlightenment as a European intellectual movement centred on reason, nature, humanity, freedom and happiness.
- □ Old NCERT links this change in thought with attacks on privilege by birth, the ideological authority of the Church, and autocratic political systems.
- □ The new slogans that gained force were liberty, equality and fraternity; alongside them rose ideas of freedom, democracy and nationalism.
- □ □ The safest UPSC formulation is that the Enlightenment was not one single revolution; it was the intellectual climate that made late-18th-century political revolutions thinkable and defensible.
- □ Old NCERT explicitly links the new ideas to movements in Europe and North America that sought to overthrow autocratic governments and abolish privilege.
- □ □ In answer-writing, keep the chain clear: ideas alone did not produce revolution; they gave language, legitimacy and programme to groups already angered by fiscal, social and political crises.
- □ "Age of Reason" and "Age of Enlightenment" are used for the 18th-century European intellectual shift.
- □ Core Enlightenment themes: reason, criticism of privilege, secular inquiry, rights, liberty and representative government.
- □ Rousseau is linked with popular sovereignty and the social contract.
- □ Montesquieu is linked with separation of powers.
- □ Locke is linked with natural rights and consent of the governed.
- □ Old NCERT treats liberty, equality, fraternity and nationalism as major ideological outcomes of the period.
- □ UPSC GS-I Mains syllabus states: "History of the world will include events from 18th century such as industrial revolution, world wars, redrawing of national boundaries, colonization, decolonization, political philosophies like communism, capitalism, socialism etc.— their forms and effect on the society."
- □ □ This overview works as the introductory frame for later answers on the American Revolution, French Revolution, nationalism, socialism and industrial capitalism.
